Hitler, Laval Reported Bargaining Over Nazi Use of French Fleet

Berlin Contemplates Naval Showdown; Vichy Denies Intent To Fight for Reich

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Oct. 22.—Adolf Hitler received Vice Premier Pierre Laval of France, somewhere in French territory today, it was announced officially tonight, climaxing indications of a developing attempt to mass the surviving French warships with those of Germany and Italy for a showdown with the British fleet.

No details of the Hitler-Laval conference were disclosed, save that it was attended by German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop, already reported assigned to the job of seeking to get France to enter the war against her old ally.

The meeting was held in German-occupied France. Laval has made several trips to Paris as the emissary of the Vichy government to the German military authorities there.

[Any talk of France joining in the war against England—or any other country—is out of the question, Vichy officials declared emphatically.

[They acknowledged that important negotiations are under way somewhere in France, but that "they still are not finished."]

May Head France

[Foreign Minister Baudoin earlier had told American press correspondents in Vichy that he hoped for "frank and total" collaboration between France and Germany after a "just" peace is signed.

[Observers in neutral Bern said that Hitler's audience with Laval was accepted in Vichy as meaning a final settlement with Germany may be immiment, but not at the price of active French participation in the war against Britain.

[Laval, always an advocate of appeasement, is likely to take over the French government powers in name as well as fact, observers here believed, noting Laval and not Chief of State Petain met Hitler.

Aid Believed Arranged

[Many French observers believe Laval and Navy Minister Admiral Jean Darlan advocate accepting the German terms and making war against Britain.

[Petain and Gen. Weygand are declared to have approved defensive action against the British, as at Oran and Dakar, but to be op-

Nazis Threaten Correspondents With Prosecution

Berlin, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Nazi quarters today threatened correspondents with punishment under wartime regulations against espionage if they go too far in "guesses and speculations" regarding Germany's diplomatic moves.

"Germany is, of course, at present pursuing its foreign policy and wartime lends to this activity such weight and earnestness that any speculation about it designed to pry into its direction or character borders on political espionage," it was stated.

"No such obvious and purposeful trial balloons, guesses and speculations will be tolerated by us in the future."

Nazis Hint Spain May Enter War Within 'Next 48 Hours'

Von Ribbentrop and Ciano Reported Going to Madrid to Make Decision; Talk Heard of Attack on Gibraltar

By the United Press

Berlin, Oct. 22.—Nazis intimated today that important diplomatic moves during the next 48 hours may bring Spain into "more active" support of the Axis.

[German Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop, who was with Fuehrer Hitler "somewhere in France" today, is expected to arrive in Spain shortly, the United Press said it was advised by "reliable private sources," and may be joined there by a spokesman for Italy, perhaps Foreign Minister Ciano.

[Carefully-phrased reports from Berlin and other capitals indicated Hitler and Premier Mussolini may have decided that Spain's "hour of decision" is at hand and that it is time for her to enter the war in an effort to close the Mediterranean to Britain at Gibraltar, simultaneous with intensification of Italy's drive toward the Suez Canal and possibly a strong Nazi push down through the Balkans.

[Reports circulated in Sofia, Bulgaria, that high German, Italian and Spanish leaders would meet soon in an important conference, perhaps in Madrid.]

Whether Spain is about to adopt a new position involving direct collaboration with the Axis is not known, but one Nazi source pointed out that the recent elevation of Ramon Suner to the post of Spanish foreign minister "justifies the assumption that Berlin and Rome expect active sympathy from him."

It was significant that responsible Nazi press comment is discussing the position of Gibraltar in relation to the "final phase" of the war against Britain, and particularly in connection with present strategic problems and possibilities in the Mediterranean.

'Must Resort To Force,' Says Tokyo Paper

Oil Negotiations With Dutch Indies Reported a Failure

By the Associated Press

Tokyo (Wednesday), Oct. 23.—The Japanese newspaper Asahi indicated today that negotiations to obtain oil from the Netherlands East Indies had failed and suggested, "we must resort to armed force."

[Meanwhile, implications that Japan is making progress in toward its recently apparent desire for rapprochement with Soviet Russia—which would enable it to concentrate on a "southward policy"—were contained in a United Press dispatch declaring negotiations have been going on in Tokyo. A Soviet diplomat (presumably a member of the Tokyo Embassy staff) is a Moscow checking with his government, the dispatch said. Previously all reports have said the negotiations awaited the arrival in Moscow of a new Japanese ambassador.]

"Make Them Comply"

Although details of an oil agreement which the Japanese said was concluded with the Netherlands East Indies Saturday (and which officials at Batavia denied only yesterday) were not disclosed, the Japanese press seemed to believe the matter was still unsatisfactory.

Failure, as usual, was attributed to British and American machinations, and London's reiteration that Britain has contracted for the Indies' high-grade gasoline heightened this sentiment.

Asahi criticized the return to Tokyo of Japanese Commerce Minister Ichizo Kobayashi, who has been negotiating in Batavia, and said, "To bring the East Indies over to our side we either must show them it is clearly against their interests to rely on Britain and the United States, or we must resort to armed force and make them comply.

"No matter how we might try to reason with the Dutch, it would be a sheer waste of time and energy unless the Anglo-American policy

Nazi Ships Blasted

By the Associated Press

London, Oct. 22.—In one of the mightiest attacks yet made upon a single Nazi area, the air ministry reported today, a thousand British fire bombs and vast loads of explosives have been dropped upon Hamburg, where German warships are under construction.

This violent assault, illustrating the rising tempo of a counteroffensive which Britain's leaders expect to maintain through the winter in the hope of seizing the initiative next spring, was declared to have left a chain of fires which eventually came together in "one great flaming mass."

The attack was carried out last night along with others on Germany's industrial Ruhr through a heavy ground haze, the ministry said, which forced the raiding British formations to break up into individual hunting crews.

For 10 minutes, it added, an oil refinery at Reisholz, near Dusseldorf, was bombarded from the air and 14 separate fires were raging as the British headed for home.

Explosions and fires were declared to have been set off in the Dusseldorf-Derendorf railway yards and at an airdrome at Stade, Germany.

Yankee Sea Power Grows

U. S. to Have More Navy Bases In Pacific, Knox Promises

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 22.—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox indicated today the United States may assume a more expanding role in the Pacific, asserting that "we have Pacific bases, but we need more—and we will have them."

"How farflung these must be awaits the outcome of events now in the making," he added.

Knox made the statement in an address before the annual New York Herald Tribune annual forum on current affairs.

"A great, seagoing, far-ranging Navy consists of more than ships and men," Knox continued. "It must have bases from which to operate."

He did not disclose any details of what negotiations—if any—might be going forward for acquisition of additional bases, or in what parts of the Pacific these might lie.

"Immense gains in sea power have already been made," Knox added.

Among these, he said, was the acquisition of eight new Atlantic bases which "added tremendously to our naval strength in the Atlantic. These, with those already held, make our Atlantic defense well nigh impregnable."

The bases were obtained by leases from Great Britain when the United States recently sent 50 de-

Makes His Choice

By the United Press

New York, Oct. 22.—James A. Farley, who as national chairman of the Democratic Party opposed a third term for President Roosevelt, tonight announced he would vote a straight Democratic ticket at the November elections and urged other members of the party to do the same.

Farley's prepared statement did not mention the President by name but made it clear that he would have his support.

Preached Party Loyalty

Farley, who resigned as national chairman in September but still retains his post as chairman of the Democratic State Committee of New York, said that for 31 years he has "preached party loyalty and pleaded for the success of my party."

"I did that," he said, "because I sincerely believe in the Democratic Party, its principles and objectives."

Farley's statement was released by Vincent Dailey, of the Democratic State campaign headquarters.

The complete statement follows:

"Thirty-one years ago I was elected chairman of the Democratic town committee in Stony Point, Rockland County, N. Y., and down through the years I have served as chairman of my county committee, chairman of my State committee, and I am still serving as chairman of the Democratic State Committee of New York.

Praises Workers' Devotion

"It was my great honor to serve as chairman of the Democratic National Committee during the two great campaigns of 1932 and 1936. I deeply appreciate the honors that have been paid me by my party and I shall ever be grateful to the party workers for the loyalty and devotion I have always received during my years of party activity.

"During the period outlined above I have preached party loyalty and pleaded for the success of my party.

Challenge Hurled

By William B. Ardery
Associated Press Staff Writer

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Wendell L. Willkie demanded tonight that President Roosevelt tell the people whether he (Willkie) had "falsified the record" in contending that the New Deal failed to keep pledges for a sound currency, improved world trade, lower taxes and Federal economy.

Willkie challenged the President's pledge to keep war away from the United States, saying:

"If his promise to keep us from foreign wars is no better than his promise to balance the budget, the boys are already practically on transports."

Speaking in the Convention Hall where Mr. Roosevelt was renominated for a third term, the Republican Presidential nominee was interrupted by prolonged cheering when he said:

"Recently the third-term candidate has accused me of deliberately falsifying the record. That seems to me a strange accusation. From what I have seen of the record, and I have studied it closely, any misstatement of the facts would be a

Willkie and Wife Are Struck by Eggs

Chicago, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—Wendell L. Willkie and his wife were struck tonight by eggs thrown by a middle-aged man as they prepared to board their special train. Willkie suffered a slight bruise on the temple and an egg which hit Mrs. Willkie in the back spattered on her dress.

Police seized a man they said had thrown the missiles and said he gave the name of Charles Mulrain, 56, Chicago, and carried a social security card identifying him as a WPA worker.

Roosevelt Adds Political Talk

President Leaving Today to Campaign In Philadelphia

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt yesterday added a sixth tentative speaking date to his campaign trip before leaving for Philadelphia today for his first avowedly political speech.

He told White House reporters he saw no reason to change his three-week-old forecast of the election outcome.

Asked if he had revised the prediction, sealed in a White House envelope, the President said he regarded the situation substantially the same today as when he made it. He saw no need to re-do it.

His speech in Philadelphia tonight, the first of five he has definitely scheduled, will follow a tri-state inspection tour, with a platform appearance in Wilmington, Del., inspection of the New York shipbuilding plants at Camden, N. J., and visits to the Cramp Shipbuilding yards and the Frankford arsenal in Philadelphia.

Way was opened for a sixth and as yet unscheduled political speech when the President said he would make his Brooklyn, N. Y., radio address on November 1, instead of October 30 as planned.

The October 30 radio time, he disclosed, is still being held in reserve. He said he might not want to use the radio that night himself, but thought it nice to have the time up his sleeve.

October 30 was the date originally set by the President for Constitution Hall here, tentatively shifted to Baltimore, and then withdrawn

Lewis to Take Election Stand

Silent on Whether He'll Back Willkie In Friday Broadcast

John L. Lewis, blunt-spoken C. I. O. leader, yesterday completed elaborate arrangements for a three-network radio hook-up Friday, but preserved the air of mystery surrounding his pronouncement.

Lewis is expected to voice his outstanding grievances against the New Deal's labor administration, unless in the meanwhile his demands have been met.

Whether Lewis, a one-time Republican whose White House relations have strained to the breaking point, will declare for Wendell Willkie, Lewis alone apparently knew.

The shaggy-maned C. I. O. leader's speech will follow 48 hours after the President's political speech in Philadelphia tonight. Noting this, observers here awaited the President's remarks for a possible clew to Lewis' line of action.

In answer to questions yesterday, the President told reporters he didn't have the slightest idea what Lewis would talk about. He said he received no indication at Lewis' White House visit last Thursday. Following that conference, the President told newsmen they talked only about two strike situations.

Developments contributing to the "mystery" build-up:

In New York, Mutual Broadcasting Co. officials disclosed that Willkie had reserved and then canceled the half-hour's time on the Mutual network (9 to 9:30 p. m.) now taken up by Lewis. Republican headquarters had no explanation, but it was

11 Interviewers Among 83 Named for D. C. Draft Posts

Will Fill Vacancies Left by Withdrawals Of Board Members; 72 Others to Serve As Appeals Agents and Medical Advisers

The District Commissioners yesterday announced appointments to 11 draft board vacancies and sent to the White House the names of 72 Washington men for approval as Government appeal agents and medical advisors to the classification units.

Presidential approval of the appointments—one representative of the Government and two physicians to serve with each board—is expected today.

Those named as substitutes for 11 members who were forced to withdraw and the boards which they are to serve, are: Dr. Hugh Gray, of 2317 M Street Northwest, board No. 8; James D. Hayes, University Club, No. 9; Edward Burkholder, 1315 K Street Northwest, No. 13; Percy Brady, 445 Seventh Street Southeast; No. 14; Joseph P. Burke, 425 Seventh Street Southwest; No. 14; Ordway W. As local boards continued to number registration cards, with posting of the serial numbers not expected before the week-end, selective service headquarters rushed plans for the national lottery, October 29.

Morris, reserve officer who planned the 1917 drawing, Monday will begin training three crews of 30 volunteers each, who will draw the long series of numbers over a period of from 12 to 15 hours, after starting at noon, after Secretary Stimson has drawn the first. The Gallup Poll

Popular Vote Augurs Close Elector Race

State Distribution May Help Willkie

By Dr. George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 22.—If the present trend toward Wendell Willkie continues, there is a chance that the 1940 election may duplicate the Harrison-Cleveland race of 1888 when the candidate with the greatest number of popular votes actually lost the election in the electoral college.

In politics the trend is all important. If Wendell Willkie had not stopped the Roosevelt trend which institute polls reported during September and early October, Roosevelt would obviously be winning by a landslide of electoral votes. But today the trend is moving the other way—toward Willkie—and unless the Roosevelt forces stop the Willkie trend, the campaign may end in the closest race since 1916.

The halting and reversal of Roosevelt's trend took place, Institute polls show, in early October.

	Roosevelt	Willkie
Aug. 4 Survey	51%	49%
Aug. 25	51	49
Sept. 20	55	45
Oct. 6	56	44
Oct. 18	55	45

The speeches which the President is making this week and next may, of course, stop and even reverse the Willkie trend.

The present race illustrates again the fact that the popular vote is a far better index of the basic political strength of a candidate than the electoral vote.

In the course of gaining five points in popular vote between August 25 and October 6, Roosevelt virtually doubled his electoral vote score, rising from 247

Gen. Reckord Fears Guard Is 'on Skids'

Accuses War Dept. Of Not Providing For Its Continuance

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Deep concern for the future of the National Guard, a matter he charged has not been "thought through" by the War Department, was expressed yesterday by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding the Twenty-ninth Division, before the conference of the National Guard Association of the United States at the Washington Hotel.

As life insurance for the Guard, Reckord proposed increasing its peacetime efficiency, organization of camps to give selected men six months' training before placing them in the ranks of the Guard, ending voluntary enlistment in the Guard and establishment of a system of compulsory military service under which all young men are called up when they reach a specified age. The association concurred unanimously in his conclusions.

"Assuming we are going to be returned from Federal service in a year—which I doubt very much—the men of each National Guard division will have completed a year's training but there still will be 8,000 or 9,000 drafted men who have completed only 9 or 10 months. The division will go back, leaving those drafted men with nobody to continue the remainder of their year's training. It won't work.

"This important matter hasn't yet been thought through by the authorities in the War Department to determine what will be done at the end of this year. It almost makes you think they don't expect us to come back at the end of the year's training."

Making his report as chairman of the association's legislative committee, Gen. Reckord flatly declared his belief that the Guard would be retained in service beyond the year now specified by law. When the

Wanted: Hostesses to Brighten Life at Training Camps

The Army, in a move to soften the rigors of military life by the presence of the gentler sex, yesterday offered jobs as hostesses at military cantonments to American women, aged 25 to 50.

Qualifications for the employment of hostesses at service clubs were announced by the War Department and it was said that local commanding officers may select the applicants subject to appointment by corps area commanders.

The ladies who will bring that feminine touch to the Army camps, arrange dances and other social functions for the soldiers, and look after their visiting mothers and sweethearts, must be competent managers and have had experience as a hostess or in similar work, it was made plain.

Chief hostesses, it was said, must be 30 to 50 years old, be high school graduates or have the educational equivalent, and have served three years as a hostess or in a like post. They will be paid $2,100 a year and must be qualified to supervise a service club, including the running of a cafeteria and guest house, and conduct social and recreational activities for the soldiers.

Junior hostesses must be 25 to 45 years old and have a high school education and at least one year's experience in such work. They will be paid $1,620 a year.

Army Takes Over 110 Planes Built For Sweden, Despite Formal Protest

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt, by executive order, late yesterday set up a special Government board empowered to require industry to produce national defense materials ahead of prior private orders.

At the same time, the Army, over the formal protests of the Swedish government, took over 110 warplanes built in the United States for the Swedish air force.

Acting under a recent act of Congress granting discretionary power to require industry to produce materials for the Army and Navy ahead of private or export orders, the President named a national defense priorities board and an administrator of priorities.

Nelson Made Administrator

Three members of the Defense Advisory Commission, William S. Knudsen, Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., and Leon Henderson, make up the priorities board, while Donald M. Nelson, coordinator of purchasing for the Defense Commission, was named administrator of priorities.

The Presidential order indicated that this invocation of unprecedented peacetime power over industry was taken at the instance of the National Defense Council—composed of the Cabinet and the six members of the Defense Advisory Commission. It was recited that the council had established the priorities board and that Mr. Roosevelt had approved their action.

Regulations will be established, the order said, governing the enforcement of the priorities, which will apply to contracts already placed as well as future orders.

Voluntary Preference

Later, Nelson issued a statement emphasizing that the establishment of the new priorities administration he will head "does not mean that a system of mandatory priorities on all national defense contracts will be instituted immediately."

He said it was his intention to continue the "system of voluntary preference ratings now applied to certain defense contracts." The Defense Advisory Commission recommended the move, Nelson said, because it "anticipated an increasing demand for Governmental assistance to assure the prompt delivery of items required for the defense program."

"The setting up at present of adequate machinery for handling the priority question will be an impor-

British Buying Agents Lease Big D. C. Apartment

One of Washington's most palatial apartment houses—the edifice at 1785 Massachusetts Avenue Northwest—has been rented by Great Britain. The British Purchasing Commission has leased the entire building and will take possession in two or three weeks.

Its high-ceilinged Regency suites have been occupied by Andrew Mellon and other notables. It stands just off Dupont Circle and has been the scene of some of the Capital's most glittering social events.

Three of its seven suites are still occupied, but the tenants will move. It is understood the commission's main offices, now in New York, will be moved to the building. The Washington offices now occupy a floor of the Willard Hotel.

tant aid in preventing industrial confusion, particularly as the program broadens," he added.

The War Department announced it had requisitioned 60 pursuit and 50 light bombing planes manufactured by the Republic Aviation Corporation, Farmingdale, Long Island, for Sweden, and said to be still at the aircraft plant. Action was taken under an act of Congress of October 10, 1940, and an executive order of five days later, granting power to take over materials ordered by foreign purchasers that are required for national defense.

"Urgently Needed"

Secretary of State Hull simultaneously made public a note answering Swedish protests to the refusal of export licenses for the planes and their requisitioning by the Army, which declared the planes "are urgently needed by the armed forces of this country for their own use."

Both the War and State announcements said the action was decided upon after unsuccessful efforts were made with Sweden to purchase the planes.

Both the law and the executive order giving the Government power to force priorities for defense orders are stated in general terms and grant broad authority. The act permits products on order for a private or export purchaser to be taken over with payment of fair compensation, and would permit the Government to judge between foreign purchasers in demanding or not demanding priority for our Army and Navy contracts.

Export License Revoked

The planes taken over by the Army are part of an order of 131 placed with the Republic Aviation Corporation by Sweden a year ago. Twenty-one of the craft were delivered last spring, while the rest are stored or are nearing completion. In addition, Sweden has 150 Vultee pursuit planes on order, none of which are yet completed. Nothing was said yesterday as to the disposition of these latter planes.

There have been reports that England, Canada and China have been seeking to purchase the Swedish planes, ever since the original exports licenses were revoked by the State Department. Sweden, wanting the planes itself and under pressure of Germany, is understood to have objected strenuously to any diversion of the craft, especially to Britain.

Aviation circles here, however, heard that the Army might turn over some of its Republic P-35 pursuit planes—which are similar to the EP-1 craft ordered by Sweden—when it received the latter. The War Department announcement of the requisitioning of planes said they are "urgently needed for advanced training purposes."

Meanwhile, French Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye, after a conference with Secretary Hull, denied reports that a number of American Army and Navy planes had been flown to the French West Indies Island of Martinique, where about 100 American-made planes destined for France have been held since that nation's surrender to Germany.

In another development, War Department officials disclosed that the Army was negotiating with the United States Lines for the purchase of the liner President Roosevelt for use as an Army transport.

Diplomats 'Out Playing Politics,' Senator Holt Says

An attack on "the wholesale use" of foreign service officers to "whip up hysteria" for "political purposes" was launched yesterday by Senator Holt, lame-duck Democrat from West Virginia.

Senator Holt delivered his broadside less than 24 hours after William C. Bullitt, American Ambassador to France, had warned in a radio speech that the United States could not escape war if Great Britain were defeated.

Charging that $18,000-a-year ambassadors "are out playing politics," Senator Holt specifically named Bullit, Anthony J. Biddle, jr., Ambassador to Poland, and Mrs. Florence J. Harriman, Minister to Norway.

"The slogan seems to be," said Senator Holt, "Scare the people enough so they will vote with us."

N. Y. State Polls To Stay Open Late

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP).—Unprecedented heavy New York registration for the November 5 general election today brought a three-hour lengthening of the period polls will be open.

Meeting in special one-day session, the State legislature unanimously agreed voting will be permitted from 6 a. m. (E. S. T.) until 9 p. m. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman immediately signed the legislation.

The legislators also approved bills to permit belated registration of national guardsmen recently called into Federal service; increase from 800 to 950 the number of voters using a voting machine; provide extra machines in heavy election districts, and increase compensation of election workers.

Brief Sketches of New Draft Examiners

Eleven Men Will Fill Vacancies Left By Withdrawals

President Roosevelt yesterday received the nominations of 11 Washington men as replacements for Washingtonians, originally named to local draft boards, who were unable to serve. The Capital selection machinery now is primed for the national lottery, October 29. Biographical sketches of the new members follow:

Board No. 9 Gets An Experienced Man

New member of local board No. 9 is a 44-year-old lawyer wise in the ways of war—and draft boards.

James D. Hayes was born in Fort Wayne, Ind., was educated at Notre Dame University, and shortly after his graduation served on a World War board at the age of 21. He served overseas as a lieutenant in the infantry and chemical warfare service.

HAYES

Hayes returned to this city in 1919 as an attorney with the United States War Risk Insurance Bureau. He is now assistant chief of the Veterans Administration insurance division and a member of the American and Federal Bar Associations, the Army-Navy Club, American Legion and 40 and 8, and the niversity Club, where he makes his home.

Burkholder Accustomed To Public Relations

Edward Burkholder, prominent in fraternal circles, and a resident of Washington for 50 years, will examine questionnaires in the thirteenth area.

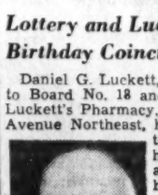
BURKHOLDER

The board member, 74, did public relations work for the Forest Service and the Department of Commerce until his retirement eight years ago. Since that time he has edited the Almas Alibi, local Shriners' publication.

Burkholder, who lives at Almas Temple, 1315 K Street Northwest, is past master of National Lodge, No. 12; past high priest of Columbia Chapter, No. 2; past master of Adoniram Council; past grand master of the Grand Council of Royal and Select Masters, among other Masonic offices.

Lottery and Luckett's Birthday Coincide

Daniel G. Luckett, latest addition to Board No. 18 and proprietor of Luckett's Pharmacy, 1130 Maryland Avenue Northeast, has the distinction this year of having a national lottery fall on his birthday.



LUCKETT

Luckett, who says he will celebrate the twenty-ninth by going to work as usual, is a native Washingtonian and the son of a native Capital man. A graduate of the National College of Pharmacy, he served with the United States Public Health Service during the World War. He is a member of the Northeast Citizens Association.

Brady, of Board 14, Has 2 Draftable Sons

Percy C. Brady, a banker with two draft-age sons, was one of two new members appointed to Board No. 14.

BRADY

A native of Prince Georges County, Md., Brady moved here in 1911 to enter the banking field as a messenger. He became assistant treasurer, his present post, of the southwest branch of the American Security & Trust Co. in 1920.

to 499. By the same token, the slightest shift the other way has added a substantial bloc of electoral votes to Willkie's side. His gain of 1 per cent in popular vote added no fewer than 85 electoral votes to the Republican score.

While a popular vote of 55 per cent for Roosevelt may sound to the average layman like a comfortable margin, political experts will recognize that it actually leaves no great leeway for the Democrats.

The odd but highly important political fact is that, in view of the political composition of certain States, Roosevelt cannot win the election without carrying about 52 per cent of the popular vote. The national vote must be at or near that figure before the key States would normally show any margin over 50 per cent for Roosevelt.

The reason is, of course, that the Democrats pile up a greater popular vote in the South than they need to carry the electoral votes of that section. With the surplus majority in the South figured in, a vote of 52 per cent for Roosevelt in the entire Nation is normally the equivalent of only about 50 per cent in the key States.

Roosevelt's present strength of 55 per cent is thus only three points above the 52 per cent he needs to win. Can Willkie close the gap?

Another oddity of the campaign is that at any time between August and the past week—a period when Roosevelt's electoral votes nearly doubled—a shift of less than one million votes would have changed enough electoral votes to put Willkie ahead.

Moreover, it would be perfectly possible for Roosevelt to beat Willkie in popular votes and yet lose the election in the electoral college if key States with numerous electoral votes went for Willkie.

In 1888, for example, Grover Cleveland had a plurality of 100,000 popular votes nationally, yet Benjamin Harrison ran ahead in electoral votes, 233 to 168, and was elected.

The next complete State-by-State Institute report, to be published Sunday, Oct. 27, will shed light on many knotty questions. It will show whether the Willkie trend has continued. It will show what is happening in the key States, both as to popular votes and electoral votes. It will not, however, be the final Institute report on the election. There will be at least two more reports before the election.

WPA Penalizes 39; Shirked to Hear Willkie

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP). Thirty-nine WPA laborers were penalized today for leaving their jobs "without permission" to hear Wendell L. Willkie speak here October 14, Schenectady County WPA Supervisor Denis C. Dempsey said.

The men lost one-half hour's pay each and were suspended for two days, Dempsey asserted. They were working on projects near Union Station, where the Republican Presidential nominee spoke.

AMATUCCI

Born in Naples, Italy, Amatucci came to the United States in 1915, moving here five years later after studying at Salem, Mass., schools.

The draft official is prominent in neighborhood activities. He is a member of the Seventh Street Businessmen's Association and of the Sligo Park Citizens Association. He has two sons, 19 and 17, not yet old enough for military training.

4,000,000, a Record, Register in California

Sacramento, Calif., Oct. 22 (AP). California's registration for the November general election passed the 4,000,000 mark for the first time in its history, Secretary of State Paul Peek announced today.

Peek said the official registration included 2,419,625 Democrats and 1,458,373 Republicans.

The registration was 440,979 greater than for the special election in 1939 and an increase of 269,693 over the August primary registration.

The Gallup Poll

53% Would Favor Willkie Over Roosevelt If There Were No War, Survey Indicates

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 22.—Striking evidence of the effect which the war in Europe is having on the political campaign is revealed in a Nation-wide survey just completed by the Institute.

This study indicates that Wendell Willkie would be running ahead of President Roosevelt in popular votes if there were no war, and would be leading in all sections except the solid South, with a consequent defeat of the President in the electoral college. The conclusion seems inescapable that, if Roosevelt wins, it will be because of the conflict abroad and not from any blanket public indorsement of the New Deal per se.

Phrasing of Questions

To try to measure the effect of the war, the Institute asked a Nation-wide cross-section of voters two questions.

The first was how they were actually planning to vote today. The second asked how they would vote if there were no war in Europe.

The answers to the first question, as reported last week, showed a substantial majority for Roosevelt. The answers to the second indicate that Roosevelt would be at least 8 percentage points weaker in popular votes if there were no war.

HOW CANDIDATES ACTUALLY STAND TODAY (October 18 Poll)

Roosevelt	55%
Willkie	45

HOW CANDIDATES WOULD STAND IF THERE WERE NO WAR

"If there were no war in Europe today, which Presidential candidate would you vote for, Roosevelt or Willkie?"

Willkie	53%
Roosevelt	47

The undecided vote on the above question was 8 per cent, as compared to 9 per cent on the other question.

War Changed Attitude

President Roosevelt, it is true, has said that if there were no war crises abroad, he would not have sought reelection for a third term. Indeed, the Institute's studies in the summer of 1939, before war broke out, indicate that he would have been badly defeated if an election had been held at that time, for only 40 per cent of voters said they were for a third term.

When war came, third term sentiment jumped to 47 per cent, and when France was invaded last spring, it increased to 57 per cent, or just a little higher than the President's popular strength at present.

Roosevelt Called 'World Democracy Symbol' by Walker

Cleveland, Oct. 22 (AP).—Postmaster General Frank C. Walker pleaded tonight at a political rally for reelection of President Roosevelt who, he said, "has become the living symbol of world democracy."

"Over the years I feel that I have come to know Franklin D. Roosevelt," Walker said. "I know he is so human, so tolerant, so understanding, so sympathetic. I know he has no hatred in his heart, no ambition for self.

"Today they say he is ambitious—and he is ambitions—not for special privilege but for the well-being and peace of 130,000,000 Americans.

"Today they talk of his selfishness—and he is selfish—but only for the hard-won rights of our people.

"I know our President wants peace. Have we so soon forgotten that in April of 1939 he sent forth a message of peace and good will contemplated to bring all of Europe's great nations to the council table?"

estimates set the number of serial numerals to be drawn from the historic goldfish bowl at more than 7,500.

The details of the process are as follows: As each number is drawn a speed camera will photograph it on a strip of miniature film in the order in which it is drawn in the departmental auditorium. The exact time of the drawing will be shown in the picture.

Each number will be fastened to a gummed sheet of cardboard, part of a permanent master record of the order numbers. Simultaneously each number will be announced over a public address system inside and outside the hall and will be chalked up on a blackboard in the auditorium.

As a final step to prevent error in distribution of the fateful numbers, the master records will be photographed and printing plates made from the photographs. From these will be made the printed copies to be distributed to 6,500 local boards.

Selective service headquarters also laid tentative plans for a large-scale patriotic parade and celebration here the night before the drawing.

Town's Registration Outruns Census Total

White Plains, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP). The township of Somers, with a 1940 Federal census population of 2,401, has turned in a record-breaking election registration of 2,470, an increase of 20 per cent over 1936.

Leaders attributed the rise to an increase in population since the census was taken last April.

Nazis Center Raids On Western Ports

Hammer Liverpool As London Reports Light Air Activity

By the Associated Press

London (Wednesday), Oct. 23.—A dead gray haze and an alert fighter squadron which routed a big formation of German warplanes over the southeast coast combined last night to save London from all but mere "flea-bite attacks" and gave the city one of its lightest nights since the beginning of the long air siege.

The nightly alarm came just after dusk and by midnight the all-clear had sounded. It was but a brief period of quiet, however, for in the early morning the Nazis appeared yet again to renew the assault.

But this second raid also was short and no bombs were heard.

Liverpool Main Target

[In the forty-sixth day of the battle for Britain it was Liverpool and not London that was being pounded, the New York Times said.

[Details of these raids in the west were plentiful but they are not for export, said the Times. It is clear that the raids are being carried out on a scale which indicates that the Germans are concentrating on Liverpool, Glasgow and Bristol, but the effect of the raids on the port installations which unload war materials from the United States there is vague.

[As a matter of fact foreign correspondents are not allowed even to mention specific ports attacked. Liverpool can be mentioned because the British are convinced the Germans know where they are when they get over the Mersey, but officials here are not very sure that Nazi pilots know when they are over the Clyde or the Bristol Channel.]

British Lose Six Planes

Four Nazi planes were unofficially reported to have been downed in the great evening battle over the Kentish cliffs, but the night official communique mentioned only three destroyed against British losses of six. The southeast coast engagement involved more than a hundred planes, according to the estimates of ground watchers.

The attacking force included a formation of German bombers escorted by numerous Messerschmitt fighter-bombers, and was split quickly into many small and struggling units which were declared to have fled.

Other Nazis were over the northwest coast. From one town in the southeast came reports that raiders had machine-gunned a bus.

The night's light attack followed one of the quietest days London had seen in some time.

During the day there had been only two alarms here—both in the afternoon—and in the main part of the city, at least, not a single bomb was reported dropped.

As nearly always, the southeast coast was not so fortunate. A town in that area was dive-bombed and there were several casualties.

Farmers to Meet In Frederick Area

Frederick, Md., Oct. 22.—"98,925 Farmers Run This Business," is the subject of an address to be delivered by Dr. T. K. Wolfe, Richmond, Va., an official of Southern States Cooperative, at a public meeting of farmers of this area in the Armory Thursday night. The meeting is sponsored by Southern States Frederick Petroleum Cooperative and nearby Southern States agencies. S. W. Epes, of Fairfax, Va., will tell about "Services You May Expect of Your Cooperative."

L. O. Brumback, Winchester, Va., district manager, will conduct a social program after the meeting. The entertainment will include contests with prizes, also music and refreshments.

Chairmen of committees in charge of arrangements are Lester C. Fisher, of Thurmont; Earl Remsberg, of Buckeystown; Mrs. Charles Oland, of Adamstown; Mr. Rogers and Mr. Utterback.

Big Gun Construction Rarely Shows Flaws

Cleveland, Oct. 22 (AP).—American 16-inch guns are now whittled out of million-pound ingots almost invariably without flaws, reported Francis B. Foley, trustee of the American Society for Metal, meeting here today.

Artillery barrels are machined from huge ingots of steel in much the same way a square brick might be whittled round, he explained. The bore then must be machined cut to receive its wear-resisting lining.

"It was not infrequent during 1917 to have practically completed a gigantic gun, only to find a flaw developed in the steel's structure," Foley said. "In such cases the guns were necessarily discarded."

William S. Knudsen, commissioner in charge of the production department of the National Defense Advisory Commission, yesterday announced the appointment of Merrill C. Meigs, of Chicago, to head the aircraft division under Mr. Knudsen's direction.

Mr. Meigs, publisher of the Chicago Herald and American and a flier prominent in aviation circles, will fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Dr. George J. Mead, former United Aircraft executive, who asked to be relieved in order that he might give his time to research in his capacity as a member of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

Smith Says Democrats Dug Grave at Chicago

Boston, Oct. 22 (U.P.).—The Democratic convention in Chicago was the "funeral service" of the Democratic Party, Alfred E. Smith said in a letter read tonight at a meeting of women Democrats supporting Wendell L. Willkie.

"When a so-called Democratic convention will hiss and boo Senator Glass, the 82-year-old Democrat who has given the best years of his life to the service of his country, we might as well pull down the shades on the old time Democratic clubhouses," the one time presidential candidate wrote.

U. S. Workers' Cases May Set Draft Exemption Standards

By Edward Ryan

Government office chiefs yesterday were planning ways to make the Federal executive agencies set the pace for private industry in deciding what employes should be recommended for exemption from military service.

The whole problem of deciding what employes should leave for selective service training and what employes should be kept on their jobs has been tossed to the personnel directors in the Government agencies.

Their concern now is to find a standard policy for employe deferment that will be an example to private employers, and as part of this assignment to work out standard methods for filling the gaps in their organizations that may be left when employes go into uniform.

Boards to Decide

Final decisions on whether an individual Government worker will go into military training will be in the hands of the local draft boards, the same as for workers in private industry or for the unemployed. All the agency can do for each employe that is called is to advise the boards whether he and his work are believed important enough to justify his deferment.

Under the selective service regulations, Government employes defined as "necessary for their civilian jobs" are those who cannot be replaced satisfactorily because of a shortage of persons with their qualifications and whose removal would cause "material loss of effectiveness" to the Government.

In applying this test, the Federal personnel men are preparing to examine first the job, and second the man holding it, before they recommend his deferment.

In looking over the job the plan would be to measure the importance of getting it done against the importance of contributing the jobholder to the military defense program. In sizing up the man, the test will be how necessary is he individually to the job and how well he is handling it.

Limited to 6 Months

The selective service regulations limit these job deferments to six-month periods, which may be lengthened by renewal. For some Government employes partial deferments might be sought, for 30 or 60-day periods, when the job is essential, the jobholder highly skilled, but where a successor can be found and broken in to the new work in a short time. Similar short-time deferments might be sought for employes working on special projects which they can finish quickly.

One problem still up to the personnel men is the need for uniformity in applying the selective service tests when they make their deferment recommendations. Without standard tests, one agency might be recommending that no employes be deferred because of their jobs, another agency might urge deferment for nearly all of its eligible workers.

Part of the answer to this problem is being found in the fact that the personnel men have been talking it over with each other, and with representatives of the Selective Service Headquarters, at their Personnel Council meetings. More of the answer, officials said, is likely to come to them from the White House this week.

The personnel men, through their Council on Personnel Administration, had recommended to the White House that President Roosevelt outline the deferment policy for employes through an executive order. The idea of the executive order, it was understood, was turned down in favor of working out the uniform policy around the conference table. Final touches are expected to be put on the formal policy, with the help of either a White House aide or selective service official at tomorrow's council meeting.

Few Are Affected

In mapping out the deferment job, officials said, the problem was found to be smaller than was at first expected. In one agency, with about 12,000 employes, a survey showed that 25 per cent of the workers were men in the registration age limits. Of these about half were married. Applying estimates to the remainder, it was found that only about 100 employes of the 12,000 would likely be called in the first year. Other agencies are conducting similar studies.

Selective service officials said they had not estimated the total number of Government employes who could expect to be called for training in the first year. Civil Service estimates were that about 260,000 of the Government's more than 1,000,000 civilian employes, including 25,000 in Washington, had been subject to registration.

After the deferment policy is worked out, a next step is likely to be development of standard ways for filling the vacancies left by employes who leave for their year of military training, officials said. This problem is still in the discussion stage, but one plan being studied is to promote employes from within an agency to fill vacancies there.

The Selective Service Act insures that Government workers who leave for training will get their old jobs, or new jobs at the same pay grade, when they return. For employes promoted to take their places while they are gone, however, the act provides no insurance. Part of the replacement policy, it was said, might be to make sure that employes who were promoted to fill draft vacancies would be warned in advance that the promotion was temporary, without a complete guarantee that their own old jobs would be returned to them when the original jobholder came back from military service. While the promoted employes would be advised they were taking a gamble in accepting promotion on a temporary basis, they would be assured, too, that every effort would be made to find other places for them after the temporray assignment ended.

Nazis Claim Hits on Plane, Arms Works

Bomb-Laden Fighters Strike at Birmingham, London, Other Centers

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Oct. 22.—Fast, bomb-laden fighter planes raided London, Liverpool, Birmingham and other important British centers last night and left huge fires which still were blazing in London this morning, German sources reported tonight.

The German high command declared the raids were "retaliatory," but reported that British night raiders caused no military damage in attacks on Germany and German-occupied territory.

The high command said Nazi plane crews inflicted particularly heavy damage on airplane works in Leyland, north of Liverpool, and two armament works. Other targets were troop concentrations, airports, warehouses and port facilities.

D. N. B., official German news agency, said that fliers attacking south England and approaching London this morning saw fires in the capital still burning after the forty-fifth overnight assault last night.

(A German radio broadcast heard in New York by N. B. C. said Nazi bombers have destroyed the printing plants and editorial offices of the Daily Sketch, the Daily Mail, the Sunday Times and the News Chronicle, all of London, as well as a number of provincial newspapers.)

(The radio announced railroad traffic served by the important English junctions of Deal and Bexhill had been "paralyzed to a large extent" by bomb hits. Railway tracks and warehouses also were damaged and fired at Folkestone, the report said.)

As the air war raged, German railroads prepared to remove children from Berlin to other parts of the Reich, especially the eastern provinces.

The railroads will run 75 special trains in the next nine days. A large part of the children taken from British-bombed Berlin will be sent to the Warthe River district in East Prussia and nearby former Polish territory.

In an early report on today's fighting, German sources credited Maj. Werner Moelders, Nazi ace, with bagging three British pursuit planes in a battle between six German and five British fighters. This raised his total to 51. (Of these, 14 were shot down in Spain's civil war.)

D. N. B. said one of the British cruisers which fought a German destroyer unit last Thursday was torpedoed and so badly damaged that it would probably be out of action "for a long time."

(The British admiralty said last week "no damage in fact was sustained by any of our ships" in the encounter, which occurred 100 miles southwest of Land's End.)

British Put Sea Losses At Half of Nazi Claims

London, Oct. 22 (AP).—British, Allied and neutral merchant shipping losses for the week ended October 14 totaled 63,265 tons, compared with Germany's claim to have sunk 122,041 tons, the Admiralty said today.

Losses listed by the Admiralty for that week were: British, seven ships, 32,370 tons; Allied, three ships, 17,537 tons; and neutral, three ships, 13,358 tons.

Chamberlain Cuts Last Tie to Downing Street

No. 10 is the residence of the prime minister and No. 11 that of the chancellor of the exchequer, which post Chamberlain held before becoming prime minister in 1937.

His belongings had remained at No. 10 after Winston Churchill succeeded him as head of the government.

Defense Sidelights

Senate, Justice Department Will Probe Price 'Chiseling'

By the Associated Press

A broad investigation of alleged "price chiseling" on materials for the defense construction program was announced yesterday.

WHEELER

Chairman Wheeler (Democrat) of Montana, disclosed that a Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee, with the cooperation of the National Defense Commission and the Department of Justice, would scrutinize the price field carefully and also inquire into the reasons for any "bottlenecks" that might develop to hamper the defense program.

"This investigation will be broad enough to go into any phase of the defense program, but particular attention will be paid to reports that extortionate prices have been charged to the Government in some instances," the Montana Senator told reporters.

Wheeler mentioned as a likely subject of investigation what he said were recent increases in the price of lumber, boostnig not only the cost of the Government's large defense housing program but affecting private construction work as well.

Knox Speaks Aboard Naval Training Ship

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox today told a battalion of midshipmen that "my daily prayer is that the entire Nation will have found itself in time, will harden itself and make itself safe from attack."

Knox spoke aboard the training ship Illinois during an inspection tour of naval defenses in the metropolitan area.

At Bayonne, N. J., he inspected the Elco Naval Boat Division of the Electric Boat Co. and went for a spin in the PT-10, first of an order of 23 speedy torpedo boats constructed for the United States Navy.

Knox later spoke of the vessel as a "clever little boat which will be of great use in harbor defense."

Manufacturers Map Defense Labor Policy

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—A broad and comprehensive labor policy to guide employers during the national rearmament program will be considered at an early meeting of directors of the National Association of Manufacturers, it was announced today.

Prepared by a subcommittee of the association's unemployment relations committee after weeks of study, recommendations have been presented to the membership for consideration.

Among the recommendations were:

Companies should determine at once which of their employes are aliens; all new employes should be American citizens if they are qualified to do the work and are available; alien employes should be encouraged to become citizens, but should not be discharged if they refuse; measures to protect against espionage should be checked and brought up to date; companies should not claim deferment from the draft of employes who can be replaced without dislocation of operations; drafted employes should obtain special recognition where possible, and new workers employed during the draft period should understand their employment is on a temporary basis.

Haven in Eire Reported Offered to British Refugees

By the Associated Press

London (Wednesday), Oct. 23.—Britain is negotiating for a large-scale exodus of women and children from London and other bomb-torn areas to Irish soil after suspension of evacuations to the United States and Canada, it was revealed last night.

Prime Minister De Valera of neutral Eire, was said to have taken the initiative in the plan immediately after the torpedoing a month ago of the British refugee liner City of Benares, with the loss of more than 250 lives.

Dublin authorities were said to have estimated that homes can be found in the 26 counties of Eire for 25,000 British women and children before Christmas.

At the same time, however, the government sought to speed up evacuations from the most heavily bombed areas of London, including the East End tenement districts, by paying the railroad fares and costs of boarding mothers and children in the country.

Kennedy Leaves London; Return Not Expected

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

London, Oct. 22.—Joseph P. Kennedy, American Ambassador to the Court of St. James's, left London today on the first lap of a journey home. He is not expected to return to his post.

Discussing Kennedy's departure, the Times of London said editorially this morning, "there will be general regret if there is substance in the belief that the American Ambassador, who is leaving soon for consultation in Washington, may not return to this particular post . . . His genial and stimulating presence would be sadly missed in England.

Kennedy, the Times continued, "has never forgotten that he is first and foremost an American, the spokesman for American ideas and policies and only, in the second place, an interpreter of England to America. For this very reason he will carry conviction now when he speaks to his countrymen and tells them of the resolution with which we face the future; and we, for our part, knowing him to be a true American, shall look forward to greeting him again in England before long, whether he returns as Ambassador or as a private and most welcome visitor."

Food Outlook Better, Commons Informed

London, Oct. 22 (AP).—R. S. Hudson, minister of agriculture, told the House of Commons today Britain's food position had been rapidly improving and that British agriculture was "in a well balanced condition to meet the demands which the next year's campaign will make."

Total production of foodstuffs and reserves of meat on the hoof had been materially increased, he declared.

The minister, nevertheless, said a rigid economy was necessary because "I cannot foretell the shipping position this winter."

Axis Might Find France Poor Ally

Advantage Gained In Acquiring Navy Offset by Difficulties

By John Evans
Associated Press Chief of Foreign Service

Hitler may get France as his ally to fight England, but if he does there's a fair chance he will wish he hadn't.

It still is someone's secret exactly what Germany has in mind about conquered France, but British Prime Minister Churchill showed Monday he thought France might be tempted to join the Axis. He asked directly of all Frenchmen that "if you cannot help us, at least you will not hinder us."

Hitler can offer attractive terms to aged Marshal Petain if Petain is satisfied Hitler will win the war. He can promise France that her old empire shall remain almost as it was, Germany taking only the disputed Alsace-Lorraine and the colonies which France took from Germany after the last war. This would be the more tempting because Petain might think France would fare equally well if England should win.

The stake:

1. France as an Axis ally could swing into action what is left of her fleet. The British damaged some of her warships and others are immobilized under British control, but the remainder would trouble England.

There Are Difficulties, Too

2. The French colonies throughout the world might follow the mother country. The psychological influence might be to give Germany, Italy and Japan friendly and useful access to air, land and sea bases around the world.

The difficulties:

1. France is a beaten, disorganized nation that would need food for the body and inspiration for the soul. Germany wouldn't be eager to supply much food and it would be far from easy to make 40,000,000 Frechmen gladly go to war after they broke their hearts in a surrender to get peace.

2. France might be pushed back into the war, but Flanders Fields would sprout quickly a great crop of hate for the German conqueror. Probably many despairing people would think joining Germany better than resisting her pressure, but it is easy to imagine the silent, sullen revolt of millions of families born of soldiers who feared or hated the German enemy of two wars.

Arsenal Is Empty

The empty arsenal:

France is a disarmed army, a wrecked industry, a battered battlefield and a blighted farm.

France is cut in two. Marshal Petain rules the unoccupied area which grows too little food for itself, makes few of the things it needs and is shell-shocked from war and its bitter aftermath.

Occupied France governs herself as best she may but with Germans at the top, commanding as is customary in conquest. This is the rich part of France, rich in fine food, and wine, full of factories with abundant coal and skilled workers.

When the French collapsed, mass flight scattered those who made the country's wealth. Many have been brought back, but the old machine isn't going smoothly as it once did. Probably Germany requisitioned tools and machinery. Even if she paid for them, the result is the same. Even if factories were going full tilt there is little market inside the British blockade for the luxurious things the French made. A Paris bonnet is a bit fragile in this world of tin hats.

Germany already holds French ports that threaten England and she has all the nothern section for air fields. She has whatever French war material that survived the wreck. She controls the railroads. She rules the land.

Temper Their Realism

Hitler may give France a "good" peace, in a material way, and the realistic Frenchman may like that.

Hitler may have better reasons than are apparent for his desire to have France fight England.

Frenchmen, on the other hand, temper their realism with sentiment. For centuries they have been warriors, but they believe they love peace. For generations Germany has been the enemy, but many felt they might be able to get along with her. Frenchmen love to argue and they differ strongly among themselves on every subject except France. Frenchmen often have shown they love France and that deep, storied, emotional patriotism may take them a long ways toward Germany or very far away from her.

Churchill said in effect that France could have only a nuisance value as an added foe for Britain.

Even more impressive, however, was Churchill's assertion that Britain would achieve control of the air in 1941 as she now controls the sea.

"Remember what that means," he added.

What It Would Mean

And what it would mean for a France again drawn into the war cannot be doubted by Frenchmen watching or hearing of the intensifying British air fusillade along the Channel coast. It would mean that France, already crushed by Germany, would bear much of the brunt of the air battle.

posed to an offensive war on their former ally.

[Thus, it was suggested, French union with the Rome-Berlin Axis doubtless would require that Petain and Weygand step down.

[German sources said they doubted that Hitler would have received Laval unless some form of collaboration already had been arranged during Laval's recent talks with Otto Abetz, German "ambassador" to France.]

[The United Press, quoting "a diplomat representing a neutral country bordering on Germany," said Laval strongly urged acceptance of the terms but was overruled by a majority of the Vichy cabinet.]

In Rome, discussion of the possibility of peace negotiations between the Rome-Berlin Axis and France intended to enlist French aid against the British was accompanied by persistent reports that Foreign Minister Ciano would leave soon, possibly tomorrow, on a diplomatic mission.

Italy Expects to Benefit

Observers considered it a foregone conclusion that Italy would take part in any peace negotiations with France as she has made strong claims on France for Corsica, Tunisa, Nice and Djibouti.

(The German wireless, in a report broadcast under date of Istanbul, also asserted that French authorities in Syria had declared the French army there to be "completely in a position to protect Syria," possible Axis-British battlefront in the Near East.)

After the recent Hitler-Mussolini Brenner Pass conference, authorized sources here and in Rome gave out assurances that a decision had been made to hit England "in her most vital spot." This indicated the Axis would try an invasion of Britain, at long last, or seek British capitulation in the Mediterranean either by driving off or destroying the British fleet in that vital empire pathway.

Since observers long have speculated on Axis reasons for waiting so long for a landing operation, prospects for a turn into a better winter operations sector appear greater. (The British say the Germans did start an invasion embarkation on September 16, but that the troops were bombed out of their ships before they could start.)

Just now the British fleet in the Mediterranean seems eager for a shoulder-to-shoulder slugfest with Italy's main naval forces. But should the Italians' four battleships and strong lighter forces be augmented by available French naval units, the picture would be different.

Still Have Strong Forces

The French have one or more battleships under the control of the Vichy government and an undetermined number of cruisers, destroyers and submarines, despite the damage inflicted by the British off Oran last July 4, at Dakar September 24 and not counting the units which either have gone over to Britain or been neutralized at Alexandria.

(The 26,500-ton battleship Strasbourg, with some cruisers and smaller units, escaped to Toulon French Mediterranean naval base, after the Oran engagement, although the British claimed she was hit by a torpedo. There also are three cruisers and three destroyers at Dakar, some of them damaged. The Germans also say they captured the unfinished 35,000-ton battleship Clemenceau at Brest. The Dunkerque, sister-ship of the Strasbourg, was put out of action for the time being by the British at Oran; the 22,189-ton French battleship Provence was fired there, and the 22,189-ton Bretagne sunk. The crippled 35,000-ton Richelieu is in drydock at Dakar and the unfinished 35,000-ton Jean Bart is believed holed up in Morocco.)

Germany asserts she has two pocket battleships intact, the Admiral Scheer and the Deutschland, in spite of British claims of having sunk or maimed one or more. (There is no accurate information concerning the heavier units which Germany had built or building at the start of the war: The 26,000-ton Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau and the Bismarck, Tirpitz and two other 35,000-ton vessels.)

All these—put together—would be a formidable navy against Britain's. Divided between home and Mediterranean waters, she evidently has 14 capital ships left, although the Germans claim to have damaged several of them with Stuka bombs.

[Germany and Italy solemnly pledged themselves not to use surrendered French warships in the present war against Britain, under armistice terms signed by France last June 22-24.

[Following the Battle of Oran, French naval authorities turned over the one-sixth of their fleet at Alexandria to the British when the latter agreed to demilitarize the ships.

[At that time it was estimated about one-third of the French naval strength had put into British ports. Another one-third was at Oran and the remaining one-sixth as Casablanca, Morocco.]

day along the Nazi-held French coast. The most spectacular success reported in that series was the bombing of a convoy of from 12 15 German cargo ships off Dunkerque.

Ships Hit at Boulogne

A British pilot said his bombs had lifted two vessels almost out o fthe water and that one heeled over on its beam end. A tramp steamer in the outer harbor at Boulogne also was said to have been hit.

[German sources said a British bombing attack on German merchant ships in the Channel yesterday had been frustrated by heavy antiaircraft fire from merchant vessels and warships. The Nazi press reported R. A. F. raiders bombed the residential quarters of Hamburg, damaging a great number of buildings and killing or wounding an unspecified number of civilians.]

During the day the Channel theater came alive yet again in a violent artillery duel between British and German big guns, loosed first by the Nazis.

During this afternoon still another assault on German shipping was reported—this time the bombing by a single British plane of a Nazi cargo vessel of some 2,000 tons off the Hook of Holland. A direct hit was claimed.

New Hints of Offensive

Strong new hints came that a great British effort—offensive rather than merely counter-offensive—was in preparation.

Lord Croft, undersecretary of war, said in a speech to a group of film industrialists:

"The war can never be won without a military decision, east or west, or on both fronts. That is why we are building up a great army."

Earlier in the day, an authorized British spokesman said squadrons of bombers "and possibly fighters" would be put temporarily under army command when needed "for any particular operation." This would depart from precedent, since the R. A. F. has its own independent status.

The statement apparently had reference to expected large-scale fighting in the Near East.

changes."

The newspaper Yomiuri scoffed at the British reports that Britain had contracted for the Indies' gasoline, but declared, "a firmer front by Japan against Britain is now considered inevitable."

Escape Clause in Axis Pact

Shanghai (Wednesday), Oct. 23.—Informants with excellent British connections told the United Press today that the Japanese have informed British Ambassador Sir Robert L. Craigie in Tokyo that the alliance among Japan, Germany and Italy has a secret escape clause permitting each signatory to decide the conditions under which it will come to the aid of the others in event they are attacked.

The informants said the Japanese were attempting to convince Sir Robert that further British efforts to come to an agreement with Japan are not useless but they believed that so far the British are viewing the Japanese advances with considerable hesitation.

The British Embassy in China announced yesterday it was advising "nonessential" Britons to evacuate the Japanese-controlled areas of China, where about 15,000 British subjects were affected. (In London it was confirmed officially that British authorities have similarly advised British subjects in Japan.)

Italian and British Ships Battle in Red Sea

By Raymond Daniel.
Copyright by New York Times

London, Oct. 22.—The British and the Italians both told today of a naval engagement in the Red Sea. Both apparently are talking about the same battle, but reading the communiques, one never would have guessed it.

About the only place where they agreed was that the encounter took place in the Red Sea last Monday night.

The Italians said they sank six ships in a convoy and damaged a British cruiser, admitting that one of their own torpedo boats was damaged.

The official admiralty communique, issued here, gave an entirely different version, declaring that the 1,058-ton Italian destroyer Francesco Nullo was blown up in a battle with the British destroyer Kimberley which later silenced two out of three shore batteries firing at her and suffered only slight damage and three casualties.

Both the Italian and the British communiques made it clear that the action began with an attack on a British convoy. The British said Italian destroyers fired at their escorting vessels and shelled the convoy. The escort ships, it was said, opened fire and pursued the attacking destroyers. Somehow, according to the British, either because the Italians fled too fast or because of night or a fog had closed in, contact was lost for the time.

At last, however, the Kimberley regained touch at daybreak and engaged the Francesco Nullo. The action lasted 40 minutes, the admiralty said, until the Italian destroyer, badly damaged, ran ashore and was blown up by a torpedo fired from the Kimberley.

At that point, apparently, Italian shore batteries consisting of three guns, opened fire on the Kimberley, and scored one hit, damaging a steam pipe and reducing the British destroyer's speed. The Kimberley, however, managed to put two of the three guns of the shore battery out of action. Three of her crew were killed or wounded. No other ship in the convoy or escorting it was even slightly damaged, the British said.

The Admiralty also announced tonight that two British patrol vessels, formerly part of the French navy, had been sunk by Nazi light craft. There is reason to believe, according to the announcement, that some of the crew were taken prisoner.

Italians Claim Victory

By the Associated Press

Rome, Oct. 22.—Italy officially claimed today a naval victory over the British in the southern Red Sea yesterday.

The high command said fast torpedo boats made three separate attacks on a convoy of merchant ships after it was spotted by scouting planes. The battle raged from midnight until dawn a communique said, when "effective fire" from island coastal batteries "repeatedly hit and seriously damaged" a British cruiser, which presumably was helping guard the merchantmen.

The cruiser, the Italians added, later was seen stopped off the coast "in serious difficulties, while other English warships hastened to her aid."

The specific location of the battle was not given, but neutral sources concluded it must have been near a group of islands off Assab, on the Eritrean coast near the Strait of Bab el Mandeb.

Italian planes were active in raids on the British naval base at Alexandria and other objectives in Egypt, the communique said.

Italian Workmen Bombed

London, Oct. 22 (AP).—A series of low-flying attacks by British bombers on Italian working parties and transport columns along the Egyptian coast yesterday caused extensive damage, the air ministry announced tonight.

The attacks were made between Salum and Buqbuq, in the narrow wedge the Italians have thrust into Egypt, the ministry said, and a number of motor vehicles were destroyed by fire and others severely damaged.

In Italian Eritrea several raids were reported carried out by the R. A. F. on Asmara and Gura, with hits on oil tanks, workshops and other buildings which caught fire.

Two raids were made against Bahar Dar, on Lake Tana, in Italian East Africa. Three explosions were said to have resulted from bomb hits on the wharf and two large sheds there.

Cairo Under Alarm

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 22 (AP).—Cairo was held under an air-raid alarm for 30 minutes, beginning at 4:35 a. m. today. It was the third alert in two days.

The British issued the following communique today:

Egypt, Sudan, Palestine: Nothing of importance to report.

Nairobi (Kenya Colony): One of our patrols successfully attacked the enemy at Dukan. The enemy withdrew leaving five killed as well as equipment and camels.

stroyers to Britain.

Other speakers described the quickened pace of defense preparations by land and in the air, in the Nation's industries and homes.

Robert P. Patterson, assistant Secretary of War, said that "by March of 1942 we shall have an army fit to meet any challenge, backed by a flow of material that will cease only when we give the word for it to cease."

Although he acknowledged that "we are not in shape today to defend ourselves on land," he said that "by next September we shall be ready to maintain in the field a basic force equipped with the finest armament the world can produce, a force trained to the limit."

"National defense is the paramount issue in American life today," he continued. "Everything else must be subordinated to it. I am not rattling the sabre. It is not a question of going to war—war may come to us. We are trying to do in two years what Germany did in seven."

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt termed national unity "a backlog of preparedness," and expressed the hope that some day there would be "universal service" for not only armed forces, but for those who remain at home, who, she said, were "all important" in an adequate defense system.

"There must be no greed entering our lives," she declared. "Without national unity, national defense is impossible."

Sidney Hillman, member of the National Defense Advisory Committee, asserted that there would be no shortage of labor "in any defense establishment" and added that there had "not been a serious work stoppage in a single defense industry in the United States" since the appointment of the Commission by the President.

Declaring, "I believe in universal military service as a national policy," Col. William J. Donovan, World War head of the "Fighting Sixty-ninth" Regiment, added that he was "not urging that we now adopt it, and yet, this is something that we must think of for the future."

Walter Lippmann, special writer, said that "as long as Great Britain and China stand, the United States cannot be challenged and this Hemisphere cannot be attacked."

"Provided their resistance is supported effectively and our own defenses are strengthened rapidly and efficiently, the active participation of the United States in the war is not inevitable," he declared.

E. A. Baulsir To Be Buried In Glenwood

Funeral Today For Pressmen's Union Official

Services will be held at 2 p. m. today in Grace Baptist Church, Ninth Street and South Carolina Avenue Southeast, for Edward A. Baulsir, Pressmen's Union official and pioneer, who died Monday at his home, 240 Eighth Street Southeast. He was 74. Burial will follow in Glenwood Cemetery.

BAULSIR

A native of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mr. Baulsir came to Washington as a boy, and at the age of 13 entered the Bureau of Engraving and Printing as a messenger, to serve 53 years with the bureau. Before retiring in 1932, he had held the posts of surface division superintendent and numbering division assistant superintendent. He directed purchase and assembly of money printing presses.

Mr. Baulsir, a charter member of Printing Pressmen's Union No. 1, had served as president pro-tem and first vice president of the International Printing Pressmen's and Assistants Union. He was also a member of Grace Baptist Church, National Union, and Royal Arcanum.

Surviving are his wife, Artie; two sons, Percy A. and Robert L.; a daughter, Mrs. Laura A. Jones; two brothers, John V. and William V.; two sisters, Mrs. Charles Mann and Miss Minnie Baulsir, all of Washington.

Silver Spring Youth to Ferry Planes to British Combat Bases

Silver Spring (Md.) young man whose first words were "Plane, plane," is on the high seas bound for "somewhere in England" to fly the planes that have been the chief interest of his life since.

TRUMBULL

Clark L. Trumbull, jr., 25, informed his mother, Mrs. C. L. Trumbull, sr., of the Wheaton-Four Corners Road, near Wheaton, Md., in a letter received yesterday that he sailed last Thursday on a liner for England.

Trumbull is under contract with the British Overseas Airways Corporation, an auxiliary of the Royal Air Force, to serve one year in England ferrying planes from factories to the combat bases and testing new planes.

The letter was written on the boat after he boarded it and explained the young man was in first-class quarters and eating at the captain's table of a large liner, name censored. He said the trip probably would take about ten days.

Born at Fortress Monroe, Va., where his father was serving with the Coast Artillery, he came to Silver Spring, Md., with his parents when he was 5 years old. He attended Montgomery County schools, Takoma-Silver Spring High School, Central High School and Columbia Technical School. He learned to fly at College Park Airport and later was an instructor at Congressional Airport. Until five years ago he was well-known as a motorcycle racer, having broken a racing record at Daytona Beach several years before.

When asked when the son first became interested in airplanes, his mother said: "His first words were 'Plane, plane' and he has been interested in aviation ever since. He has had more than 1,000 flying hours."

Trumbull left Washington September 23 for flying tests at Roosevelt Field, N. Y., and later flew to Montreal for a short period of training on large ships.

He wrote to his mother that he found the R. A. F. instructors "fine fellows," and that he looked forward to the adventure of going across. He is an only son.

Commissioners Urged To Form Home Guard

That the District Commissioners should take immediate steps toward organizing a Home Guard to be ready to serve when the District National Guard is mustered into service, is the contention of Edgar H. Taber, adjutant general of the National Association of Regulars.

Taber, addressing members of the National Defense Post of the organization here Monday night, also declared it the duty of all former soldiers, sailors, marines and coast guard men to volunteer for Home Guard service.

Hart-to-Heart

Expert Urges Britain Take Offensive

London, Oct. 22 (AP).—Capt. B. H. Liddell Hart, military historian and strategist who was close to the war office when Leslie Hore-Belisha was war secretary, charged "muddled thinking" today in the conduct of the war and said Britain had "played repeatedly into Hitler's hands."

In a letter to the Manchester Guardian, he asserted that as a matter of "practical necessity" Britain should pursue an "offensive-defensive" strategy, and said that her policy of a waiting war had gone wrong because:

2—"Our government took a sudden decision to guarantee Poland and Rumania without first securing the assistance of Russia—the maddest reversal of a policy of appeasement and retreat that could ever have been conceived."

"By giving the public an exaggerated impression of our capacity to take the offensive," he wrote, "they inevitably fostered impatience with their own initial policy of restraint and were thus propelled toward greater recklessness. This was shown in a foolish desire to open up the war . . ."

"In that state of wishful intoxication we have played repeatedly straight into Hitler's hands. It is always folly to stir up a hornets' nest before you are adequately equipped to deal with it effectively."

Rumors, but No Invasion Fleet

Copyright by New York Times

London, Oct. 22.—A careful survey today showed that all stories of an attempted invasion or the defeat of an invasion were made from the whole cloth so far as the British know.

There have been many rumors about such an invasion, coming from here, France, Stockholm, Lisbon, and perhaps Chicago and points west.

The truth of the matter is that so far as the British know there has never been an attempt.

The British army has never seen a German soldier approaching these shores; the navy has never attacked or seen any boats headed for England. The air force in all its attacks on the so-called invasion ports, has never seen a German soldier in any barges.

If there had been an invasion attempt and it had been successfully turned back, the British would be the first to trumpet it to the world.

Atlantic Coast Distributors Convene Here

Several hundred Eastern State newspaper publishers and distributors assembled at the Mayflower Hotel yesterday for a three-day convention of the Atlantic Coast Independent Distributors Association.

Speakers at opening sessions included District Commissioner J. Russell Young, who welcomed the delegates; Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent of the London Times; Hugh C. Clegg, chief assistant to FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover, and Frank Waldrop.

The delegates were entertained at a cocktail party by Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, publisher of the Times-Herald.

Postal Employe Kills Self by Gun

A certificate of suicide was issued late yesterday by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald in the death of Thomas D. Hall, 55, of 319 Seventeenth Street Northeast, a Post-office employe.

Hall was found by his landlady, Florence Wilbur, in the basement of her home after she was awakened by a shot. She told police the man had a revolver clutched in his right hand and a wound in the right temple.

Mrs. Wilbur told detectives Hall apparently was despondent over his inability to obtain a transfer to his home town, Cassatt, S. C., where his wife lives. He left no note.

40-Hour Week Goes In Effect Tomorrow

Interstate Trade Workers Get Time And Half After That

After midnight tonight workers in most interstate industries must be paid time and a half for working longer than 40 hours a week.

October 24 is the deadline for lowering the wage law's hours ceiling from 42 hours per week to 40.

The new limit on working hours will mean either shorter hours or overtime pay for nearly 2,000,000 workers, the Wage-Hour Administration estimated yesterday.

This is the number of workers, officials said, who could be found in any week of average industrial activity working more than 40 hours without getting overtime pay at time and a half.

Many Others Affected

Approximately 700,000 more, they said, work more than 40 hours also, but are paid time and a half as a matter of practice or contract.

In the course of the year a great many more than 2,000,000 workers will be affected, especially in such seasons as the Christmas shopping rush.

Tomorrow's regulation will set the third national hours standard since the law was passed in 1938. The standard work week was 44 hours in the first year and 42 hours in the second. After tomorrow the 40-hour week becomes permanent, under the law.

Retail Employes Exempt

Not all interstate industries are affected by the change tomorrow. Railroad workers and truck and bus employes whose work affects safety operations are exempt from the hours provisions. The statute does not apply to employes of retail or service establishments.

The Wage-Hour Administration explained that time and one-half must be paid for work in excess of 40 hours for the first full workweek starting after midnight tonight. In other words, if a concern's pay-roll week overlaps tomorrow's deadline by a few days short of a week, then the 40-hour requirement will not affect that firm until start of a new workweek.

Suitland School Contractor Told To Start Work

Notice to proceed with the construction of the addition to the Suitland Elementary School was given John W. Johnston, of Washington, the successful bidder, by the Prince Georges County Board of Education following its meeting yesterday at Marlboro.

A shortage of about $5,000 needed by the board to complete the contract had been holding up the actual starting of work. Following a conference with the Board of Commissioners, it was reported that the commissioners had promised full cooperation in raising the funds.

The extra $5,000 is needed to cover architects' fees, equipment and land, Superintendent of Schools Nicholas W. Orem said.

Failure to Unite Doomed Balkans, Says Professor

Failure of the Balkan nations to arrive at a union was blamed for their present critical situation by Dr. Leonid Strakhovsky, professor of history at the University of Maryland, in a current events licture there yesterday.

Dr. Strakhovsky's talk, the second in a series of lectures for the public, was upon "The Balkans, Between the Hammer and the Anvil."

Although the problems of the Balkans nations "appear insurmountable when approached from the point of view of the post-war settlement," he said, "they can be solved very easily once these nations realize that their future depends upon their own solidarity."

News Guild Is On Way Out, Green Tells A.F.L. Rival

Chicago, Oct. 22. (AP).—William Green, addressing an organizational meeting for a national A. F. L. union of newspaper workers, declared today that the C. I. O. American Newspaper Guild "stands as an organization controlled by anti-American forces."

Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, was the principal speaker at the first conference of delegates from 20 A. F. L. newspaper locals, claiming to represent 1,500 members throughout the Nation.

The guild, Green continued, "is passing out of the newspaper picture just as surely as the C. I. O. is passing out of the national labor picture."

Oh, Rats! It's Those Rodents Again

Mothers Distribute Red Squill, Demand A City-Wide Cleanup, But They Find Health Department Is No Pied Piper

The indignation that moved the burghers of Hamelin to do something drastic about their rat problem is well on the way to being duplicated in Washington, it appeared yesterday.

In all sections of the Capital, among the prosperous folks as well as the impoverished, agitation is growing to force the District government to take action "that will prevent our going not to the dogs but to the rats," as one resentful taxpayer put it.

The volume of rodent complaints received recently by The Post, plus the fact that the Temple Center Mothers' Club conducted another of their rat-poisoning drives yesterday, prompted a wide telephone canvass of the situation, which showed:

1. Interest in rodent abatement is at its highest pitch, though efforts of the individuals and agencies seeking relief are still uncoordinated.

Complaints Increase

2. Since the Health Department does not consider the pests a major health problem, little or no remedial action can be expected from that quarter.

3. The Capital's rat worries are increasing alarmingly, if the mounting volume of complaints is a reliable gauge.

"This is more than a neighborhood problem," said Mrs. Albert Fenderson, director of Temple Center. "A city-wide clean-up is what is needed."

As she spoke, eight women, members of the Temple Center Mothers Club were sitting around a table in the recreation room dosing hamburger pellets with rat poison. Later, they walked through the neighborhood, knocking at doors and urging the housewives who responded to accept free gifts of rodent pills and place them in cellars, yards, etc.

Temple Baptist Church, Tenth and N Streets Northwest, is the headquarters for the particular neighborhood drive, one of several which have been or are being waged. The mothers' group conducted their first house-to-house campaign last fall, the second shortly after Christmas, the third last spring. This is the fourth.

Yesterday the women vigilantes distributed their hamburger pellets to houses along Tenth and Eleventh Streets, from M to O, and along M, N and O Streets between Tenth and Twelfth. They have to dig into their own purses to buy the meat and poison. The latter, Mrs. Fenderson said, is red squill, harmless to human beings and animals other than rats.

J. Frank Butts, sanitation director of the Health Department, said he had drafted a proposed rodent control program and sent it to his superiors for examination. Meantime, he added, his inspetcors can only continue what they are doing now: Advise afflicted homeowners and storekeepers to set out red squill for the invaders.

'No Foreign War' Campaign Planned by Peace Conference

To halt what is described as "our steady drift toward war," an immediate Nation-wide "No Foreign War" campaign was planned last night, climaxing the two-day Emergency Peace Conference of 20 peace organizations here.

Mass meetings, advertising, speeches and "exposure of war propaganda" will be utilized in the general campaign to keep American men from being sent to fight in Europe or Asia, according to O. K. Armstrong, newly elected chairman of the organization.

Armstrong, a member of the American Legion foreign relations committee, who called the peace conference, announced that a committee of 12 prominent citizens would be appointed to "expose and combat war prapaganda."

He said he would appeal to all types of organizations—religious, civic, labor, industry and youth—to assist in conducting mass meetings and distributing information.

Other officers elected yesterday include: Dr. Charles F. Boss, jr., of Chicago, Methodist Peace Commission, vice chairman; Mrs. Mildred S. Olmsted, of New York, Women's International League, vice chairman; Frederick J. Libby, of the National Council for Prevention of War here, secretary, and Douglas M. Stewart, of New York, Scribners Commentator Magazine, chairman of organization.

Stated policy of the organization is, in part, as follows:

"We call upon our Government to declare what is the geographical extent of our defense.

"We insist that all who are in places of responsibility in our Government refrain from utterances and acts designed to create hostility and conflict, and that our defenses be not used to increase the danger of our participation in war.

"We oppose all forms of dictatorship, and seek to conserve democracy in the United States, to solve our domestic problems, and to promote peace and goodwill among men and nations."

Faith Tried In These Days, Stamm Avers

D. C. Sunday School Association Closes Its Convention

Confidence in the ultimate triumph of good over evil is one way of "keeping faith in slippery times," Dr. Frederick K. Stamm told delegates at last night's closing sessions of the District of Columbia Sunday School Association Convention.

Reelection of Dr. Charles E. Resser, paleontologist of the Smithsonian Institution, as president and reports on the progress of the association's work were other features of the metting at the Ninth Street Christian Church, Ninth and D Streets Northeast.

Etchison, adult work; Leslie L. Bowers, jr., pastor of Hyattstown Christian Church, senior, intermediate and young people's work; William S. Jones, juniors, beginners and primary; J. C. R. Dr. Stamm, pastor of the Clinton Avenue Community Church, Brooklyn, and minister of the N.B.C. radio pulpit, said people were having difficulty in keeping faith in today's "confusing times" and related personal experiences of such occasions.

Dr. Stamm's face was a familiar one to many of the delegates, who had heard him address the eighteenth annual District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association Conference at Western Maryland College over Labor Day week-end.

Farmer Is Given 6-Month Sentence For Wild Drive

Canie B. Steele, 32, Boyds, Md., farmer, driver of an automobile which injured four persons and wrecked three automobiles, in a wild ride from Dawsonville to Rockville, Md., was sentenced yesterday to serve six months in jail and to pay a fine of $100 or serve an additional 30 days.

Steele was tried before Trial Magistrate Donald A. DeLashmutt in Rockville Police Court. He told the court he remembered nothing of the ride July 21, from the time he left a beer parlor until he awoke in jail.

Steel was sentenced to serve the six months for leaving the scene of an accident in which a person had been injured and to pay a fine of $100 or serve an additional 30 days for driving while intoxicated.

12-Story Building Planned on Site At 1818 H Street

A permit was asked at the District Building yesterday to erect a 12-story office building—a skyscraper for Washington—at 1818 H Street Northwest, at a cost of $1,800,000.

The permit was requested by the H Street Building Corporation, headed by Charles H. Tompkins, of Washington, president. Concrete, brick, tile and stone construction is planned.

A. R. Clas was named as architect for the development. He designed the Lafayette Building, recently completed and occupied by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. His plans provide for a 150-foot tall structure, nearly 187 feet in width and containing 2,924,000 cubic feet of space. Six elevators are planned.

The Charles H. Tompkins Co., M. S. Rich and W. K. Karsunky will be the builder, structural engineer and mechanical engineer, respectively.

Wire-Tapping Report Probed By Committee

Senators Told Federal Officials Were Victims

By the Associated Press

William P. Maloney, counsel for a Senate committee investigating wire tapping, declared today after questioning a New York private detective that the committee was investigating reports that the telephones of high Administration officials here had been tapped.

Maloney said that Robert C. Laborde, operator of a New York detective agency who was summoned here to confer with Chairman Stewart (Democrat), of Tennessee, and committee investigators, had "been active in Washington and New York" and "had tapped wires."

Referring to Laborde, Maloney said "he worked here in Washington on numerous occasions in 1937, 1938 and 1939.

"We know by whom he was employed," Maloney added, but he declined to disclose the employer.

Maloney said he believed the committee would conduct hearings about November 1 to which Laborde would be summoned.

Maloney said that a summons was served on Laborde after several months of search for him and that he was found in a New York hotel, where he was registered as George Dolan, of Utica, N. Y. The committee had wanted to question Laborde concerning wire tapping "for some time," Maloney added.

A few weeks ago Maloney complained to a Federal judge in New York that Laborde had "threatened to shoot" Federal agents who tried to serve a summons on him at his Nanuet, Rockland County, N. Y., summer home.

Street Numbering Change Protested

Protesting the renumbering of Clark Street, in Woodmoor, Md., a petition bearing 84 signatures was presented at a meeting of the Woodmoor Citizens Association.

The residents maintain that they have been given north and south numbers when the street runs east and west.

The group voted to cooperate with Mrs. James Wilson in sponsoring a Boy Scout troop for the Four Corners area.

Roosevelt Signs Resolution Setting Up Holmes Memorial

Praises Late Justice's Example As Patriot as Transcending All Other Contributions to National Life

President Roosevelt took time yesterday to pay tribute to the memory of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Remarking that it gave him "special gratification," the President signed a joint resolution of Congress to honor the memory of Holmes by establishing a garden behind the Supreme Court Building and publishing a volume of his selected writings.

The memorials would be paid for out of a fund of $265,000 bequeathed to the Government by the late Supreme Court Justice.

In a special statement, the President recalled that "as a younger man it was my privilege to enjoy the friendship" of the son of the "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," who died in 1935, just before his ninety-fourth birthday.

Put His Patriotism First

"From his stout heart," the President remarked, he drew strength "in those awful days of 1933."

"The example that Oliver Wendell Holmes set as a patriot" was cited by the President as "transcending every other contribution" made to national life by the kindly jurist, philosopher and poet who served on the highest bench for 29 years.

The late "great liberal" of the Supreme Court, who used to read French novels and attend burlesque performances in Washington, would like the memorial garden, the President said.

The President's signing of the measure yesterday clears the way for establishment of the Oliver Wendell Holmes Garden on a site, already selected, bounded by East Capitol, Second, A and Third Streets Northeast.

Book To Be Sold at Cost

Now covered by small buildings, this square is destined for a public building program and the garden would cover a part of it. The Holmes Fund would not be used for purchase of the land, but for its improvement.

The memorial volume would be a small collection of the late Justice's writings, printed by the Government Printing Office and sold at cost, probably 50 cents.

Justice Felix Frankfurter, one of the present-day liberals, is understood to be preparing the volume.

A joint committee, composed of three members of the Supreme Court, three Senators and three Representatives, with custody of the Holmes bequest, decided on the form of the memorial, settling an old Capital dispute.

They committee ruled against perpetuating the Justice's memory by preserving his old home at 1720 I Street Northwest as a national shrine.

CCC Boy Is Held In Bayonet Slap, Housebreakings

A 19-year-old CCC worker was held by police last night for slapping Miss Julie Mayer with her own bayonet, and for snatching two pocketbooks, and four housebreakings.

He was seized yesterday by Policemen E. P. Tucker and J. W. McCarthy, Second Precinct, after he attempted to snatch the purse of Miss Lillian Brown, 39, of 1126 Twelfth Street Northwest. She screamed and he fled, practically into the arms of the cruising scout car patrolmen.

The suspect admitted, officers said, that he entered Miss Mayer's home, 2101 Fifteenth Street Northwest, Monday, disarmed her of her bayonet and struck her with it. He also said he grabbed the pocketbook of Miss Bettie Rose Chase, 27, at Meridian Park, broke into four homes and was frightened away when he attempted to snatch two other women's purses.

He was held for investigation.

British Refugee Boy Calls at White House

A 12-year-old British refugee came to pay his respects to President Roosevelt at the White House yesterday, but the Chief Executive was too busy to see him.

The boy, Austin Graham Harris, son of a volunteer ambulance driver, came to this country eight weeks ago aboard the S. S. Samaria. He was accompanied to the White House by the Rev. Harold J. Sweeney, of Grace Church, Elizabeth, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Hefty Hurt in Accident

Mr. and Mrs. J. Grant Hefty, of 5 West Woodbine Street, Chevy Chase, Md., were injured Sunday in an automobile crash near Watertown, N. Y., it was learned here yesterday. Both are in a Watertown hospital.

Hefty, an engineer with the International Boundary Commission, was supervising the commission's annual inspection of boundary markers between the United States and Canada when the accident occurred.

According to advices received here by a daughter, Miss Georgelia Hefty, an American Airlines employe, her mother suffered a fractured rib and pelvis. Hefty escaped with a wrenched back. Their car ran from the road in a snowstorm, it was reported.

Prince Georges Jury Issues 21 Indictments

The Prince Georges County Grand Jury yesterday returned 21 indictments.

Ten were for nonsupport, four for larceny, two each for store breaking, house breaking, manslaughter, and issuing bad checks, and one for escape from jail.

Wallace Indorses Senator La Follette, Splitting Democrats in Wisconsin

Four Party Leaders Walk Out on Speech

Progressive Party Tieup Approved By White House

By Fred O. Bailey
United Press Staff Writer

Madison, Wis., Oct. 22.—Democratic Vice Presidential Nominee Henry A. Wallace tonight inferentially indorsed United States Senator Robert M. La Follette, jr. (Progressive), of Wisconsin, for re-election, touching off an intra-party dispute in which four Democratic candidates for State office walked out on his speech.

WALLACE

The indorsement, made after White House consultation, was seen as completing an alliance between the Democratic national organization and the Wisconsin State Progressive organization. But it caused immediate resentment among some State Democratic candidates.

Wallace spoke before a crowd of 4,000 farmers and young Democrats, concluding a two-day tour of Wisconsin and Iowa.

Shortly before he began speaking, the four candidates learned he would indorse La Follette. They are James Finnegan, La Follette's Democratic opponent for the Senate seat; Francis McGovern, candidate for seat; Francis McGovern, candidate Murphy, congressional candidate from the Fifth Wisconsin District, and Gustaya Keller, candidate for attorney general.

McGovern met Wallace as he came to the rostrum and asked him if it were true that he would indorse La Follette. Assured that it was, he said:

"All right, I'll leave the stage now so as not to interfere with your speech."

He said he would "think it over" on whether to withdraw from the gubernatorial race.

Murphy Also Bitter

Murphy also was bitter.

"I do not propose to stay here and see our candidate for Governor insulted," he said.

Finnegan scowled angrily as the crowd rose to cheer Wallace when he mounted the stage. He left the stage with the other three.

"This is a repetition of 1934, which disorganized the party then and will again," he said.

Then Wallace began his speech, his audience cheering loudly.

Wallace discussed the dairy programs begun by the Administration, which he said have raised the income of dairymen by approximately $300,000,000 a yea rabove 1932. If farmers go back on the farm program on November 5 they will probably lose it, Wallace said. There will be "no letup in the opposition of the financial leaders who control the Republican Party," he said, if the Republicans win in November.

Tighter Campaign Fund Laws Hinted

By John B. Oakes,
Post Staff Writer

Possible tightening up of the Hatch Act through stricted limitations on political contributions was hinted at yesterday by Chairman Gillette of the Special Senate Committee Investigating Campaign Expenses.

duPONT

Senator Gillette revealed that his committee had received information from the Democratic State Committee of North Dakota that Lamot duPont, president of E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co., had sent a $4,000 contribution to the Republican Central Committee of North Dakota. Senator Gillette quoted North Dakota newspapers as saying that the check has not been cashed, but has been circulating unclaimed because of changes in the chairmanship and officer personnel of the State committee."

The Hatch Act, Senator Gillette said, limits individual contributions to national political organizations to $5,000, but not to State and local committees.

Asserting that "numerous complaints" have been received on this question, Senator Gillette declared that "the special committee is making every effort to develop facts relative to this type of contribution, with a view to possible necessary amendatory provisions to be recommended to the Senate."

Five political organizations—one pro-Roosevelt and the others pro-Willkie—have been asked to send representatives to a committee hearing Friday, Senator Gillette announced.

They include: The National Committee for Agriculture, of Chicago, described by Senator Gillette as pro-Roosevelt, and the Uptown Lawyers Committee, of New York; the Clearing House for National Interests, of New York; the People's Committee to Defend Life Insurance and Savings, of Philadelphia, and the National Committee to Uphold Constitution Government, of New York, all said to be pro-Willkie.

The Hatch Act sets a limitation of $5,000,000 on campaign expenditures; but attorneys for some fund-raising organizations have testified that they have advised their clients that the limit applies to each organization separately, and not to all the organizations as a whole.

Meanwhile, Senator Gillette said he had requested specific evidence from two Kansas political leaders who have complained of violation of campaign laws.

Senator Gillette said that Walter Ives, Republican State chairman, had complained that a Democratic leader had written a letter demanding campaign contributions from employes of the AAA office in Manhattan, Kans.

On the other hand, said Senator Gillette, Charles E. Young, Democratic State chairman, alleged "open and flagrant violation of the Hatch Act by the (Republican) administration of Gov. Payne H. Ratner."

The Presidential Campaign

Willkie, Profiteers Linked by Jackson

Jamestown, N. Y., Oct. 22 (AP).—Attorney General Robert H. Jackson asserted tonight that Wendell L. Willkie "would leave the Government defenseless against the profiteer."

JACKSON

In an address prepared for a Democratic Party rally in his home city, Jackson remarked that President Roosevelt "has declared that there must be no crop of millionaires created," and added:

"The Republican candidate, however, while preaching sacrifice to the masses of the people, has defended defense profits of his big-business friends. He has bitterly opposed any conscription of wealth or of plants."

Jackson added he has "done all that I could to stop the increasing concentration in this country of great aggregations of other people's money in the hands of lawless, irresponsible and ruthless men like Wendell Willkie, who exploit investors and consumers and throw prosperity from one community to another."

He cited Supreme Court decisions won by the Government in recent years.

He denied Republican charges that the New Deal does not believe in America's future, citing the fact that the RFC "has loaned more money to strengthen the capital structure of banks and business enterprises than any agency in the history of the world."

Willkie Challenges Roosevelt Pledge

The noisy crowd booed mention of Mr. Roosevelt's name and the names of other New Dealers.

Making several declarations that the New Deal had failed to keep specific campaign pledges, Willkie repeatedly said:

"Mr. Third-Term Candidate, when you begin your belated discussion of campaign issues tomorrow night, I would like you to tell the people whether Wendell Willkie is falsifying that part of the record.

"This is the record," Willkie shouted." We have stopped growing. Our national income is smaller. Our workers get less. Our farmers get less. More than 9,000,000 of our citizens are without jobs. We have little equipment for our Army, and we have only a few hundred modern military airplanes.

"Yet in these 7½ years (of the New Deal) we have spent more than $60,000,000,000. We have doubled the national debt. And the enormous defense program lies ahead of us.

"That is the record. I challenge the third-term candidate to prove it false."

After ending his prepared talk, Willkie asserted that "this free Government is in the hands of people who disregard their promises with a cynicism almost despicable."

"I call America back to the simple virtues," he continued, "and I pray that in this year 1940 we will replace this cynical Government with one that believes in the people and their simple virtues. . . .

"The fight is hard. . . . It (the Administration) expects to use the billions appropriated for national defense. . . . It expects to put pressure on those in the pitiful circumstances of life receiving relief."

"But, people of Chicago, are you afraid?"

The crowd shouted "No!" There was loud cheering when Willkie concluded with the statement that "we cannot lose, we must win, we will win."

The Republican Presidential nominee, who was greeted with hand-clapping, whistling and cheers by an audience which filled the stadium's 25,000 seats, said that "one blessing we all profoundly desire is "to remain at peace."

En route here, Willkie asked late today why President Roosevelt had not permitted the nomination of his Secretary of State, "who knows more about international affairs than he does."

The nominee, facing an applauding crowd in the community center at Hammond, Ind., asserted that "the major issue in the world today is the long continuation in office of one man and yet we have a man seeking a third term."

After scattered cries of "he won't get it," Willkie said the only argument advanced for a third term was that "we are in a grave international crisis."

"If that be true," he continued, "then why did not the third-term candidate permit the nomination of his Secretary of State, who knows more about international affairs than he does?"

Willkie spoke at Hammond during a two-hour automobile tour of the Lake County, Indiana, industrial area.

Previously, Willkie told a crowd at Rockford, Ill., that "the opposition is beginning to get desperate."

"Whatever attempts they make to stop public discussion," he continued, "I do not want anyone associated with me to adopt similar tactics."

Willkie said that "a prairie fire is on" in his drive for the Presidency.

In a nationally broadcast interview Willkie called upon the Nation tonight to send him to the White House "to preserve our American system of government and free enterprise—to keep us out of war—and to speed up our defenses."

He reiterated his stand for "more effective aid to Great Britain," and declared that:

"We must ask ourselves if an administration which has been unable to solve our peace-time problems for seven years can be trusted to solve the more difficult war problems. We must ask ourselves whether an administration which has weakened us at home can carry any weight in the brutal world of today."

Answering questions sent from various parts of the country in the third of a series of interviews sponsored by the Associated Willkie Clubs of America, the candidate asserted that with the exception of defense industries, "few established industries have expanded and only a few new enterprises have been established."

Byrnes' Presence in New York Shows Democrats Are Worried, Martin Says

By the Associated Press

New York, Oct. 22.—Republican National Chairman Joseph W. Martin commented today that "New York State must be in pretty good shape for Mr. Willkie or the Democrats wouldn't send my good friend Jimmy Byrnes (Senator James F. Byrnes (Democrat,) of South Carolina, to New York to take over the campaign."

MARTIN

Byrnes was at Democratic national headquarters yesterday and at National Chairman Edward J. Flynn's press conference he asserted Willkie was making "misleading" and "deceiving" statements about the defense program and the Administration's foreign policy.

"You know whenever the Democrats get in a tight spot in Congress or elsewhere, they always call on Byrnes," Martin said. "Whenever they call him in, you know they are having difficulties."

Martin remarked sarcastically that the international situation must be "eased tremendously" because "I notice all the diplomats have been able to take their attention off the foreign situation and turn it to the campaign."

Reminded that John Cudahy, Ambassador to Belgium, said Friday in Lawrence, Kans., that he was "shocked by the calamity of a political campaign at such a time," Martin said:

"I believe Mr. Roosevelt and all the palace guard and the silk-stocking diplomats will think it unfortunate they had a campaign after November 5."

Martin, who just returned from his own State of Massachusetts, said he had never seen Massachusetts "in better shape for a candidate than it is for Wendell Willkie."

As he left the conference room, he remarked over his shoulder that "I am going to Baltimore and I wouldn't be going there if I didn't think we had a chance in Maryland."

Lincoln, Nebr., Oct. 22 (AP).—Gov. Harold Stassen of Minnesota charged tonight "the smoothest propaganda smear campaign this side of Europe has been turned loose with devilish cunning" against Wendell Willkie.

The 33-year-old Governor, floor leader for Willkie at the Republican National Convention, said in his prepared address the nominee has been opposed by "the most powerful bureaucracy and the most ruthless policical machine of our country's history, captained by the cleverest political leader and the ablest radio orator of our time. All of the advantages of the expenditure of millions of dollars of governmental funds have been used against him."

Stassen appealed to voters to "write to your friends in other States, particularly to New York, and Illinois and Pennsylvania."

Franklin, Jr., Offers to Debate

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 22 (AP). Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., today offered to debate a heckler at a Drake University students' meeting here.

ROOSEVELT

Interrupted by occasional shouts of "Yes, Willkie," the President's son said:

"I asked that fellow once to come up here and say that. I would just love to debate him."

"Why didn't your father accept?" somebody asked.

"I'll tell you why he didn't accept the offer to go and speak in Baltimore on the same platform with Willkie," Roosevelt countered. "If you are going to ask a friend to your house for dinner, you send a personal invitation, don't you? . . .

"Besides, if the President ever got on the same platform with Willkie, Willkie would withdraw his nomination for the Presidency."

He said of the G. O. P. nominee:

"I think he is probably a pretty fine man, but I believe my old man is just a hell of a lot finer."

The President's son spoke in a theater adjoining the Drake campus. The Drake Students' Roosevelt Club had planned to hold the meeting on the campus, but President D. W. Morehouse, of the university, refused permission since "controversial issues are not discussed on the campus."

'No 3d-Term Day' Celebration Today

Republicans today will mark "No Third Term Day" with five major campaign speeches, while President Roosevelt climaxes a "National Roosevelt Youth Day Program" with an address in Philadelphia.

DEMPSEY

In Washington, members of the Willkie-McNary Campaign Club are planning to flourish Republican placards and banners in front of the White House. Their "No Third Term Day" parade begins at 1 p. m. at Third Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest.

Roosevelt youth organizations, according to the Democratic National Committee, will hold rallies in each of the 3,740 counties in the country to listen to the broadcast of the President's speech. Mr. Roosevelt's topic is "America Looks at the Future."

Speakers at a Democratic rally in New York City will include Senator Pepper, of Florida, and Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion. Irving Berlin is to sing "God Bless America." Among speakers at other Roosevelt rallies throughout the country will be Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Priscilla Lane and Melvyn Douglas, of the films.

Taft to Speak in Marion, Ind.

Senator McNary, of Oregon, G. O. P. Vice Presidential candidate, will open the "No Third Term Day" radio program with an address at 3 p. m. before a farm audience at Bloomington, Ill. Next speaker is Senator Taft, of Ohio, who is addressing a Republican rally in Marion, Ind., at 8:30 p. m.

TAFT

National Committee Chairman Martin's speech before Pittsburgh Republicans will be broadcast at 9 p. m. Alfred E. Smith, Democratic Presidential candidate in 1928, will speak at 10 p. m. to a "Democrats for Willkie" group in Brooklyn.

Wendell Willkie will bring "No Third Term Day" to a close with an address at 10:30 p. m. Willkie will speak before the New York Herald-Tribune Forum in New York City.

Willkieites Deny Solicitation Charge

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn's charge today that Republican campaign contributions had been solicited from Federal workers in violation of the law brought a denial from Willkie forces—and a counter-charge that Flynn himself had been "caught in his attempts to violate the Hatch Act."

DOUGLAS

Flynn had declared Government Departments in Washington "have been flooded with letters soliciting contributions" and that the letters bore the signatures of John W. Hanes and Lewis W. Douglas, one-time figures in the Roosevelt Administration—now Willkie supporters.

In a statement today, Hanes said the letters sent out over his and Douglas' signatures carried the following: "No contributions will be accepted from officers or employes of, or persons receiving or entitled to receive compensation for services or salary from the United States Government."

"The absurdity of mailing a fund-soliciting letter to a Government employe accompanied by a statement that we will not accept his money must be evident to everybody but Boss Flynn. No such statement was included in the fund-soliciting letters that Flynn sent out."

This last statement, Hanes said, referred to a letter Flynn sent last week, pointing out that while Government employes are barred under the Hatch Act from contributing to political parties, there is no rule forbidding their relatives and friends to contribute.

Farley to Vote For Third Term

I did that because I sincerely believe in the Democratic party, in its principles and objectives.

"At the national convention of the Democratic Party in Chicago—at which I was a candidate for the Presidency—after the balloting was over I pledged my support to the nominees of that convention. That pledge was made in good faith.

"I shall vote the straight Democratic ticket on November 5 and I urge the members of my party to do likewise."

Rayburn Defends NewDeal Spending

Bonham, Tex., Oct. 22 (AP).—Representative Rayburn, Speaker of the House, defended New Deal spending as an "investment in the service of mankind" today in dedicating a new brick and stone school, built in part with WPA money.

RAYBURN

The speech was the first event of his homecoming celebration which was transformed by Democratic strategists into the start of a two-week drive for Roosevelt votes in the Southwest.

Rayburn drove to nearby Honey Grove, where he hauled cotton to the gin as a Fannin County farm boy, to dedicate the school and answer New Deal critics with the assertion:

"This building is a monument to somebody's work and foresight who was willing to accept the obligation of his day that the next generation shall live a little better.

"We are criticized for the millions we are spending, but everywhere I see new country schools, gymnasiums, playgrounds, farm-to-market roads, rural power lines that were not here before. I am not ashamed of the part I had in spending the money in these investments in the service of mankind."

He said he would spend the next two weeks campaigning in Missouri, Illinois and possibly New Jersey.

Rayburn is director of the Presidential campaign in the Southwest, where the Republicans have worked for Wendell Willkie through numerous regular and recently conceived organizations.

Biddle Rebuts Dictator Charge

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 22 (AP).—Solicitor General Francis Biddle said tonight that dictatorship charges leveled at President Roosevelt reflected the "false defensiveness of desperate men."

BIDDLE

"A dictator suppresses free speech and a free press," he said, in an address to a meeting of "Harvard lawyers for Roosevelt." Today 85 per cent of the press is savagely criticizing the President in the most absurdly exaggerated language.

"Dictators dismiss their parliaments and act by decrees; yet today the Congress of the United States has just shaped a defense policy on a vast scale, passed its own laws, in its own ways.

"Abroad, dictators seize the lands of small, peaceful countries; today the President's good neighbor policy has solidly cemented our friendship with Mexico and with South America in this time of our mutual need, in the interest of unifying the whole Western Hemisphere in a program of strong independence."

Nazi Germany, he said, "detests the President and is now working for his defeat." Hitler, he added, "has seen the rapprochement in South America where he would be dominant which the President has caused; Hitler has seen us standing together; Hitler has watched the powder, the Enfield rifles, the steady stream of munitions, pour from this country into England; and Hitler knows that Roosevelt stands and will stand across his path."

"Of course," he added, "Hitler wants Roosevelt defeated."

S. C. Democrats Form Party to Back Willkie

Charleston, S. C., Oct. 22 (AP).—A group of South Carolina Democrats met here today and formally organized the "Jeffersonian Democratic Party" to support Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican nominee, for the Presidency.

B. Allston Moore, of Charleston, was elected chairman and eight electors pledged to vote for Willkie were chosen.

Officials said the party would support Democrats for other offices.

Browder Demands Campaign Inquiry

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—Earl Browder, Communist Party candidate for President, today urged that the Senate Committee on Election Frauds investigate "outrageous interference in election rights now going on in New York."

BROWDER

The "interference," he charged, was in "efforts to remove the Communist Party from the ballot with the motive of affecting final election results as between rival Presidential candidates."

His request, made in a telegram to United States Senator Guy Gillette, chairman of the Senate committee came shortly after he asserted that Edward J. Flynn, Democratic national chairman, was "attempting to steal Communist votes for Roosevelt by ruling the Communist Party off the ballot in the State of New York."

Browder cited a story in the Jewish newspaper The Day, written "by its political reporter, Mr. Joel Slonim, a prominent Tammanyite, closely associated with Edward J. Flynn."

He quoted from the story as follows: "The Democrats believe, though they are not very certain of it, that if Browder is not on the ballot, then all, or at least a great number of the Communists, would be compelled to vote for Roosevelt."

A hearing is now being held in Catskill, N. Y., to determine the legality of including the Communist Party on the ticket.

Overtime Approved For Arsenal Workers

By the Associated Press

President Roosevelt has signed a measure providing overtime pay at the rate of time and one-half for employes of the War Department working more than 40 hours weekly.

The War Department said the legislation would speed national defense work at arsenals and other places where certain engineers, tool designers and supervisors were limited to a 5-day 40-hour week.

after discovery that Wendell Willkie had engaged the only available Baltimore hall for that night.

Willkie "publicly" offered to share the platform, an offer turned down by the White House. The President, who conferred yesterday with Gov. O'Conor of Maryland, said he didn't think he would make any speeches in Maryland. In response to a question, he said O'Conor had not asked him to. The Governor told reporters he assured the President that Maryland was "in good shape."

Willkie meanwhile broadened his Maryland speaking schedule to include Cumberland, Md., on October 30, as well as Baltimore that night.

Friday Before Election

In shifting his speech in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn, to November 1, 9 to 9:30 p. m., the President said the move is in keeping with practice he started in 1920 and has since continued—speaking the Friday night before election.

Would he make a defense inspection tour to New England? He planned none. Would he make defense inspections in the Midwest? He would like to, as there are several defense plants he would like to see, but his rule against more than an overnight tour from Washington during the war emergency barred it. If the situation eases, he said he might inspect Midwest defense works after the election. His only Midwest radio date is Cleveland, November 2, and he may stop off at Rochester and Buffalo defense plants en route.

President Talks Freely

Not since the charge of "deliberate falsification" aimed at his political opposition last week, and his decision to wage a political campaign on the radio has the President so freely discoursed with reporters on both his political and inspection tour plans. But he aimed no broadsides at his opposition yesterday, and never mentioned Willkie. The follow-up of last Friday's charges, his aides indicated, will be reserved for his speeches.

Before launching today's drive down a stretch that looked more like a racetrack than ever, the President took time out from careful drafting of his Philadelphia speech to receive several visitors.

Sees Ickes, Patterson

Besides Gov. O'Connor, of Maryland, he saw during the day Secretary of Interior Ickes, pre-Chicago prime mover of the third term, and Richard C. Patterson, business executive and former Assistant Secretary of Commerce.

A luncheon guest was Bishop Stephen Donahue of the Roman Catholic diocese of New York.

Stephen T. Early, White House secretary, said none other than the White House staff will accompany Mr. Roosevelt on his entire three-State tour, but some State party leaders will board the train en route.

Broadcast on 2 Networks

Tonight's address in Philadelphia Convention Hall will be titled "America Looks to the Future" and will be broadcast over the National and Columbia networks.

Leaving Washington about noon, his train will stop at Wilmington, Del., for a platform appearance and possible brief speech about 2 p. m. He will arrive in Philadelphia about 3. An automobile trip will follow to the New Jersey and Philadelphia defense plant sites. He will return to his train for dinner, before broadcasting his speech at 9:15 p. m. unofficially suggested that radio time frequently is optioned and then released.

In New York also, Republican National Chairman Joseph W. Martin, jr., said he "hopes" Lewis declares for Willkie, but had no idea what he will do. Martin said "ours is not an exclusive bandwagon," and he would "certainly welcome" the support of Lewis. He said the C.I.O. leader "has a great many friends in the country."

Complaints Pile Up

Lewis' complaints against the New Deal's labor attitude have been piling up since his Labor Day (1937) reply to the President's "Plague on both your houses" statement.

With mounting ire, the man whose organization contributed $500,000 to the 1936 Democratic campaign fund slashed back then with:

"It ill behooves one who has supped at labor's table to condemn with fine impartiality both labor and its adversaries when they are locked in mortal combat."

Subsequently, at the January, 1940, convention of the United Mine Workers in Columbus, Ohio, he predicted Mr. Roosevelt would go down to "ignominious defeat" if he tried for a third term.

He turned up unexpectedly at the Republican convention to demand a liberal G. O. P. labor platform.

He has since conferred with both the President and Willkie, never disclosing his election stand.

Angered by Defense Policy

Friends here have discounted any possibility of his supporting the President unless his labor demands were met.

Outstanding among his immediate complaints is said to be the Administration's policy in regard to award of defense contracts to violators of the National Labor Relations Act, the Walsh-Healy Act and the wages and hour law.

At the Columbus meeting he charged the Administration in the last three years "has not seriously sought, nor seriously entertained the advice or views of labor upon the question of national unemployment or lesser questions affecting domestic economy, internal taxation, foreign trade, military and naval expansion, relations with foreign nations or the issues of war or peace." He said then that labor had "no point of contact with the Democratic Administration in power except for casual and occasional interviews which are granted its individual leaders."

Union Leadership Split

Other points of complaint are said to include the President's failure to reappoint J. Warren Madden to the National Labor Relations Board, the Wage-Hour Administration's redefinition of white collar workers, and failure to gain passage of his mine safety bill.

Barkley Says Willkie Can't Withstand Pressure of Groups Supporting Him

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—Senator Barkley, of Kentucky, Democratic Senate leader, asserted today that Wendell L. Willkie—in case he was elected—would be unable to withstand the pressure of the opponents of New Deal acts who are supporting him.

BARKLEY

At a press conference in headquarters of the Democratic National Committee, Senator Barkley said, "it would take more intestinal fortitude than he possesses to withstand the pressure."

He also accused the Republican candidate of making "rash and unfounded statements—which he has had to retract."

Engravers' Official Against Roosevelt

The rank and file of organized labor "is opposed to a third term" and "fear the third term as the first step toward a dictatorship," Warner D. Curry, business manager of the Photo Engravers International Union, declared yesterday in a statement issued through Republican headquarters.

"Organized labor in this country has watched the ruthless progress of the dictators in Europe for the past several years and have seen their fellow trade unionists in Germany and Italy and more recently in France and other countries in Europe crushed under the iron heel of Mussolini and Hitler," Curry said.

"Organized labor has always opposed the paternalism of government and most certainly this present type of benevolent despotism," he added.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 22 (AP).—The Kentucky Citizens Finance Committee for Willkie reported to the secretary of state today that it had received $77,464.87 in contributions and had spent $73,073.43 up to October 21.

The State Democratic campaign committee said in its report that it had received $5,700 and spent $3,856.52, as of the same date.

Omaha, Oct. 22 (AP).—Gov. Harold Stassen, of Minnesota, said here today Wendell Willkie would be elected President.

Confederacy Limited President's Term

Southern Democrats were reminded by Marion W. Seabrook, general counsel of the South Carolina Republicans, yesterday that the Confederacy limited tenure of office of a president to seven years.

"Let those who profess to act in the name of our fathers be careful to follow what our fathers stood for," Seabrook warned in a statement issued by the Republican National Committee.

Willkie Promises to Protect Conduct of Foreign Affairs From Partisan Politics

Says He'll Pick Able Envoys, Not 'Playboys'

Candidate Examines Pledges Made in 1932 Democratic Platform

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Following is the prepared text of a speech by Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential candidate, at the Chicago Stadium tonight:

Fellow Americans and people of Chicago.

A man cannot stand before an audience like this in these critical times without a deep sense of humility. These are days when much is at stake in every choice we make. We must not alone think clearly. We must find the strength to abide by difficult decisions.

For that strength we must look to each other. I say it to you from the bottom of my heart; stand with me now and in whatever is to come.

I know that there is in your minds, as there is in mine, grave concern for events beyond our shores. Over there, except on one small, heroic island, democracy has fallen. The fact is almost unbelievable. People who lived lives not unlike ours, who had aspirations similar to our own, who loved peace just as much as we do, who believed in justice and freedom; people of that sort are now slaves to bloody dictators who have gone back to the Dark Ages for their basic philosophy of government.

In this fateful hour I stand before you as a candidate for President of the United States.

With regard to those events beyond our shores I will make you a solemn promise. I promise that that responsibility of government known as foreign affairs will be protected by me from partisan politics.

To fill the post of Secretary of State I shall choose the ablest man in the United States on foreign affairs. I shall choose him for his knowledge, his ability and his integrity—and not for any other considerations whatever.

Opposes Playboy Envoys

That man will make use of the ablest career men in the diplomatic service—men who have devoted their lives to the study and practice of diplomacy.

And we shall send out to represent us in the capitals of the world ambassadors chosen for their diplomatic qualifications. It's safer to keep the playboys right here in America.

I pledge you that our party will not pay off its financial obligations with the safety of the American people by appointing springtime ambassadors. I have never owed any man that much. And I never shall.

Tonight we are gathered together on historic ground.

A short distance away, in the old wigwam, on May 18, 1860, Abraham Lincoln was nominated in a free and open convention.

And then in 1932, right here in this hall, there was adopted by the Democratic Party the platform of that year—one of America's great liberal documents.

I for one believed that Democratic platform of 1932. I still believe in the principles that it laid down.

I also believed at that time the statement of the Democratic candidate of 1932, in his acceptance speech, he said: "That admirable document, the platform, which you have adopted, is clear. I accept it 100 per cent."

Now, my fellow Americans, there is a secret hidden in democracy. Those who hate democracy do not know that secret. Those who love democracy must find it and must guard it with their lives.

That secret is good faith. Democracy lives in the faith that people keep with one another. It lies in the faith that their leaders keep with them and the faith that their Government keeps with them. Without good faith a liberal document is worthless. Without good faith no law—no, not even the Constitution—can stand.

Examines Promises

I want to examine tonight the good faith of those who have been responsible to us, as our Government, for the past seven and a half years. I want to examine that record standing here where the promises were made. And I want to examine it in the light of the world situation—the threat against democracy—that I have already mentioned.

The Democratic platform of 1932 declared:

"We favor the maintenance of the national credit by a Federal budget annually balanced . . ."

Then it went on to say:

"We advocate an immediate and drastic reduction of Governmental expenditures by abolishing useless commissions and offices."

That was the promise. The candidate accepted it. He pledged to reduce the cost of the Federal Government by 25 per cent. Since that day he has reiterated 11 times, a promise to balance the budget.

But not once—not once—in eight years has the Federal budget even approached a balance. So far from abolishing useless commissions and offices, the New Deal has multiplied them as never before in our history. It has increased the number of employes on the Government pay roll from 560,000 to more than a million.

The Democratic platform of 1932 said:

"We advocate a sound currency to be preserved at all hazards . . ."

That was the promise. But six weeks after taking office, Mr. Roosevelt suspended the gold standard. In the autumn of 1933, he set out to experiment with a fluctuating commodity dollar. That unsound experiment was disastrous and had to be abandoned. Not even the most ardent New Dealer tries to defend it.

But even today, the President retains in his own hands the power to alter the value of the dollar at any moment, and the monetary policy of this Nation is officially declared to be on a "24-hour basis."

The Democratic platform of 1932 said: "We advocate . . . an international economic conference designed to restore international trade and facilitate exchange."

That was the promise. But on July 3, 1933, Mr. Roosevelt killed the London economic conference. He repudiated the progress of stabilization which he himself had instructed our delegates to present.

Tax Burden Trebled

The third-term candidate, when he was running for his first term, said: "I propose to use this position of high responsibility to discuss up and down the country . . . the duty of reducing taxes. . . . That I pledge you, and nothing I have said in this campaign transcends in importance this covenant with the taxpayers of this country"

That was the promise.

But under his Administration, the Federal tax burden has been trebled. Taxes have been lifted to levels that have been exceeded only in one year, during the World War.

The third-term candidate, when he was running for his first term, promised to put an end to unemployment. He promised the revival of business. He promised economy in government expenditures. And when he was running for his second term he reiterated those earlier promises.

But not one of those promises has been fulfilled.

Recently the third-term candidate has accused me of deliberately falsifying the record.

That seems to me a strange accusation. From what I have seen of the record, and I have studied it closely, any misstatement of the facts would be a charitable act.

But I want to review the record. I want to review it with this point in mind. No statesman, no matter how far-sighted, can foresee everything. Maybe the breaking of those early promises worked out for the good of all of us. I do not say that that would excuse the bad faith. But it might induce us to be lenient.

Beginning in 1929 there was a world-wide depression. It affected every nation on earth.

Now we have figures showing the degree of industrial recovery from that depression by 18 leading nations up to the outbreak of the war. These figures show that in revival of industrial production, the United States stood seventeenth on that list of 18 nations. It was next to the bottom of the list. Even Latvia did better.

Labor, Farmers Took Cut

Furthermore, we have just completed the first decade in our history in which we have failed to grow. Never before has that happened in America. But while we were thus stagnant almost every other nation in the world reached and passed the levels of 1929.

Failure to recover has meant a terrible loss to American workers. In the seven years before the New Deal, they were paid an average of more than $21,000,000,000 a year. In the seven years under the New Deal, they have been paid an average of less than $17,000,000,000 a year. They lost $4,500,000,000 every year—a pay cut for all of labor of 21 per cent.

And the farmers took a cut—an average cut—of more than a million and a quarter dollars a year. And that includes all Government payment under the New Deal.

Now that is all on the record. Nobody is falsifying anything. The truth is that the New Deal's failure has cost labor and farmers billions upon billions of dollars.

I know that my opponent will reply that during some of that time the nations of Europe were building armaments. That is perfectly true. I hope he does make that reply. Because I should like to reply to that reply.

I should like to know why, since 1936, we have not been at least getting ready to build armaments. I should like to know why we suddenly became aware, in this year of 1940, when it is so terribly late, that we lack defense equipment and cannot even manufacture it.

This is the record. We have stopped growing. Our national income is smaller. Our workers get less. Our families get less. More than 9,000,000 of our citizens are without jobs. We have little equipment for our Army, and we have only a few hundred modern airplanes.

Yet in these seven and a half years we have spent more than $60,000,000,000. We have doubled the national debt. And the enormous defense program lies ahead of us.

Challenges Roosevelt

That is the record. I challenge the third-term candidate to prove it false.

Now when a baseball team remains for years in last place or close to it, it does not take the customers long to figure out what is wrong. They know that something is the matter with the management of that team. And they are likely to want the manager changed.

What would you think of the manager of a baseball team who had his team in the cellar or next to it for eight years in a league of 18 teams, and who then claimed that he was the only indispensable man to manage that team?

But that is what happened last July right here in this hall.

It was in this very auditorium that the third-term political machine staged some of its most brilliant effects.

It was here on this very platform that Senator Lister Hill, of Alabama, placed the name of the third term candidate in nomination.

It was here that the voice of the commissioner of sewers boomed out its cry for a third term.

It was here that the name of Thomas Jefferson was booed, and the protesting voices of men who had long been honored in the Democratic Party were drowned out by the organized henchmen of the Kelly-Nash machine.

Nearby, in the twenty-seventh ward headquarters those self styled liberals, Harry Hopkins and Harold Ickes, conferred with bosses Kelly, Hague, and Flynn—behind bullet-proof windows.

That is the way the third term candidate was chosen. That is the way the people of America were asked to give their confidence to the New Deal Party.

In the history of American politics there is no record like this. No men purporting to represent the American people have ever been so cynical, so callous, so brazen in their disregard for Democratic ideals as these men have been.

"We Desire to Remain at Peace"

And I cannot believe, I simply cannot believe that the American people will employ these men again as guardians of their democracy in the critical hour that we face.

As we look out upon the world today there is one blessing that we all profoundly desire. We desire to remain at peace.

The New Deal promises to keep us out of war. The third-term candidate says that he hates war. He said on September 11: "I have one supreme determination—to do all I can to keep war away from these shores for all time."

That is the promise.

My fellow citizens: In the light of the record I challenge it. The third-term candidate has not kept faith with the American people. How are we to know that he will begin to keep it now?

Men and women of America, it is my ambition to reestablish good-faith between the American people and those in high office.

In this crusade that I am leading I have been out among the people. I have seen them by the millions. I have seen their faces.

I want to tell you about an incident that happened to me.

It is the kind of incident we are not supposed to talk about in these cynical days. Nevertheless, I will talk about it.

It happened while I was being driven in a parade through a city. In one of those parades I saw a little girl in the crowd. She was being pushed around by the crowd. And she was holding an American flag.

It was very difficult for her to stand up—the crowd was pushing her so much. But she kept holding the flag, trying to hold it up in the air.

It was a simple thing and I do not know why it was so vivid. But when I saw it I could see clearly what that flag meant. I saw clearly what it means to everyone of us who have ever held it.

This is what I think it means.

"It Means Freedom"

It means freedom. It means that men shall live together on this soil as free men, holding in their own hands the power of government.

It means strength. We must have within us, and we must exercise, the power to make things. We must produce. We must build. We must be prosperous. We must be confident of our arts and of our enterprises.

It means new horizons. As long as that flag waves America must grow.

And finally, it means good faith. Under that flag we must keep our promises—our promises to our friends, our promises to the people. By our good faith toward one another we can fill all the obligations of that flag. By our good faith we shall hold it up above the jostling crowd.

That is what the flag means. And when we make that meaning clear, to ourselves and to all the world, then, and not until then, can we be confident of peace.

Britain And France

The fact that Winston Churchill has seen fit at this time to make a personal appeal to the French people has given point to many unconfirmed rumors of an impending and far-reaching change for the worse in the relations between Great Britain and the Vichy government. However, another and simpler explanation of Mr. Churchill's plea is possible.

German propagandists have done everything they could during recent months to widen the gulf created between the British and the French as a consequence of France's capitulation. The Oran and Dakar episodes have provided fuel for the flames of Anglo-French misunderstanding. Yet millions of Frenchmen in occupied and unoccupied territory probably realize that the only hope of salvation which they have rests with Great Britain and the British capacity to continue the struggle.

It is to these Frenchmen that Churchill appealed. He did not ask them to make any immediate attempt to strike off their fetters. He asked them only to rearm their spirits, to understand what Great Britain is trying to do. If you are unable to help, he pleaded, at least do not hinder the British war effort.

"It is not defeat that France will now be made to suffer at German hands," Mr. Churchill charged, "but the doom of complete obliteration." Then came this eloquent expression of good will:

"Good night, then; sleep to gather strength for the morning, for the morning will come. Brightly will it shine on the brave and the true, the kindly, on all who suffer for the cause, and gloriously upon the tombs of heroes. Vive la France! Long live, also, the forward march of the common people in all the lands, toward their just and true inheritance and toward the broader and fuller age."

It is not surprising that the Nazis did everything possible to jam the wave lengths upon which these ringing words sped across the Channel to the people of France.

Progress In Hospitals

The need for preparedness in terms of doctors and hospitals may seem remote at this time. Yet the simple fact that doctors cannot be trained nor hospitals erected and equipped in a short period makes advance planning in these fields essential in any period of emergency.

Fortunately, doctors are giving a good deal of thought to their part in a preparedness program. Out in Chicago, where the Clinical Congress of the American College of Surgeons is meeting, experts are discussing standardization of medical procedures to avoid waste of time and effort under wartime conditions. The aim is to assure sufficient medical service for both military and civilian needs in any circumstances that might arise.

Significant also at this time is the announcement by the American College of Surgeons of a 1940 approved list of hospitals. More than 2,800 institutions in the United States, Canada and a few other countries are now on this approved list. These institutions contribute services of inestimable value to the Nation.

Ten million people were treated in our hospitals last year, entering them at the rate of one every 3.2 seconds. Three million of them underwent major surgery. One million were maternity patients. Utilization of hospital service has grown to such an extent, these figures reveal, that one-thirteenth of our people were at some time during 1939 in a hospital.

In the 40 years since 1900 the general death rate has been lowered by 39 per cent. Just what share of this achievement should be credited to hospitals it is not possible to determine, but unquestionably the increase and improvement in hospital facilities have been a large factor in it.

Our hospital defenses are immeasurably stronger than they were when the last war threatened and struck. It was after that war that the American College of Surgeons began its hospital standardization program. The deficiencies of hospitals were more clearly revealed by the demands of the war, as were also the good qualities. The college formulated a minimum standard and after extensive surveys issued an approved list in 1918 which contained the names of 89 hospitals. Gradually the standard has been more generally adopted, until now almost half of the hospitals in the United States and Canada are approved.

Defense And Recovery

The difference between economic recovery and an armament boom should never be lost to sight. Entirely aside from any political considerations, Wendell Willkie has rendered a national service by centering attention upon this easily forgotten distinction.

Enormous orders have been placed by the Government for military equipment, for housing, clothing and supplies for the new army that will soon be under training. The manufacture of airplanes and construction of fighting ships have become booming industries. Vast numbers of men now idle will soon be employed in these tasks and in the supplying of materials for the armaments program. Production will inevitably increase, as Mr. Willkie pointed out, and unemployment will decline.

Vital as this program is to our national security, it is not the type of industrial activity which supplies the wants of men and women as individuals. These billions of dollars which are beginning to stimulate our economic system will go, in large measure, for destructive weapons. Most of the funds being used for that purpose are being borrowed at present. Ultimately, however, these sums must be obtained from the pockets of the people.

Mr. Willkie was not casting reflections upon the rearmament program when he declared that the creation of a huge war machine is not an achievement "on the road to progress." No one has emphasized more positively than he the necessity of preparing the country to meet totalitarian threats to our safety. Yet he sees compulsory military training and rearmament as "terrible duties that we must perform." He has no illusion as to the artificial nature of the prosperity which a huge arms program may seem to produce.

Experts for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States have estimated that the defense program now outlined will cost approximately $50,000,000,000. Maintenance of the military, naval and air forces now contemplated, it is believed, will cost more than $7,000,000,000 annually. This one prospective item of expense substantially exceeds the total revenue the Government expects to collect this year.

Ways and means of financing this tremendous program must be found. No one can safely assume that the emergency confronting us will quickly pass and that the country will then have ample opportunity to pay its debt at leisure. It is already certain that heavy armament expenditures will continue for a number of years.

So a revival of private enterprise becomes important, not only as a means of speeding up the defense program now and of taking up the slack in our productive system when it becomes possible to curtail the output of military equipment. It is also essential to enable the United States to carry this enormous burden of expense.

In the last few years the Government has piled up large debts without any extraordinary outlays for defense preparations. Now it is confronted by the truly stupendous task of building a powerful military machine and achieving fiscal stability at the same time.

Nation Of Churchills

If they believed everything that their press tells them, Italians ought to be convinced by now that the British fleet exists only at the bottom of the Mediterranean. For, on paper, every British warship has been sunk three times over by Mussolini's bombing planes and submarines.

If they believed everything that Dr. Goebbels and his henchmen say or write for the public enlightenment, Germans ought to be a unit in declaring that London is today a completely uninhabitable mass of smoldering ruins.

But even the most regimented Nazi or Fascist must find it difficult to believe these things and, at the same time, understand the apparent necessity of continued Italian aerial and submarine assaults on British warships and the unceasing attack on the British metropolis. Indeed, the one fact which neither the German nor the Italian press has tried to dispute is that the British are still in the field. With Berlin bombed and the Po Valley attacked by the R. A. F. that would be out of the question.

A Berlin dispatch to Count Ciano's newspaper, the Telegrafo of Leghorn, goes so far as to admit that Germany is "surprised" by British resistance. It is not difficult to believe this. According to Axis propaganda, the British were licked long ago. Why they do not seem to realize it is a puzzler which appears to be very difficult to explain to Germans and Italians. But the Telegrafo makes the attempt.

"Is it really true," that paper asks, "that 47,000,000 Britons are 47,000,000 Churchills, all determined to die under the ruins of the British Empire rather than give in?" To this question it offers no answer, presumably on the ground that it is too ridiculous to require an answer. But maybe Ciano's journalistic mouthpiece is not so wide of the mark at that.

A Tokyo-Moscow Deal?

Lieut. Gen. Yoshitosugu Tatekawa, the newly-designated Japanese Ambassador to Russia, is said to be taking with him to Moscow an offer from his government for a comprehensive agreement with the Soviet Union.

Exactly what kind of a reception will be given this offer remains to be seen. That will depend in no small measure, of course, on the nature and extent of the concessions which Japan is prepared to make in return for Russian friendship. For the time being, however, the Kremlin has done nothing to discourage Japanese feelers for a pact with the Soviet Union.

The reason for this attitude is not hard to find. The tripartite pact of September 27 has brought into one camp the two nations from whom Russia has most to fear, namely Germany and Japan. And this potential threat arises at a time when the Third Reich is moving perilously close to the Soviet lifeline in the Black Sea-Bosporus-Dardanelles area.

Should Russia become hostile toward German ambitions in southeastern Europe, it would obviously be to her advantage not to have an enemy on her Asiatic flank. For that reason alone the Kremlin may be inclined to welcome a Japanese olive branch. Yet Stalin can not afford to assume that Russo-Japanese friendship can be achieved on a permanent basis. The most he could get out of a deal with Japan at this moment is time to consolidate Russia's position in Asia while concentrating her strength to meet any eventualities in Europe.

It is reported from Tokyo that the prospective Japanese offer includes four provisions. First, Russia would recognize Manchukuo and Japan, in return, would recognize Outer Mongolia as part of the Soviet system. Secondly, both countries would withdraw their garrisons from the Manchukuo-Siberian and Manchukuo-Outer Mongolian frontiers. Thirdly, Russia would be allowed to open a legation at Hsinking, the capital of Manchukuo, and Japan would obtain a similar right at Ulan Bator, Outer Mongolia. And, lastly, Japan would recognize the predominant interest of Russia in the Chinese province of Sinkiang (Chinese Turkestan).

Such a program would be very much more to Japan's advantage, at present, than to Russia's. Japan would certainly like to withdraw at least part of her Kwantung garrison, which contains some of the finest units in her army, for service outside of Manchukuo. Yet as long as the Chinese continue their resistance the Kwantung garrison constitutes no real danger to the Soviet Union.

Nor would it be of any particular value to Russia at this time to have Japan recognize the former's control over Outer Mongolia. It is doubtful, too, whether Russia has any desire to permit Japanese to observe conditions in that region from the vantage point of Ulan Bator. The Russians have been extremely careful to keep all foreigners out of Outer Mongolia. Similarly, the Kremlin may see little advantage in Japanese recognition of Russia's predominant interest in Chinese Turkestan.

Unless the Japanese are prepared to pay a far higher price for Russian friendship than these terms would indicate, the forthcoming negotiations at Moscow would seem to have little prospect of thoroughgoing success. Yet the exigencies of the international situation may force the two nations into a temporary truce, if only to free their hands for action on other fronts.

The American Mother Goose

From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Ray Wood, who was born down in Arkansas, where books were scarce, and now lives in Texas, where they are still pretty few to the square mile, grew up without learning the classic Mother Goose rhymes of childhood. But his parents and grandparents and aunts and uncles and older cousins played games and counted one another in and out to rhymes and riddles either of American origin or so greatly changed from older forms that little or nothing of the original remained.

They sat on the steps in the Ozark twilight, looked up and said:

Star-light, star-bright
First star I've seen tonight;
I wish I may, I wish I might
Get the wish I wish tonight.

They lined up for a race and the starter called out:

One for the money, two for the show,
Three to make ready, four to go!

They scattered about the farm in hide-and-seek while the barefooted boy who was "it" sang at the top of his voice:

Bushel of wheat, bushel of rye,
All that ain't hid, holler out "aye."
Bushel of wheat, bushel of clover,
All that ain't hid, can't hide ovér.

These jingling rhymes have stayed with Mr. Wood for more than half a century. Now after traveling about the country, asking hillside farmers, moonshiners, Congressmen, businessmen, writers and a host of others for their remembered rhymes, he has published upward of 100 as "The American Mother Goose." Eerie, Oarie, Eekerie, Ann; Possum up a Gum Stump, Connie in the Holler, and others which will evoke childhood memories in many an adult mind are in his engaging collection. One, however, brings us up short:

Good-night, sleep tight,
Don't let the mosquitoes bite.

Hitler's Methods

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Before we Americans become too violently critical of the internal governmental policies and political methods of Herr Hitler, it may not be altogether out of the bounds of wisdom for us to check up on the internal governmental policies and political methods of our own political leaders, in order, of course, to prevent the possibility of our becoming involved in the inconsistent circumstance of "the pot calling the kettle black."

For instances: Herr Hitler, we are told, under an emergency inspired mandate from the German people, has subjugated the Reichstag (a body similar in purpose to our own Congress and Senate) to a point where it is a mere puppet in his hands. Have our political leaders ever approached or attempted such a status?

Again, we are advised, Herr Hitler purges the Nazi Party of all those who are opposed to his views. Have any of our political leaders ever tried anything of that kind?

And again, we are informed, Herr Hitler, through threat of exclusion from the Nazi benefits, or through a self-assumed Messianic attitude, has gained control of the majority of the German electorate. Have any of our political leaders gained control of votes by this process?

And still again, we are admonished, Herr Hitler has "cracked down" on the wealth of Germany through the medium of teaching class prejudice. Have any of our political leaders exhibited an inclination in that direction

If, after a check-up, we should find our political leaders innocent of these things, I feel that we would be well within the folds of consistency in hurling verbal bombs at the German boss; but, if we should find our leader guilty, I believe we would show considerable more respect for consistency, if we would clean up our own political yard, before we tossed too many verbal bombs at the German Bigwig.

Segregation In The Army

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am a young Negro, one of 16,500,000 potential fellow draftees of all races and creeds who are slated to register and do their bit in the immediate future to aid in insuring the "American way of life."

For several years I have been a dyed-in-the-wool admirer of President Roosevelt personally and an advocate, generally speaking, of the majority of New Deal policies, mainly because of their more or less humanitarian aspects.

However, the other day this worthy was rudely shocked when he noted in a press release from the White House that the President of the United States, in this hour of national and international peril, has bowed to the mandate of racial prejudice and has approved, unconditionally, segregation in the armed forces of our country.

Ironclad national unity is needed as never before in America's history. Wise heads have emphasized time and again that this is no ordinary war. This is revolution in its most drastic forms—social, economic, racial and political. For America to withstand such an onslaught, it naturally seems logical that the primary and most important objective would be to weld this great Nation of ours into one gigantic body. If there were ever any logic in discarding—even if only for the time being—racial, religious and class prejudices, this absolutely is the time. We simply can't have our cake and eat it, too. As always, discrimination against any American citizen, regardless of his color or creed, is a threat to the security of the whole.

On Fascist Activities In America

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As an Italo-American citizen interested in and concerned about the welfare of this country (my country), and of all the people that support the fundamental principles of this Republic—democracy, liberty and the pursuit of happiness—for which the founders fought and died, I have, for a long time, resented and fought Italian-Fascist propaganda in the United States. The coercion and indoctrination of fascism long ago became evident to the naturalized Italian as well as others, because of its disastrous consequences, to the required duties in the support of our institutions, our national interest and the national defense.

Now, more than ever, there is general indignation that such activities still exist here. The best writing thus far that gives the public a short documentary story of such activities is a report, "Italian-Fascist Activities in the U. S. A.," released on October 13, 1940, by the American Council on Foreign Affairs. It is prepared by Prof. Gaetano Salvemini, with an introduction by Prof. William Y. Elliott, of Harvard University.

To point out the importance of Prof. Salvemini's story, I quote a few parts of Prof. Elliott's introduction and observations:

"Prof. Salvemini's exposure of the cynically unconcealed activities of Fascist consuls and the propaganda of their known agents on the radio, in the press, in the schoolroom, and even in the pulpit, should arouse our Government to the expulsion of proven enemies and potential saboteurs. Otherwise, many will despair of our democracy's ability to act. For the proof is documentary and the case an irrefutable one against those Fascist agents who have publicly advocated a first loyalty to Mussolini, even from American citizens. Only recently have they troubled to deny their mission of destruction. Those citizens of Italy who have professed this mission ought to be expelled as hostile agents. At the very least, they should be deprived of the direction and funds that come from the consulates which we still tolerate in spite of their proved activities among our own citizens. Italy expels Americans ruthlessly. Let us do the same in return. If that leads to a break, we shall not be the losers, and we shall have acted in time.

"But Prof. Salvemini rightly points to two dangers that we must avoid in attacking fascism: The first is that we may, indiscriminately, dump all people of Italian descent as part of Mussolini's empire. That would be to accept the Fascists' own false claims and to drive loyal citizens into the wrong camp. Most of the people of Italian descent in this country are loyal Americans. Often they would be more active and openly patriotic if the Fascist intimidations and economic reprisals were removed. We must offer means of counterorganization and show our sincere appreciation of our loyal immigrants and their descendants. A 'Loyal Immigrants League' has been proposed as a part of the National Council for Democracy recently organized."

Civil Liberties

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In an editorial entitled "Fearing the Light" The Washington Post expressed its support for the Voorhis bill requiring organizations with "foreign connections" to make public their membership lists and finances. I wish to take issue with you on this question and am submitting reasons for my position, hoping that the phrase, "freedom of press," is still interpreted to mean that the press will publish various opinions and beliefs, whether it approves of them or not.

The Voorhis bill has been jammed through both houses of Congress with practically no discussion. It is but one of a series of measures, such as the alien registration bill (all ill-begotten offsprings of the Dies committee), rushed through Congress on a manufactured wave of war hysteria. Although its immediate aim is to cripple the Communist Party, its sponsors also see in it a convenient weapon with which to attack the trade unions, create a public blacklist of militant workers and finally destroy democratic rights of all the people.

It is an indisputable fact, repeatedly proven by the history of the past two decades, that every nation that has lost its liberties started on the downward path with the act of suppressing the Communists. This was the path of development in Germany, Italy and has most recently been confirmed by the tragic experience of France.

The Voorhis bill is but another example of the hypocritical, legalistic verbage used by the Roosevelt Administration to cloak its attacks on American democracy. Through the use of these legalistic subterfuges the Administration has made a mockery of the Bill of Rights, forcing many minority political parties off the ballot in about a dozen States and sending their candidates to jail for 10 and 15 years (as in West Virginia and Oklahoma) for the crime of taking the Bill of Rights seriously.

There is every reason to register real agents of foreign powers. But if the Roosevelt Administration were sincere in this purpose it would go after characters like Sir George Paish and the other British agents who have spread through our country and are brazenly carrying on their activities to get this country into the European imperialist slaughter for the noble ideal of preserving the British Empire.

Instead of doing this the Administration has been persecuting such outstanding Americans as Earl Browder because he is tirelessly and incorruptibly fighting for peace and liberty for the American people.

Labor And Defense

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: One of the reasons Uncle Sam is drafting men is because it is unable to get qualified personnel to operate its mechanized machinery. Such being the case, why can't Uncle Sam draft carpenters and other mechanics to build cantonments? It is a bad rule that doesn't work both ways!

Why should the United States be party to a system that drafts an aviation mechanic and pays him $30 a month and lets cantonment construction in this country be held up by strikers being paid many times that per month? We understand the Washington politicians are afraid to draft labor, and the excuse of a $10,000 draft administrator has its genesis, we hear, in a report that the President wanted to appease labor unions because the military heads of the draft overlooked the power of labor leaders to make trouble unless cajoled. They say that peanut politics is what wrecked France.

Meerschaum

The very name of Meerschaum speaks of the unusual. One is immediately reminded of wealth and luxury; of famous personages and colorful scenes in history. One associates such names as Victor Hugo, Oliver Cromwell and Mozart, who were inveterate smokers and lovers of the meerschaum pipe.

Then real romance is there, for meerschaum is unique, both in substance and in the history of its formation. Meerschaum is a crystallized mixture of sea foam, magnesium and chalk, which, by some strange phenomenon of nature, became imbedded under the earth's surface where it has lain for thousands of years. About 900 years ago it was discovered in its present petrified form.

To add further glamour, the poetic name for meerschaum is Aphrodite, (meaning sea foam). Aphrodite, Greek goddess of love and beauty, who, at her birth, is reported to have sprung from the foam of the sea. Thereby hangs a tale for smokers to dream upon.

Meerschaum is an opaque mineral of a white, gray or cream color. Commercial meerschaum was principally obtained from alluvial deposits on the plain of Eski Shehr, Asia Minor, the only country in the world where meerschaum of fine smoking quality has been produced. These deposits were at one time extensively worked, and were said to contain hundreds of horizontal shafts for mining.

When first extracted, the mineral is soft and somewhat plastic, although it soon hardens when exposed to heat or air. Serpentine contains a limited amount of meerschaum. In this form it is found in Greece, Moravia, France, Spain and Morocco. Occasionally it is found in our own country in the following States: Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Utah.

The raw meerschaum, in large lumpy masses, was first scraped to remove foreign substances, dried, then again scraped and polished with wax. These crude blocks were sent from the East to Vienna, for years the principal center of meerschaum manufacture. Here the blocks were softened by a secret process, carved by the most expert craftsmen, and finished by a special method of hand polishing. This was done with reeds taken from the bullrushes. Finally the pipes were dipped in molten beeswax and hardened. This made them durable and produced a high luster.

Amber mouthpieces, the ideal complement for meerschaum, were cut by hand to fit each individual pipe. Vienna was also an amber center. For this reason the procuring of these two valuable materials for pipemaking was not difficult.

A soft white earthy mineral closely related to meerschaum has been found in Sweden. Also a somewhat similar material is mined in Mexico. A quantity of this is used by pipemakers for topping the calabash pipe. It is impossible for the amateur to judge the quality of meerschaum. Only the professional pipemaker and the collector, who has spent years acquiring both pipes and knowledge, can be trusted to know his subject.

The meerschaum was the first pipe to supplant in popularity the clays of England and the porcelains of central Europe. It is reported that Karl Kowates, Hungarian bootmaker and skilled worker in wood, turned out the first known meerschaum pipe around 1725. A lump of meerschaum was brought from Turkey by Count Andrassy. This was given to the bootmaker with the request that he carve a pipe of it.

Kowates not only made one for the Count, he also made one for his own use. As he smoked his pipe, he was surprised to find that where his fingers had smeared the bowl with cobbler's wax, that portion had turned a beautiful golden brown. This discovery is said to be the origin of the waxing process which is so essential to the beauty of old meerschaums. These pipes, in particular, appeal to the collector because of the remarkable color they acquire under constant use.

It is to be regretted the meerschaum is not a practical pipe in this modern day of too little leisure. They are too delicate and fragile. The material is exceptionally light and porous, and produces a cool dry smoke. But it takes years of careful handling to bring out their perfection of coloring.

When the bowl is hot, great care must be taken to prevent marring from fingerprints. Silk coverings for the bowls, and coloring cups were used by the old smokers of the meerschaums. The tobacco was not placed directly in the bowl. These cups kept the heat and smoke from too direct contact with the pipe, thus causing the coloring process to be more evenly distributed.

The splendid collection of a well-known pipemaker includes a handsome pipe whose pastial history is unique, and leads to considerable amount of conjecture. This pipe is 10 to 12 inches in length, and the carving is delicately executed. Around the bowl, which is shaped like a giant lily, are carved in action, two graceful Arabian horses. The pipe was accidently found with a collection of antique coin, secreted in the walls of an old tavern near Ellicott City, Md. The words, "G. Washington," are scrawled on the under side of the bowl. It was discovered by a wrecking crew when the tavern was torn down.

Carving in meerschaum is a lost art. The last fine carver in this country, a Bostonian, is now dead. At present, not only is the future of the meerschaum pipe industry obscured in a fog of uncertainty, but the estimated supply of high grade meerschaum is practically exhausted. Although the situation is to be deplored, it still presents a bright side. The serious collectors of the meerschaum pipe are capably preserving this remarkable art for posterity.

On The Record

By Dorothy Thompson

Dr. Auhagen

FOR SOME REASON, unknown to this column, the Dies Committee has not made public information in its possession that is more sensational than anything since the Zimmermann note; information which implicates the German Embassy and the German consular service, the Transocean News Service, headed by Manfred Zapp; the German Railroads Information Office, and, no doubt, many other agencies in the most flagrant intervention in American internal affairs. This information, for instance, reveals that the fourth German White Book was timed, on the advice of Zapp, to influence the Illinois primaries against President Roosevelt. It further reveals, from letters on the stationery of the German Embassy, that Adrian Arcand, the Canadian fascist leader, and his French-language newspaper have been financed by Germany, with Manfred Zapp, in New York, as the pay-off, and that the North German Lloyd office in Montreal was a propaganda and espionage center, with the ticket clerk as the propaganda center and the party cell member.

THE DIES COMMITTEE also knows that intelligence agents of the Rome-Berlin Axis have met in New York at the home of the director of the German Railroads Information Office and that the letters to German consuls from at least one editor of a German language newspaper close with "Heil Hitler," express devotion to the cause and ask for free news service from Zapp.

One interpretation placed upon the withholding of the information is that the Department of State does not desire the severance of diplomatic relations with Germany, which would be almost inevitable if the information came out officially.

DR. FRIEDRICH Ernst Auhagen, who was picked up by Federal agents on the West Coast as he was about to embark for Japan and held on the charge of possessing obscene pictures, was allowed to return East on the promise to testify before the Dies committee, which now is uncertain whether or not to put him on the stand at all.

Dr. Auhagen's activities will probably prove to have been linked only tenuously to the German government. He and his organization, the American Fellowship Forum, have conducted the most subtle and intelligent campaign to influence and direct American public opinion and American policy.

The American Fellowship Forum poses as a purely American organization. The brochures which promote its program say no word about Germany. The Fellowship Forum appeals to "constructive-minded people to get together for united action . . . to form a powerful movement, the kind of active and determined group that can get things done under our American system." "National unity, confidence, an intelligent attitude toward foreign affairs, and patriotism" are its ostensible aims. It wants to concentrate the attention of the American people "on the solution of their domestic problems, make them recovery-minded, create a mental and emotional prerequisite to recovery . . . and prosperity . . . combat every trend injuries to spiritual and material rejuvenation."

TO THIS END it has organized branches in a number of cities. In April, 1940, according to its own literature, it was represented by branches in New York, Newark, Philadelphia, Springfield, Mass.; Cleveland, Chicago and La Salle, Ill.

It arranged meetings with speakers. These meetings were often debates on domestic and European subjects.

Dr. Auhagen's leading brain-trusters were Philip Johnson and Lawrence Dennis, both Harvard men and both brilliant. Mr. Johnson was once associated with Huey Long. Lawrence Dennis, who publishes The Weekly Foreign Letter, a mimeographed sheet that goes out to businessmen and politicians and analyzes foreign political trends veiledly from the Axis viewpoint, is a former member of the American foreign service who believes that the capitalist system is on its last legs and that it must and will be succeeded in the United States by a fascist regimen—arguments advanced in two published books.

THE AMERICAN Fellowship Forum has published irregularly a small magazine called Today's Challenge. So far as I know, only three issues appeared. All contained articles by Dr. Auhagen, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Dennis. William R. Castle, former Undersecretary of State in the Hoover Administration, contributed to two issues; Representative Hamilton Fish and the late Senators Lundeen and Borah were also contributors, the latter furnishing merely an article against war.

IF ONE analyzes the policy advocated by the Fellowship Forum for America as revealed in its publications, one finds that in foreign affairs it is precisely the policy advocated by Col. Lindbergh and by the Save-America-First movement, which is playing so active a role in the present campaign against the President, and which, in domestic affairs, stands for a kind of Vichy fascism.

Mr. George Sylvester Viereck, who was associated with the Fellowship Forum and with Today's Challenge was eventually dropped because of his embarrassing record as a German propagandist in the last war and because, by accepting a position here as a correspondent of the Muenchener Neueste Nachrichten, he was open to the charge of being a "paid" agent. I understand that the Dies Committee has evidence to show that Dr. Auhagen himself received direct subsidies from Germany; but Dr. Auhagen has always claimed that he was supported by Americans, and he has been indiscreet enough in private conversations to name some of them. He has also been supported by contributions from German-American businessmen.

LONG FAMILIARITY with the Nazi technique of the coup d'etat—the strategy of insinuation into the political life of countries which the Nazis wish to undermine and paralyze—makes Dr. Auhagen's role clearly recognizable. His prototypes played leading roles in France and in England. Seldom directly, but by consciously directed indirection, their business is to reach not the "rabble," who are approached by the Winrods, Sanctuarys, Edmondsons, Pelleys, McWilliamses and Coughlins, but to penetrate high places—centers of political influence and economic power—reach the so-called realists and convert them to the idea that democracy needs considerable streamlining, discipline and authority, and that the economic interests of the United States, its welfare and its peace can best be served by collaboration with the Germans, who are going to win the World War anyhow and who represent, in a general pattern, the future form of civilization. This was the role in France of Dr. Abetz, who was so successful in cafe life and among bankers and whose cause was so charmingly advanced by beautiful women.

It is the Auhagens who advance the Machiavellian thesis that only an American fascism, of the upper-class-dominated Vichy variety, is capable of winning a war against Germany.

IT WAS the Auhagens and their collaborators who persuaded important people in Britain and France to furnish vital supplies to the German government up to the very moment when they were attacked. It was the Auhagens who, with infinite tact and indirection, managed to have British industrialists sitting in Stuttgart with German industrialists, planning a trade pact at the very moment when the Germans were marching into Prague.

And the cosmic joke in the whole business is that many of the people whom they reach and influence have not the remotest idea of the purpose for which they are being used.

Despite the record of every country, no country learns for itself except through the most bitter experience.

One-Armed Bandits

THIS IS THE WEEK of a three-day carnival of smorgasbord, refined entertainment and innocent fun arranged in honor of the debut of Capt. James Roosevelt, U. S. Marine Corps, Reserve, in a new field of business. Capt. Roosevelt, the eaglet of the dynasty, thus announces his association with the Mills Novelty Co., of Chicago, the leading manufacturers of an innocent vending device which has been put to questionable uses by sinister characters in many sections of the country, described as the one-armed bandit and deplored by police and clergy as the mechanism of the corrupt slot-machine racket.

Invitations to the gala read as follows:

"You are cordially invited by James Roosevelt and Fred Mills to attend the Eastern premiere and exposition of Mills panoram machine and 'soundies' at the Waldorf-Astoria. Admission by this invitation only, bearer and party. Please reply on inclosed card to Fred Mills, Mills Novelty Co., Chicago."

THE PROGRAM inclosed with the invitation lists activities that began last Sunday with the "Mills open house," consisting of smorgasbord, or Swedish cold delicacies, and special entertainment under the direction of Miss Sixteen Rogers, "the famous Panoram Girl," as hostess. Yesterday's program included the Fred Mills luncheon, a "press and celebrity" party, "soundies," an address by the eaglet of the New Deal dynasty and the presentation of "stars of theatrical, radio and musical world."

Today's exercises, as announced in the program, provide an introduction of "celebrities" with this paranthetical enticement: "Have your picture taken with Jimmy Roosevelt."

There will be those persons of ill-will and political bias, no doubt, who will enjoy believing that Capt. Roosevelt's association with the company, which for many years has manufactured the one-armed bandit by the thousands, is indicative of something. That, however, is unworthy of any broad-minded American, for the fact is, of course, that the Mills Novelty Co. has been pained by the misuse of its invention by low individuals in politics and the underworld to violate the laws against gambling and to corrupt the administration of Government and justice, all to the great detriment of American civic morality.

IF A MAN manufactures shotguns, for example, is it his fault that a purchaser having low ideals and a warped notion of citizenship employs the same to blow a business rival full of rusty bolts and automobile parts? It is, indeed, not the fault of the manufacturer, the less so if, on offering the shotgun for sale, he gives a particular warning this device, if fired at a business rival, will produce results highly deleterious to that individual's health and to the peace and order of the community.

So, also, if the manufacturer of a vending machine gives notice that it should not be used to violate the laws respecting gambling his responsibility to his Maker and his country has been nobly discharged. He certainly cannot be blamed for the sins of those who pervert an honest mechanism to uses which are not respectable.

IN SPITE of the high purposes of the Mills Novelty Co. in producing one-armed bandits to purvey little sticks of chewing gum, evil groups in Chicago, New York, rural New England and the rural Midwest and South, New Orleans, the Miamis, California and New Jersey have persistently flouted the law. Millions of dollars have been obtained by this means, and in many communities lawless individuals have used part of their ill-gotten gains to bribe the local government and police to neglect their duty.

It hardly needs to be said—but it has been said in court proceedings intended to enjoin the ownership and operation of the one-armed bandit—that the Mills Novelty Co. regrets such misuse of its products.

W. L. MACKENZIE KING

He has served 14 years as Premier of Canada, says Ernest K. Lindley, being one of three Canadian prime ministers who have served four terms each. "The experience of other democracies," he argues, "refutes the argument that democracy is imperiled by choosing the same person to be head of the government for more than two terms or more than eight years"

Third Term In Other Democracies

IT MAY BE RATHER LATE in the campaign to discuss the third-term question apart from personalities. Much of the comment on the subject, however, betrays a belief that democracy requires a limit on the number of terms or years in which the same public office may be held by one individual.

Obviously that is not so. We do not limit the number of terms or years which may be served by United States Senators or members of the House of Representatives. In a few States there are limitations on the number of terms for a Governor and possibly for some minor officials. But by and large there are no limitations, either by law or by custom, on the terms or years that one individual may fill the same elective office in the United States. We do not recognize the idea of rotation of office as important. What we do insist upon as important is that the voters shall have at regular intervals—of from one to six years—the opportunity to determine who shall fill each and every elective office.

With regard to the Presidency of the United States there is a so-called tradition. It is not a constitutional or statutory limitation. And it is a tradition only in the sense that no President has served more than two full terms. As this column has brought out on several occasions, it is a "tradition" chiefly because up to now our two-term Presidents were too old and weary to serve a third term, or had lost control of their parties and could not win renomination.

IN CONSIDERING whether there is anything essential to democracy in the two-term tradition it is interesting to note the experience of other nations with democratic forms of government.

Since Canada became a dominion under the British North American Act of 1867 it has had three prime ministers who served four terms each. Sir John A. Macdonald's four terms covered 19 years, in all. Sir Wilfred Laurier's covered 15 consecutive years. The present prime minister, W. L. Mackenzie King, has served 14 years so far, and his fourth term is not yet at an end.

Gen. Hertzog was prime minister of the Union of South Africa for four terms and served 15 consecutive years, losing out in 1939 shortly after the outbreak of the present war.

J. A. Lyons was prime minister of Australia for three terms.

Since our Civil War Great Britain has had four prime ministers who served three or more terms. Gladstone served four, covering about 13 years. The Marquess of Salisbury served four, covering 13 years. Ramsay MacDonald served three, covering about seven years, and Stanley Baldwin three, covering about nine years.

IN IRELAND Cosgrave served four terms as head of the government and De Valera is serving his fourth term.

Colijn was premier of the Netherlands for three terms; Hanson of Sweden is in his third. Masaryk was President of Czecho-Slovakia for four terms. Stauning, premier of Denmark, is now in his fifth term, having served 13 years so far.

It may be argued that most of these heads of governments were chosen by the parliamentary system, that they were elected by legislative bodies and held their power only so long as they held the confidence of majorities of those bodies. Our President, unless impeached, cannot be removed before expiration of his term. In some ways he is more powerful than a prime minister; in others he is less powerful. The most popular Presidents have been checked repeatedly by Congress, and in the midterm elections to the Senate and House the voters have their chance to express in a general way their approval or disapproval of the party headed by the President. When a President loses the confidence of Congress, if not of the public, before the end of his term, what usually ensues is a deadlock. This is our alternative to the immediate change of government characteristic of the parliamentary system.

THE ESSENTIAL thing that is common to all democracies is that the voters shall have a periodic opportunity to express their free choice.

The experience of other democracies refutes the argument that democracy is imperiled by choosing the same person to be head of the government for more than two terms or more than eight years. One election was all that was needed by Hitler, or would ever be needed by any man intent upon dictatorship. So long as we have a free choice we have democracy. The surest proof that we will continue to have democracy under a particular President is that after he has been in office almost eight years we still have the right to make a free choice.

Elmer On Football

"There has been a lot of jumping on a couple of colleges whose officials have come out this season against any cash and carry stars on the football teams," said Elmer Twitchell, the old football fan, stamp collector and card sharp, today. "But I am among the non-jumpers. I think it is a refreshing treat these days to run into a college football game, played by both colleges purely for sport by on-the-level young men, who put minds first and biceps second.

"And what's more, I think that before many seasons somebody will discover that there is a big audience for this kind of above-board-nothing-up-the-sleeve football in which the players on both sides are strictly kids, with no costly Tarzans anywhere on the squads.

"I think there are millions of Americans who like the idea of football played in the sporting spirit for sport's sake instead of football played for the Rose Bowl, the headlines, the national advertising and the coach's build-up."

Mr. Twitchell was all agog as usual. "To me the pro game is strictly a business, combining all the elements of professional wrestling, professional pugilism, a waterfront Donnybrook and ice hockey without skates. It is exciting and there is a place for it and a public for it. There are also millions who crave college football with pro trimmings and I get a kick out of it, too.

"But I think there is something fine, stirring and appealing about college football played in the college spirit. The experts sock Yale and other colleges which play in this tradition today but, if you ask me, the pendulum will swing and the time will come when two college elevens playing the game purely as college elevens should play it, will again pack the bowls and stadiums.

"It was the old rah-rah stuff, the cheer leading, the songs, the banter and the color that drew me to football anyhow all through the years. And it was authentic and swell up to the era when the college began buying talent like beef on the hoof, paying coaches more than they paid the dean, mortgaging the library to build football plants and giving a Barnum & Bailey overtone to the whole business.

"I still like to feel that the fullback I am cheering can read and write and that the brilliant punter whom I am urging on doesn't have to depend on grunts to carry on a conversation. I don't get hot over football in the colleges where the dean has to tip his hat to the coach and where the faculty members must always get up and give the head trainer a seat.

"If the game as played by many colleges today is okay, then our colleges should take in Tony Galento to head the whole sports program, hire Jack Dempsey to take charge of the music and draft a couple of professional wrestlers to have charge of the entrance exams. If I'm wrong sue me."

Why The Immunity?

Quite a fuss is being made about publishers failing once or twice a year to publish certain columns by certain famous writers. The action is being howled at as unethical, unfair and as being most everything from arson to murder in the first degree. All of which, to this correspondent, is so much bilge. There is nothing about a columnist that makes him or her untouchable, or immune from an occasional kick in the slats. The trouble is that there are too many columnists today who think they are God.

Why a publisher who has, often after the hardest struggle, built up a paper through certain policies and ideals, should let any columnists put on the war paint, charge a new tommyhawk up to the office and proceed to scalp everything the paper stands for has always been beyond us. We'd like to see some of those boys and girls own their own paper and then watch how liberal they would be with some former publisher, who had turned columnist and wanted to write whatever he pleased. Oh, man!

Dual Siege

By Barnet Nover

Each Side Plans A Sortie

IF BRITAIN today is a beleaguered nation so, too, is Germany, although she dominates the whole of the European land mass from the Atlantic to the Vistula, from the Arctic to the Mediterranean.

That vast area ruled directly or indirectly by the Reichswehr and the Gestapo is rich in agricultural, mineral, industrial and human resources. Germany no longer has to worry about any possible shortage of iron ore, for instance. With Lorraine and Luxembourg and Upper Silesia under her direct control, with the ore of Sweden and Spain and Yugoslavia at her disposal, she will have enough and to spare of that indispensable metal. Nor, during the coming winter, at least, will she have to worry about food.

There may not be enough grain and meat and fats on the continent to take care of the needs of the entire population living within the German orbit. There will be enough to take care of the needs of the German army and the civil population of the Third Reich, even if the captive peoples have to tighten their belts further and submit to a drastic curtailment of their standards of living.

YET EUROPE is no self-contained continent. It depends on its economic hinterland in Africa, Asia, South America and elsewhere for all manner of necessities. And that hinterland has been cut off from Europe by the British blockade. Thus while Germany's spectacular victories of the past year have tended to ease some of the pressures on the Reich they have not altered the fundamental fact that Germany remains in a state of siege.

Now a siege can be ended in any one of several ways. In the first place the fortress can be stormed and taken. Secondly, the besieged can be worn out by the cutting off their supplies, by the depletion of their manpower and the weakening of their morale and by other attrition tactics. Or the besiegers can be routed by the arrival of relief for the besieged, as happened at Orleans, Lucknow, Mafeking, for instance. Finally, the besieged may themselves try a sortie and, through surprise or in other ways smash the besieging forces.

THERE APPEARS to be little doubt that, following the fall of France, Hitler began to make plans to storm the fortress of Britain. Thus far, however, he has been unable to carry out these plans and while the possibility remains that he may yet attempt it the chances now are that he will not do so before spring. On the other hand Great Britain is clearly in no position to make a land attack on Germany at this time, although the British insist that they are already making plans for such an action at some time in the future.

In the meantime each side has been waging a war of attrition against the other. The British are doing so against Germany by keeping the blockade tight and by their aerial attacks on German and German-held points. The Germans are doing so by means of their U-boats and particularly by their daily bombardment of London and many other British cities.

The full extent of the damage which has been done by these raids on Germany and on England is a dark secret. The total volume of destruction which has resulted in Great Britain from German aerial activities is, however, undoubtedly greater than that produced by the R. A. F. in Germany. But as long as it continues to be dominant at sea Great Britain is in a position to replenish indispensable supplies destroyed by bombing whereas Germany is not so fortunately situated.

That is particularly true with respect to gasoline, lubricating oil, copper and certain other essential metals. It is very possible that qualitatively if not quantitatively Germany has suffered more from the attrition tactics of the enemy than has Great Britain. And the increasingly important contribution in material which the United States can make is likely, in the long run, to weigh the balance against the Reich. Given time and American industry can come to the effective relief of the hard-pressed British.

THIS IS a factor which Hitler may never have reckoned on when he entered the war. It is a factor which he must increasingly take into account now that the war's duration threatens to exceed all Nazi calculations. No wonder, then, that Hitler is beginning to make plans for a sortie from the beleaguered continent. The occupation of Rumania was the first step. The subjection of Yugoslavia to economic servitude was another; the continued pressure on Greece and Turkey voluntarily and peacefully to enter the orbit of the Axis still another.

The Axis powers are leaving no stone unturned to make their excursion to the Suez, the Mediterranean, and the oil fields of Irak as easy as possible. To that end they are renewing their pressure on Spain to join in an assault on Gibraltar and despite Gen. Franco's reluctance they may succeed in this effort. Russia may be bribed or intimidated into acquiescing in the Axis plans. And France's role in subsequent events is apparently being worked out by Hitler in a series of obscure moves.

Should all these efforts succeed the blockade of Germany would partially be broken and the way would be paved for an intensification of the siege of Britain. Thus the importance of the frantic diplomatic maneuverings of the last weeks can hardly be exaggerated.

Bygone Elections

By Paul N. Furman

Roosevelt Picks Taft

THERE ARE marked points of similarity in the term of Theodore Roosevelt to which he was elected and the Administration of his distant cousin, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, now seeking a third term.

Theodore Roosevelt interpreted his election as a mandate from the people that his policies be adopted. Opposition to his social and economic policies was rife in Congress. He was too sure that his own way was right and that any other way or opposition must be wrong.

IN THIS TERM he acted as mediator to bring the war between Russia and Japan to an end. In his earlier term he set up the Republic of Panama to insure building of the canal.

The Republican convention met in Chicago on June 16. There was an attempt to stampede the delegates for Roosevelt, but they had gone to Chicago to nominate Taft and were not to be moved from their purpose by a gallery demonstration. Roosevelt had determined that Taft be his successor. He was nominated on the first ballot, with James S. Sherman, of New York, in second place.

William Jennings Bryan had gained control of the Democratic Party and was nominated in Denver on July 7. John W. Kern, of Indiana, was named for Vice President. Taft won easily and had 321 electoral votes to 162 for Bryan.

Willkie Boosters To Change Horses In Midstream

Several hundred supporters of Wendell Willkie from Alexandria, and Arlington and Fairfax Counties will participate in the Republican Party's Nation-wide observance of "No Third Term Day" today, with a program at Bull Run, Va., where the art of "changing horses in midstream" will be demonstrated at 4 p. m. An old-fashioned buggy and two horses will be used in the demonstration.

The Willkie boosters will go to the Goose Creek Tavern, near Leesburg, for dinner, returning later to Alexandria, where the Alexandria Willkie Club will sponsor a mass meeting at the George Mason Hotel. Leo Rover, former United States district attorney for Washington, will speak.

Defense Board Begins Moving November 15

5 Other Departments To Regain Space Used By Scattered Offices

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

Several Federal agencies are going to breathe a bit easier when the National Defense Commission, its offices now scattered through five buildings, begins moving into the new Social Security Building about November 15.

In the Federal Reserve Building, where the executive office of the commission is now housed, the banking experts will regain some 13,000 feet of floor and elbow space.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation may feel somewhat safer in its tenancy of the new Lafayette Building. The RFC moved into the Lafayette Building two weeks ahead of schedule when it heard reports that the Defense Commission was eyeing the new structure. As a matter of fact, one unit of the commission, the defense housing division, was already entrenched in the Lafayette Building when the RFC arrived.

Now Housed in Five Buildings

There was a noticeable tremor not long ago at the District Building when local officials heard that the Defense Commission had been favorably impressed by the new municipal building on John Marshall Place.

With the Defense Commission soon to move out of the "have not" class of agencies, everybody is going to feel much better, except Social Security, which is right back where it started.

The Defense Commission's 800 employes are now spread through the Federal Reserve, Munitions, North Interior and Lafayette Buildings and the Potomac Apartments. Nearly 450 of the employes are in the Munitions Building, where they occupy 42,000 feet of floor space. The 166 employes in the Federal Reserve Building occupy about one-seventh of that structure's floor space.

The commission's personnel division and part of its research and statistics department are working in the Potomac Apartments, where the joint Army and Navy selective service board holds most of the office space. In the North Interior Building is part of Nelson Rockefeller's staff for coordination of commercial and cultural relations between the Americas and part of the defense labor training unit under supervision of Sidney Hillman, labor representative on the commission.

To Move Day and Night

All the scattered branches of the commission are expected to be operating in the Social Security Building within a week after the structure is completed. The building's manager's office of the Public Buildings Administration, according to officials of that agency, will keep trucks moving 24 hours a day to transfer the commission's files and office equipment to its new headquarters. Since the commission is a young agency, it was pointed out, its accumulation of records is comparatively small and can be speedily moved.

The Social Security Building was originally scheduled for completion January 1, 1941, but Congress granted a special "speed-up" appropriation last spring to make the building available in November.

Ringside Table

With Mary Harris

"'RAY FOR BEVERLY!" was the chorus in Burt's Trans-Lux Monday night at Beverly Stull's home-coming to Washington. Hundreds of Beverly's friends crowded in to greet her, listen to her sleek and tricky accordioning. Ringsiding, we saw Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Humphreys, Juanita Stewart, "Admiral" Jimmy Byrd, of Mayfair; Campbell Vance and Jack Hasley. Beverly was done up like a bonbon in a low-cut burgundy satin, with big puff sleeves and huge white 'mum in her hair. When she played "Always and Always," it was for a special someone whose name we won't mention. No use spoiling these men.

Bert Stevens, who pianoed so magically in Cafe Caprice last summer, will return there tomorrow night with his new trio. This comes under the head of really fine news. You'll also remember Bert as star entertainer not long ago with Arthur Herbert's Band on the Starlight Roof.

DAFT DON RICE is emcee, comedian, Frankenstein, Minsky girl, snake charmer, playwright, drummer, quarterback and water boy at the Del Rio—with devastating results in every capacity. Not satisfied with being the spark plug of the show, he bursts up on the Del Rio balcony and tosses black-out skits every few minutes. You may think you're blase, but the odds are that "Daft" Don will put the Samuel Brothers and Vivian, formerly of Earl Carroll's 'Vanities" among added acts . . . Visiting star at Del Rio on Sunday night was the Hon. John White, majority leader of the Maryland House of Delegates, who sang several numbers from "Louisiana Purchase" very splendidly.

MIMI REMAINS. Luring Mimi Kellerman, who sends Troika patrons into complete dithers twice a night, will remain in Washington until November 10. Troika-ites threatened La Helen Hamilton with a palace revolution until Mimi's engagement was extended.

ENCHANTED AFTERNOON. This column nearly didn't get written because we attended Publicist Frank Romer's party for Gene Archer and the Four Men of Note, new luminaries of the Neptune Room. By accident Gene sang our pet tune, "Make Believe," and it turned out that we were both West Virginians. (No remarks about "Hills of West Virginia," please.) Then that fine person, Roland Robbins, manager of the Trans-Lux Theater, arrived and talk swerved to the reactions of audiences to news reels. The Four Men of Note put a stop to all talk with their smoothly sparkling music. This foursome with Gene and Evalyn Tyner adds up to five kings and a queen—what a hand!

Candy's being given away in the Casino Royal. The pretty new Lindsay Girls donate lollypops, etc . . . to ringsiders in their nursery number . . . A new show stars next Monday . . . Jive maestro Jack Schaeffer is writing, begging, borrowing and stealing Halloween lyrics.

THAT SO-AND-SO BEACH CHAIR. Jack Roth and a beach chair wrestle to a finish this week in the Shoreham Blue Room—while the customers fall off their non-beach chairs. It's more fun than the news real pix of Mussolini scaring himself to death. Anyone who's ever tried to cope with a beach chair (the inventor of which contraption should be served sizzling) appreciates every split second of Roth-romping. The barber-shop chords of the Music Hall Boys round out a laugh banquet that's a triumph for the Shoreham's diversion manager, Max Lowe.

BUSTLES GO BOOM! Funniest angle of Lotus' current "Fall Frolics" is the disdainful expression of the dancing chorines as they bump bustles in the Gay '90's number. You'll get a laugh, too, about the way the lads always get their mustaches and beards on cockeyed in this charade.

LILTS, LASSES AND L'COSTUME. Bonny Bonnie Boyd, of the Mayflower Lounge singing the spang new "Five O'Clock Whistle" in her equally new delft blue frock with gold buttons. (She's having a dickens of a time finding hair ribbons to match the dress) . . . Lounge

Riviera's Harriet Derck warbling sophisticated Noel Coward tunes in a sophisticated formal combining a Dubonnet top with a sapphire colored skirt . . . Eileen George, of the Anchor Room, sounding off on "My Greatest Mistake" in a ballroom sleeved blouse of fireman red that's no mistake a-tall . . . Mayfair's just returned Ruth McCullough very chirky in a little navy sports number and caroling "It's a Lovely Day Tomorrow."

DRUMS! DRUMS! The 4-foot conga drum in La Salle Versailles is the biggest in town, was bought in Havana by Owner Lily Santmyer . . . Don Lamond, of the 13-man Nightingale orchestra, is nightly electrifying the folks for a half mile around with his specialty, "A Man and His Drums."

THINKING OF EATING? Wardman Park has just started to serve its Sunday 'Southern Breakfasts" from 9 a. m. to 2 p. m. It'll be worth your while to get up by 2 o'clock on Sunday afternoons . . . Crowds attending the auto show are finding it both handy and mighty pleasant to fortify themselves with both food and beverages at the near-by Lee's Stables . . . You can treat your girl to a fine dinner at the Harrington Tavern, a show also, without denting your wallet, even between pay days . . . Lots of people like the Carlton's Cosmos Room so much that they come for afternoon cocktails, stay for dinner and right on for the supper dance . . . It's no use your asking for the recipe for that superlative fried chicken at River Bend. It's a secret. In fact, we think it's patented . . . Knowing Latin-Americans dine a la Mexico City in Dick's Grill.

Maestro Milton Davif, of the Rainbow Room, knows more about taking motion pictures than many professionals. He started it as a hobby back in 1925.

NEVER MISS the dynamic pianoing of Hi Hat's Sandy Ross when he goes to work on "Rhapsody in Blue" . . . Any double piano specialty by Bob Brewster and Eddie Chase in the Pall Mall Room . . . The hurricane touch that Madrillon's Trio Liroco give to congas . . . Jane Marlow's soloing of Bohm's "Cavatina" in the New Bavarian . . . Al Oddone's swing guitar in the Gay Nineties.

PERSONAL TO GERSON KAUFMAN, of the Romany Room: Arthur Todd, of the King Cole Room, says you ought to get out that toy piano of yours and go into the floor show.

Leopard Craze in Fashion Causes Wonder

Is It a Cycle, Or a Return To Primitive?

New Scarcity of Cat Pelts May Be Explanation

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor.

New York, Oct. 22.—The leopard craze is sweeping New York from the highest priced leopard coats worn by women executives down to the humblest touch of leopard on a hat or collar worn by one of the "workers" in Thirty-ninth Street's suit and cloak section.

MARSHALL ADAMS

Women up here who like to get at the cause of things are wondering why all this craze for leopard after its comparative obscurity for several years. They ask, "Is it the return of the native in us, the lust for primitive things brought on by a feverish social upheaval of war and greed?"

Has Sex Appeal

This questioning may be far-fetched in light of the fact that furs run in cycles just like silhouettes. Leopard was about due for a revival along with civet cat and other spotted "optical illusion furs." However, the fact remains that during the last year leopard put up a jungle fight for top fur supremacy. The purely feminine reaction of leopard wearers here is that it's the old sex appeal business of the lady with the tiger skin, looking come-hitherish and native even if her label is that of designer Kiviette or milliner John Frederics, rather than the Somali bush.

Most logical explanation for the sudden urge for leopard is its scarcity, and the fact that we fickle fashion-minded women always want what we can't get. Fine leopard skins have not been coming in for over a year now due to the war, since no one is at present concerned with shooting tigers in French or Italian Somaliland (the world's finest leopard lair), or in British India. Thus shipments have been cut to the bone. This is the reason for the doubling in price this year of leopard coats, jackets and all fur accessories. If the war continues, short leopard "swaggers" may jump over their present price tags of $1,100—may even rival platina and paradise fox in scarcity.

Youthful Fur

Since leopard is a youthful, dashing and invigorating fur, and since it takes especially well on brown, black and red heads, chic New Yorkers are comforting themselves with the thought that a hint of this towny fur is smarter than in large doses, and smarter too than none at all. The plain black, brown or dark green wool basic coat this winter is ultra smart with any of the following fur snatches—never all at once; a pillbox and melon muff; mittens or leopard banded gauntlets with two matching fur hatpins in a dashing little felt; a belt buckle and huge safety pin stuck in a bright ascot. Or, if all else fails, South American ocelot or spotted cat can be substituted for far less money and with the same amount of verve to make the front of a little dinner vest or buttons tacked into a plain little wool evening coat.

Spots are everywhere this fall, as coat collars or cuffs, as skull caps, or proud postillion hats, as at left—all by benefit of the tawny Somali leopard, becoming more of a luxury fur by the day. A primitive fashion accessory to the jungle cat is the alligator calf bag below, one of Lewis' famous big simple envelopes, shouting your monogram to the world.

A Woman's WASHINGTON

By JEAN BROWNELL

THIS is a time for the rereading of old books, believes Sigrid Undset, internationally famed Norwegian novelist and Nobel prize winner, who visited Washington last week. "A book always is better the second time it is read . . . Yes, I believe old books can help give us a sense of stability." Specifically, she urges Americans to reread the works of the late Thomas Wolfe, who she feels was evolving the great American novel, when death cut short his career. She also admires Willa Cather; her sister translated one of Miss Cather's books into Norwegian.

Despite her statement that the European tragedy and the disaster it has brought her family have disturbed her so deeply that she cannot write, Mme. Undset conveys an impression of calmness and spiritual strength. One feels that she is greater than the evils which have overtaken her homeland, and that she will triumph over them. She declines to say much about the invasion and seems happier when the conversation shifts to less consequential subjects. She smiles as she tells of the reputation she has with Norwegian critics for being a man-hater. "I suppose it is because they want me to make my men more attractive and less lifelike," she says.

The manager of a dime store looked from his mezzanine office one day and noticed with surprise that one customer going from counter to counter had a spool of thread partially concealed in her hair. Descending to the main floor, he followed her at a discreet distance and finally stopped her as she left the store. She appeared flustered, when he inquired about the thread but denied she was a shoplifter. "Some friends dared me that I couldn't get out of the store with it," she said. "I was going to bring it back later." She wasn't prosecuted, but the manager still wonders whether to believe her explanation.

MATERNITY FLOOR—A brand-new father eyed his crimson, wizened but healthy offspring for the first time, then called the doctor out of his wife's earshot. "What shall we do with it, doctor?" he asked tensely. "Even I can see the thing isn't normal. Can you suggest some institution?"

George Washington University's homecoming committee has chosen an election year to reform the method of selecting a university sweetheart. The election, a traditional feature of Homecoming Week (which begins November 4 this year), has been criticized in the past because it usually has resulted in victory for the candidate of the sorority selling the most tickets to Homecoming Ball. Until this year, each purchaser of a ticket had been entitled to a vote, which he promised to the sorority selling him the ticket; the seller of the ticket also earned a vote, which naturally went to her sorority's candidate. To avoid the unpleasant implications of the phrase "vote selling," this year's committee has divorced the election from ticket sales. Only eligible voters will be students who present their Student Activity books as identification at the polling-place.

A Few Prejudices

I

People give me a pain,
Who when I say it will rain,
Go on talking of something,
In a quite different vein.

II

People irk me no end,
Who never unbend,
When I'm struggling to keep up
My conversational end.

III

People drive me to drink,
Who are never succinct
In the telling of tales
Of some Mrs. Tiddledywink.

IV

People slay me, alack,
Who of honesty clack,
And discourse on my faults,
To my face, not my back.

V

People also give me a pain,
Who say, "beam" and "agayne,"
When their families and friends
Such smart words disdain.

VI

People do get me down,
Who split hairs on a noun
When I'm trying to relate
Some scandal in town.

VII

People make me boil and fry,
Who won't look in my eye,
When they greet me at parties,
As the others espy.

VIII

People I'd like to maul,
Are those who cast a pall,
By brusquely remarking,
"It's not that way at all!"

IX

People burn me to an ember,
Who can't seem to remember
The ones they meet constantly
From January to December.

X

Finally, people give me a pain,
Who are most inurbane,
Yet from going in company
Simply cannot refrain.

About to Be Married, Girl Learns She Is Diabetic; She Wants to Go Through With Ceremony as Planned. But Man Favors Waiting Until Her Health Improves

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Some time ago the young lady I had asked to be my wife announced our engagement. Since then she has fallen ill with diabetes, and has been told that prolonged treatment will be necessary before a cure can be expected. My immediate thought was to postpone the wedding until her health is restored, but she wants to keep to our original plans, as already announced. She fears there may be gossip if we postpone the marriage.

Whenever we discuss postponement of the marriage an argument develops. It isn't that I don't love her. I am willing to wait for her to get better. But I feel that a girl is expecting too much in wanting to get married when she is in poor health and would become a burden on her husband from the very start. Will you please let me have your advice on this subject? MAN READER.

DEAR M. R.: It appears to me that your avowed love of the girl has been weighed and found wanting. You desired her when she seemed to be blessed with good health. But you shrink from the prospect of cherishing her in sickness. The truth of the matter (so a physician tells me) is that a diabetic, when correctly self-treated with insulin, is not "in poor health," any more than a person with a set of false teeth, or one of astigmatic vision, properly fitted with eyeglasses, or one hard of hearing who has a "listening" device.

You say of your fiancee that "prolonged treatment will be necessary before a cure can be expected." The doctor I have consulted on your behalf remarks that "there is no cure for diabetes, but there is permanent control, permitting the diabetic to lead a normal social life, with a longer life expectancy than the average person, for the reason that the diabetic takes much better care of his general health."

He explains that in mild cases of diabetes, dietary restrictions provide the normalizing control. In severe cases diet plus insulin (self-administered according to a physician's advice) takes care of the condition.

As for the girl's being "a burden from the start"—her diabetic condition wouldn't impose any more of a burden, financially, than the cost of the insulin, which the doctor says is "one of our cheaper drugs today." Nor need the condition be physically apparent. The daily incident of self-treatment could easily be incorporated in her toilette-making hour, and her capacity to be wife, mother, social companion and even career-woman on the side would not be noticeably impaired.

The doctor says that "thousands of diabetics—men, women and children—are going about 'business as usual' in their offices, at home, in school, every day of the year." He said that "hundreds of professional women are diabetics; some well-known names among them."

This doctor's reassuring, optimistic attitude is oddly at variance with your selfish, materialistic concern lest you get shortchanged if you were to marry the girl as planned. It seems to me if you were normally sympathetic and intelligent, you would have obtained a physician's opinion immediately, concerning the wisdom of marrying her. If you really loved her, this would have been your first move, more for her protection than your own.

Had the girl asked my opinion of your attitude, I believe I would have advised her not to marry you—for the reason that you have shown how little you can be counted on for support and consolation in emergency. But if she is still willing to marry you, after this demonstration of craven sidestepping, I hope she finds you worthy of her trust. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Envelopes of cellophane cover her summer bags and gloves, cellophane "socks" slip over her white shoes.

Then for a feminine touch Ann tucks perfumed sachets in the corners.

When you have a flair for drawing, a will to succeed, your only obstacle to a professional career is lack of training. And nowadays you can do as many successful artists have done—study at home.

With the aid of charts and diagrams you quickly master the rules governing proportions of face and figure, draw with the sure touch you lacked before.

In just such a simple manner you learn to draw the human figure. Then, in your next lessons, you study light and shade, the technique of ink and wash drawings. In doing fabrics in wash, a help to practice from real samples. Satins need many highlights, a flat fabric is kept dull.

Paris, London Or New York, Styles Are Alike

New York (AP).—It must be mental telepathy.

There certainly haven't been the usual transatlantic telephone conversations between New York and Paris, and New York and London, on the subject of style.

Yet the three cities agree to a remarkable extent on fashions for the coming season.

New York held its openings first, so nobody can say America copied European ideas. London and Paris openings were held about ten days later. Nobody can say Paris copied, either, because communications between New York and Paris are mostly cut off. New York and London are on speaking terms, but few cables are concerned with style.

Yet in all style essentials—silhouette, hem length, general trend toward luxury—the three cities think alike.

Listen to the reports of Paris style edicts, sent from Berlin: "Paris decrees the straight and narrow silhouette, short daytime skirts, longer suit jackets, elaborate fur trimmings (including fur gauntlet gloves and long stoles), lavish sequin and jet trim, very low decolletage, for evening, 32-inch coats in long-haired furs . . ."

Sports Stars' Figure Hints

If you'd like to be a little better looking this winter, you would do well to look into the lives of American feminine stars of sports, theater and business offices. Whatever their championship field,

Wisely, many of them thump and bump on on the floor. Most of them have a favorite sport, and they don't let up in their games when winter comes. These women do their walking in sensible shoes. They put knee action into their walk for the sake of easy grace.

The trick of exercise is in daily routine, in rhythm for those ups-and-downs, and in hitting the right spot for extra stretch. It's wise, however, to take only as much exercise as you're sure you are up to.

Arrivals, Departures Still Hold Spotlight

Entertaining Likely to Remain On Small Scale Until Society Settles Down for Holiday Season

By Hope Ridings Miller

SO LONG AS arrivals and departures make more news than the usual round of parties, you can know that Capital society hasn't settled down for the season. Entertaining is still on a comparatively small scale and probably will continue to be until around Thanksgiving. Meanwhile, the spotlight falls on goings and comings in social and official sets. And along that line here are a few items:

Hope Ridings Miller

Mrs. Stanley Reed, accompanied by her sons, Stanley, jr., and John, and Miss Thora Ronalds, of Erie, Pa., left a few days ago for a Caribbean cruise. The party is expected to return October 29. Miss Ronalds, who has frequently visited here, is a cousin of Mrs. Sumner Welles.

Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury, grande dame of society, who slipped into town a few days ago, will return today to Spring Lake, N. J. She will rejoin her son, James H. R. Cromwell, whose campaign for the Senate is now entering the home stretch. I understand that Mr. Cromwell is planning quite a party for the evening of November 5; that he is having a special wire service set up in the basement of his Spring Lake house and will hold open house during the entire time election returns are coming in.

Whether Mrs. Stotesbury will be back in Washington to spend part of the winter in her home on Foxhall Road, or will go directly to her Palm Beach estate has not been decided. Meanwhile, Mrs. Lionel Atwill, Mrs. Stotesbury's daughter, who has been in Washington for several weeks, will leave Monday for the West Coast to join her husband, the noted actor. She will be accompanied by her son, Walter Brooks.

Former Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick Hurley will leave today for Philadelphia, where Mr. Hurley is scheduled to make a speech for Wendell Willkie tomorrow. From Philadelphia they will go to Chicago, where another speech is scheduled, and then on to the Southwest. Shortly after election day, they will be off to Mexico to spend some time.

Mrs. Rudolph Stanley-Brown has as her guest Mrs. Alfred L. Williams, of Cleveland, who will be here for several days. A recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley-Brown was Philip L. Goodwin, of New York, architect of the Museum of Modern Art.

DEBUTANTE DATA: Miss Mary Churchill Mathews, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Mathews, of 1068 Park Avenue, New York, who will come to the Capital later for an extended visit, is among the New York debs who will be presented at the exclusive Tuxedo autumn ball on Saturday evening. On Friday, she will serve as a member of the debutante committee for the champagne ball at the Waldorf-Astoria for the benefit of the New York Infirmary for Women and Children. Miss Mathews is a grandmother of Mrs. Churchill Candee, of 2310 Connecticut avenue, with whom she will stay when she comes to Washington in November.

With her luncheon for Debutantes Peter and Marion Norris scheduled for Saturday, Miss Achsah Bowie Dorsey plans to spend this week-end in Washington. But last week-end she had quite a whirl in Charlottesville, Va., where she was the house guest of Mrs. Philip G. Walker. Going down especially to attend the Virginia-V. M. I. football game, she also enjoyed a round of parties in its connection and was guest of honor at a dinner given by Mrs. Warner Wood and her daughter, Mrs. Mary Miller Holt. Mrs. Wood, as you know, is the former owner of Farmington, one of the old colonial show places of Charlottesville.

"NOT A PARTY," according to the hostess, but a very pleasant and informal get-together took place yesterday afternoon when Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Wilmer had a few friends in for cocktails at their home, 2600 Thirty-first Street.

Recently moving there from their former address on Twenty-fourth Street, the Wilmers are just now getting settled in their new place. Mrs. Wilmer plans to give a series of parties there later in the season.

Mrs. Rice Gives Party

Reviving the pleasant custom of midsummer coffee, Mrs. Stuart A. Rice gathered a group together at her home in Arlington yesterday to meet two friends. By the early hour the hostess avoided conflict with her guests previous engagements.

Renewing old acquaintances was Mrs. Frank Bane, now of Chicago, whose husband was formerly director of the Social Security Board here. For the present Mr. Bane is here on a defense job and she flew down to see him.

Making a host of new friends was petite Mrs. Hans Jacob, a refugee from Paris. With her husband she arrived in New York last week from Lisbon. At present they are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rice. Mr. Rice is chairman of the Central Statistical Board.

A bright log fire greeted the guests yesterday as they stepped into the drawing room, which is done with Williamsburg blue walls, cherry red rugs and gay chintz drapes. In the long pine-paneled dining room, coffee, orange juice and buns were served. Pouring coffee was Mrs. Edward Acheson.

Among the guests were Mrs. Harold Smith, Mrs. T. J. Woofter, Mrs. R. V. W. Connor, Miss Louise Pound, of the University of Nebraska; Mrs. John G. Pollard, jr., Mrs. John Corson, Mrs. Virgil Reed and her mother, Mrs. Robertson; Mrs. Wayne Coy, Mrs. Alvin Roseman, Mrs. I. H. Freund, of Chicago; Mrs. Walter Joyce, Mrs. Alan Barth, Mrs. Thomas Kirby, Mrs. Herbert Goldberg, Mrs. A. Ford Hinrichs, Mrs. Katherine Rayne, Miss Lucia Giddens, Mrs. John Blandford, Mrs. Carroll Wilson, Mrs. Walter Matscheck, Mrs. Harold Kube, Mrs. Oscar Powell and Mrs. Karl Pribrom.

Dr. Pedro Fraga Fetes Cuban Technicians

The Ambassador of Cuba, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga, entertained at a luncheon yesterday at the embassy in honor of the Economical Technical Commission visiting here.

Also in the party were Nelson A. Rockefeller, Joseph Rovensky and Louis Rosenthall. Members of the commission included Amadeo Lopez Castro, Eduardo I. Montoulieu, Dr. Oscar Garcia Montes, Maj. Antonio Bolet and Eduardo Durruthy. From the embassy were the Counselor, Dr. Jose T. Baron; the First Secretary of the Embassy, Dr. Roberto G. de Mendoza, and the Second Secretary, Dr. Raoul Herrera.

Social Lights Shine at Concert Of Philadelphia Orchestra Here

Among the throngs of official, diplomatic and smart residential Washingtonians turning out for the Philadelphia Symphony last night were the above three snapped at the entrance. They are (left to right) Mrs. William O. Douglas, wife of Justice Douglas; Justice Stanley Reed and Mrs. Robert Jackson, wife of the Attorney General

Mrs. Roosevelt Lends Mrs. Jackson Her Box At Constitution Hall

A brilliant audience gathered at Constitution Hall last night for the first concert of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra series. With big parties few and far between this year, musical programs and benefits, it is predicted, will be even more of an event than usual.

Nearly all the boxes were filled last night. Furs were much in evidence, proving that winter, as far as society is concerned, is practically here.

Many Supreme Court Members Present

The White House box was loaned by Mrs. Roosevelt to Mrs. Robert Jackson, wife of the Attorney General. She wore a dark green ensemble with a long fitted coat. Mrs. William O. Douglas, who sat with her, had chosen a white crepe gown with a military jacket trimmed in gold braid. Justice Stanley Reed and Justice and Mrs. Hugo Black were also Mrs. Jackson's guests.

There was quite a turnout of Supreme Court luminaries for the concert. Justice and Mrs. Felix Frankfurter arrived just after the first number had been concluded. Mrs. Frankfurter wore a white fur jacket over her frock. Justice and Mrs. Owen J. Roberts were in the audience.

Mme. Oumansky, wife of the Soviet Ambassador, occupied her box, accompanied by several ladies from the embassy circle. Her gown of deep blue was cut on simple lines.

Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz, wife of the Belgian Envoy, sat in the orchestra. Over her gold-colored frock she wore a coat of Persian lamb. With her was her son, Charles van der Straten-Ponthoz, who still walks with a limp from the wound he received fighting the Germans, and her daughter, Miss Betty van der Straten-Ponthoz. The latter wore a fur coat over her dress of ciel blue pleated chiffon.

Garretts, Dunns Chat Together

Many from State Department circles applauded the orchestra, which Eugene Ormandy conducted. The Special Assistant to the Secretary of State and Mrs. Joseph Davies shared their box with the

Mr. and Mrs. Miller Entertain Envoy From Yugoslavia

Federal Security Arministrator and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt. Mrs. Davies topped off her black gown with a white ermine coat, a combination which effectively emphasized the becoming white streak in her dark hair.

Another smart black and white combination was that worn by Mrs. George A. Garrett, whose box is next to that of Mr. and Mrs. Davies. During intermission she chatted with Mrs. James Clement Dunn, wife of the Political Adviser to the State Department. Mrs. Dunn's gown of velvet in a soft green shade had a high neck and long sleeves.

Ray Atherton of the State Department and Mrs. Atherton were guests of Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss in her box. Over her black gown, which had a flaring skirt, Mrs. Bliss wore a long mink coat.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph C. Miller entertained a party in their box, their guests including the Minister of Yugoslavia and Mme. Fotitch, Mrs. McCook Knox, and Orme Wilson. Mme. Fotitch wore a chubby fur wrap over her gown. Mrs. Knox topped off her brown taffeta dress with a long fitted wool coat in a brilliant green shade.

Mrs. Soong Wears Chinese Style Gown

One of the loveliest costumes was the peacock blue and silver gown, modeled Chinese style, worn by Mrs. T. V. Soong. With her husband she was the guest of the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau. Mrs. Morgenthau's long black velvet coat had a scarlet collar.

Mrs. Archibald MacLeish's chartreuse dinner gown was a spot of color in a house where black predominated. Her husband, the Librarian of Congress, accompanied her. Miss Mabel Boardman entertained guests in her box.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Townsend had with them in their box near the stage Mme. van Kaathoven, who was in red with a sable jacket; Miss Sheilagh Morrison-Bell, of England, and Denys Smith. In the box nearby Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Smith entertained Leander McCormick-Goodhart, of the British Embassy and Dr. and Mrs. Kurt Hetzel. Mrs. Smith's gown was of rose velvet and Mrs. Hetzel chose a flame-colored frock topped with a velvet wrap.

Others in the audience included Mrs. A. A. Berle, Mrs. Truxtun Beale, in black with a pearl necklace and fur coat; Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Finkenstaedt, who had with them in their box their attractive debutante daughter, Miss Sita Finkenstaedt; Mr. and Mrs. Jouett Shouse, Miss Mary Wilson and Dr. Clarence Dykstra, newly appointed head of Selective Service, who was with Col. and Mrs. C. C. Schiffeler.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

MRS. ARCHIBALD MacLEISH, who used to secretly salt away the clothes allowance her father gave her to spend for singing lessons, has a full schedule ahead this early winter season. Besides carrying on her duties as housewife and able hostess for the distinguished poet and Librarian of Congress, she is giving half a dozen concerts.

DUDLEY HARMON

She will go to New York November 4 to sing at Little Carnegie Hall and later in the month will give several programs at Williamsburg. The management there is trying out for the first time an autumn Chamber Music Festival, modeled on their successful spring series. Mrs. MacLeish will appear in a program of fifteenth and sixteenth century English songs November 14, 15, 20, 21 and 22. She also has a tentative date to sing in Charlottesville.

WHILE HIS WIFE is working harder than ever on her music, Mr. MacLeish has given up his writing completely for the time being. He is too busy with his reorganization of the Library of Congress and is also writing a lot of speeches. He went to New York last night to talk before the Forum of the Herald Tribune.

The MacLeishes are just now getting settled in the Ellis Stone house in Georgetown, directly across the street from the one they had last year. In the big living room a grand piano holds the center of the stage. This room looks out through long red curtained windows onto a walled garden. Masses of chrysanthemums and autumn leaves in big vases add to a most attractive interior.

WHEN SHE WAS a young girl in Farmington, Conn., Mrs. MacLeish decided to study piano. Her father, William Hitchcock, hoped she would become a concert artist, and sent her abroad to study. While in Paris she became interested in singing, which didn't interest her father, hence the smuggling of the clothes allowance. Mr. Hitchcock, incidentally, is famous in Farmington as the most genial and gay of parents. He is called "Uncle Billy" by many adoring children, and has dandled hundreds on his knee (including this writer). Unfortunately he is ill now and his daughter goes up to Farmington twice a month to see him.

MRS. MacLEISH made her musical debut in Paris when she and her husband lived there about 15 years ago. They occupied an apartment in the palace of the De Beaumont family, which the Count de Beaumont had just fixed up for Picasso. But at the last moment the painter decided the light wasn't quite right.

Artists, who have lived in New York, are inclined to turn up their noses at Washington, artistically speaking, but not Mrs. MacLeish. She finds this a most musical city, and cites to prove it the long lines which form to get tickets to the chamber music concerts at the Library of Congress. "Only the genuine lover of music will appreciate a string quartet," she says.

SHE SPECIALIZES in songs by contemporary composers. But she admits that this type of music requires more attention from most of us who are more familiar with Beethoven than with Hindemith.

Mrs. MacLeish devotes mornings to her music, and if she refuses your luncheon invitations, it's because she likes to continue right on into the late afternoon.

Asked if, like her husband, she ever wrote, Mrs. MacLeish laughs and says "Write! I should say not! I can hardly print."

CAPITAL WHIRL

by Sally Swift

COUNTESS van Rechteren Limpurg is telling friends how glad she is to be back in Washington, but for a combination of unusual reasons—at least, they are not reasons we usually associate with life in the Nation's Capital. She and her husband, the counselor of the Netherlands Legation, are enjoying simple food and living in what Fay calls a "shut-in little house."

These simple delights are such treats to the Van Rechterens because they are trying to relax after a glorious fortnight in Havana during the festivities preceding and following the inauguration of President Fulgencio Batista. From Fay's description, there was a party or a review or an inspection every minute of the day and most of the night the entire time they spent in the Cuban capital.

They stayed at the Hotel Nacional as guests of the Cuban Government (William van Rechteren is accredited to the Cuban Government as well as to our own) in an apartment enjoying two different views over the sea. The air was so soft, the breeze so refreshing, the ocean so blue that Fay decided everybody in the world ought to live in those delightful open houses the Cubans build for themselves. She said she couldn't bear the thought of coming back to her own attractive house here. She feared she would want to tear the walls down.

Motoring back through the Everglades, however, she encountered her first climatic disillusion. It began to get colder. By the time they reached Georgia, then the Great Smokies National Park, she began to think with real affection of her cozy house in Washington, with its efficient heating system, and when she got home she decided it was the nicest place in the world.

The inaugural activities reminded her of the good old times, she said. Everything was done in the grand manner, culminating in the inaugural banquet given by the new President which was one of the most magnificent things of the kind she has ever attended.

ANOTHER REMINDER of the good old days, before the present war, when all diplomats in Washington were friends, came to me in the form of news that Bartolomeo Migone, who used to be a secretary in the Italian Embassy here, is spending a few days in New York on his way to his new post at Santiago de Chile. Like most of the younger men who were on duty here under Ambassador Rosso, Migone has spent a tour of duty with his former chief in Moscow.

Along with Giuseppe Tommasi and Andrea Ferrero, Migone did more than his share to contribute to the fun and good times in Washington in those days. Memories of the costume ball they gave at the embassy, which was loaned by the Ambassador, who was then a bachelor, and who discreetly made himself scarce for the evening, are still revived whenever anyone talks of really lovely parties.

Potocki Fetes Polish Countess

The Polish Ambassador, Count Jerzy Potocki, entertained at tea yesterday afternoon at the embassy, between 5 and 7 o'clock. Honor guest was Countess Chlapowska, mother of Countess Lasocka, whose husband is an embassy attache. Countess Chlapowska, who recently came here from Poland, will leave tomorrow for a visit to New York and Detroit.

The ambassador invited around 50 guests to greet Countess Chlapowska. Among the ranking guests were the Peruvian Ambassador, Manuel Freyre y Santandar, the Argentine Ambassador, and Senora de Espil, the Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga, the Apostolic Delegate, Amleto Cicognani; the Finnish Minister, and Mme. Procope, the Yugoslav Minister and Mme. Fotitch, the Charge d'Affaires of Great Britain and Mrs. Neville Butler, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss and Mrs. Truxtun Beale.

Lieut. Comdr. Ide and Wife Return to D. C.

Officer Was Aviation Advisory Committee's Assistant in Paris

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. John Jay Ide returned to the United States in July and are now in Washington at the Mayflower for an indefinite stay. Following their marriage last February in Philadelphia, Mrs. Ide accompanied her husband to the French capital where he was technical assistant in Europe for the Advisory Committee for Aeronautics.

Mrs. Ide, the former Miss Dora Browning Donner, of Camp Woods, Villa Nova, Pa., is a sister of Mrs. Curtin Winsor, who before her marriage to Elliott Roosevelt was Miss Elizabeth Donner.

Ban on Liquor Sales Near Camps Urged

Miss Elizabeth Smart Addresses W. C. T. U. In Convention Here

Prohibition of liquor sales in or near military training camps was advocated by Miss Elizabeth Smart, new national legislative chairman of the W. C. T. U., in an address yesterday to the convention.

Miss Smart urged the liquor ban to "protect the boys called to military service." Members of Congress, she said, are being deluged with letters demanding such a war prohibition.

Canada already has barred liquor advertising over the radio as a war measure, said Miss Smart.

Miss Smart, during her address, reviewed legislation of interest to the convention. The Johnson bill to prohibit liquor advertising over the radio has been held up by the antilynching amendment offered by Senator Champ Clark, of Missouri, she said—"which is hardly fair tactics since the two measures have nothing in common."

Mrs. Earle Wilfley will be elected president of the District W. C. T. U. today, succeeding Mrs. Ida W. Ramsey, who has served five one-year terms, the maximum allowed by the by-laws. The election is scheduled for the closing session of the annual two-day convention at Calvary Baptist Church.

Other new officers to be elected without opposition are Mrs. Belle T. Pickett, first vice president; Mrs. Marie M. Brinley, second vice president; Mrs. Clifford Hurley, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Darrel C. Crain, treasurer; Mrs. Manuel Kline, recording secretary; Mrs. Cleve Pulver, assistant corresponding secretary.

This slate was presented yesterday by Mrs. Warren B. Hadley, chairman of the nominating committee.

Mrs. Ramsey's term of service as president has coincided with the $5,000,000 education centenary program of the national organization in which the local has raised $927 more than its $5,000 quota.

RECALLING THE PAST—The invitations which have been issued by the Alexandria Association for the ceremonies at the presentation of a pulpit to the old Presbyterian Meeting House in Alexandria Saturday afternoon, are printed in type that is at least 100 years old. They are from the shop of Lewis Bell, who represents the third generation of the interesting old firm, located in what for years was known as "Printers' Alley."

The old meeting house is 166 years old and is only surpassed in age by Christ Church. In July, 1835, it was gutted by fire. Only the great walls, more than two feet thick, some of the windows, part of the gallery, the old clock above the entrance and the badly damaged organ were saved. The clock is still in place but has long been silent. The organ, whose pipes bear the date, 1810, will be played at the ceremonies Saturday. A double quartet from the famous Sabbath Glee Club of Richmond, a colored chorus, under the direction of Joseph Matthews, will sing.

FELLOWSHIP LUNCHEON—The World Fellowship Committee of the Y. W. C. A. has announced Dr. Anne Seesholtz, of the Embassies of Reconciliation, as guest speaker at the October luncheon tomorrow at 12:30 p. m. at the Y. W. C. A. She will speak on "Japan's New Order in Asia."

Dr. Seesholtz is a former national student secretary of the Y. W. C. A. in China and executive secretary of the Council of Women for Home Missions. She has served on the National Board of the Y. W. C. A. in New York and as a member of the China fact-finding group of the Laymen's Foreign Missions Inquiry.

Dr. Susholtz is now associated with Miss Muriel Lester in the international work of the Fellowship of Reconciliation and recently returned from a tour of Japan, China, and the Philippines, where, as an ambassador of good-will from America, she interviewed many influential persons.

The World Fellowship Committee is headed by Mrs. Albert Atwood. Other members of the committee include: Mrs. Arthur D. Call, Mrs. McFall Kerbey, Miss Ruth McGowan, Mrs. J. T. Schaaff, Mrs. G. W. Stone, Mrs. B. H. Warner, Mrs. W. F. Willoughby, Mrs. D. E. Yarnell, Miss Mary Nourse and Mrs Samuel Merriam

"EVERY MODERN DICTATOR THE WORLD HAS KNOWN FIRST PERSUADED HIS COUNTRYMEN THAT HE WAS INDISPENSABLE TO THEIR WELFARE"

An Editorial from the Cleveland Plain Dealer

THE Plain Dealer supports Wendell L. Willkie for president of the United States.

We come to this decision with no regard either for party names or political considerations. Rather, our decision is based on the best analysis we can make of the moral problem confronting the United States of America. We have reached this conclusion, which seems inevitable to us, with the regret which decent people feel about breaking old ties.

For close to a hundred years the Plain Dealer has refrained from supporting for president any other than Democratic candidates. We say this in no spirit of apology or of boastfulness. On occasions we were probably wrong.

Now for the first time we depart from this century-old Plain Dealer tradition. We recommend the defeat of a Democrat who is seeking a third term to the presidency.

If anyone reads into this an act of desertion, we insist that the result rests on the shoulders of Mr. Roosevelt and not on ours.

The Plain Dealer chooses to remain Democratic. The Roosevelt administration, by contrast, has abandoned the Democracy of Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland and Wilson.

The Plain Dealer elects to abide by the idea that the country should make social progress as fast as it can pay for it, whereas Mr. Roosevelt has attempted, not a liberal, but a radical goal. The only possible outcome of his policies, as we see it, is State Socialism, followed inevitably by some form of Fascism.

Under our system of government, if a sufficient majority can be obtained to amend the Constitution in a given direction, America may adopt any form of government, known or to be known, by man.

But we should proceed frankly and openly to such basic changes as these and accomplish them in the democratic way, by popular majorities on candidly expressed proposals. Never should we agree, if we hope to remain democrats, to a subtle and unacknowledged transformation our our state of society.

Eight years ago we supported Franklin D. Roosevelt with boundless enthusiasm. Four years ago we supported him with some misgivings. The course of events since then, culminating in the president's ill-disguised and successful maneuver for a third term nomination, forces upon us the conviction that we can no longer support the president whom this newspaper helped twice to elect.

The Democratic national platform of 1932 was liberal, forthright and courageous. Standing on that declaration of principles Gov. Roosevelt as a candidate for president was impregnable. Had the tenets of that platform been obeyed the United States would today be in a far better situation—financially, economically, politically—than it now is.

To most Americans the history of this period is too fresh in mind to justify repeating its lessons.

Instead of establishing policies of economy in government, Mr. Roosevelt inaugurated a regime of immense and largely uncontrolled expenditure. In a period when the United States was at peace he doubled the national debt. He sponsored a program of gold purchase at inflated prices, which resulted in cornering three-quarters of the world's supply and burying it in the Kentucky hills. He subsidized the silver producers at public expense to the tune of more millions.

Contrary to experience and the lessons of economy, he used unnumbered millions in a vain effort to borrow and spend his way back to prosperity. He paid farmers for not raising crops. He killed pigs to improve the hog market. He punished business and said that he did it to help men whose welfare depends on business.

He campaigned on the class issue by denunciation of "economic royalists." He filled the ranks of his administration with radicals, leftist thinkers and social experimenters. He obtained the support of John L. Lewis by abdicating much of his authority to labor. He kept Secretary Perkins in the cabinet and remained deaf to complaints that she, Chairman Madden and many other of his appointees, were furnishing protection for radical elements on the labor front.

He tried to persuade a Congress, which proved wiser than himself, to pack the United States Supreme Court and bring it under the thumb of the executive. Stooping from his high position as president of all the people he prosecuted a countrywide "purge" of Democrats who had refused to do his bidding.

Mr. Roosevelt's culminating offense against his party, his country and the world-wide spirit of democracy stood clearly revealed in the hollow and theatrical circumstances of his third term nomination at the Chicago convention. The talk of "drafting" the president for the run is veriest nonsense. His whole strategy for a year before the convention was to make impossible the convention's choice of any other candidate.

No other Democrat was allowed to get his head above the common level. Without declaring his candidacy, the President swept primary after primary, each victory a triumph for office holders thumbing another ride on the supposedly magical coattails. And then, having wangled the third nomination for himself, he forced a rebellious convention to name for vice president a cabinet member whom few in the convention really wanted.

The example of a president voluntarily retiring at the end of his second term was set by Washington. It was galvanized into a principle by Jefferson. It became an inviolable precedent by the wisdom of succeeding presidents. It is almost as much a part of our fundamental law as the Constitution itself.

The situation Jefferson warned his countrymen against in 1821 has now come to pass. An ambitious executive, finishing his second term and wishing another, conjures up the Old World theory that he alone in all America is capable of leadership. Mr. Roosevelt paints the portrait of The Indispensable Man, and, lo, the likeness is of himself!

These are perilous days in world history for any democracy to experiment with indispensable men. The German republic tried it. Italy tried it. Russia tried it. The pathway of government since the World War is strewn with the twisted remnants of democratic institutions wrecked by indispensable men.

Every modern dictator the world has known first persuaded his countrymen that he was indispensable to their welfare.

America cannot afford to take the risk. No man in this still free republic is so wise, so strong, so exalted in character or so finely tempered by experience that the safety of the nation requires his retention in the presidency. America is not ripe for the advent of The Indispensable Man.

These facts are set down calmly by a newspaper appreciative of the fine qualities of human sympathy and social justice which inspired the earlier days of Mr. Roosevelt's performance. These achievements are part of the permanent record of the era. They will be remembered, outlined against the dark background of economic fumbling and industrial failure.

Much of this achievement will survive, regardless of the result of the November election. The country is committed to its perpetuation. Opposition to Mr. Roosevelt for a third term implies no repudiation of this part of his record.

Opposing the president who seeks to violate the unwritten statute against a third term is Wendell L. Willkie, nominee of the Republican convention at Philadelphia. Unknown to national politics as recently as three months ago, this lawyer and business man from Indiana has become since mid-June the hope of millions whose votes, in the good American way, make our presidents.

Willkie was the surprise nominee of an unbossed convention. He had received no primary support, and had asked for none. His nomination came as the answer to a specific, if unspoken, demand for a man particularly trained to meet the problems which will face the administration at Washington in the next four years.

These are problems of business, or organization, of harnessing the vast forces of the nation to meet the conditions of a world at war, perhaps to fight a war. These problems are too serious for endless economic experimentation; too vital to the national safety to be handled by a brain trust with leftist tendencies, or a candidate unappreciative of cost control.

The career of Willkie is typically American. From the beginning his success has been self-achieved. Born in a small town, educated in a state university, he began his professional career in a small city. From small beginnings, traveling the road common to average Americans, he has grown into the stature of successful leadership.

To a greater degree, perhaps, than ever before, the welfare of the country in the years at hand will depend on industry intelligently directed. Willkie is trained by hard knocks for his task. He has the confidence of industrial leaders. He possesses a record of fair dealing with labor.

With such a leader America can rise to the first need of the times, which is to arm itself.

But Mr. Roosevelt cannot persuade labor to efficient production. He and his advisers spent too many years helping it get more money for less work.

Mr. Roosevelt cannot expect business to co-operate with him, except under compulsion, because his studied effort has been to harry business.

Only on rare occasions in American political history have conditions conspired to bring to the front a man particularly qualified to direct affairs in the crisis. Washington was, of course, a supreme example. Lincoln was one. Jackson was another.

Without suggesting similarities between men, it will seem to many that Willkie belongs in the galaxy of Americans mysteriously prepared for command in this critical period of the Republic.

By the logic of our two-party system the choice for president lies between Wendell L. Willkie and Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Even had the president achieved a flawless record of administration, which we have denied, the time is now at hand when he should retire. He cannot in sincerity say that Willkie is any less qualified than himself to direct the government in the next four years.

That Mr. Roosevelt refuses to make this concession is a partial index of his character. It harmonizes with many executive acts since March, 1933. It is the trade mark of one who has come to consider himself The Indispensable Man.

The Plain Dealer makes its choice without hesitation or qualification.

We solemnly urge the people to elect Wendell L. Willkie president of the United States.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Eugene Ormandy conducts the Philadelphia Orchestra in Constitution Hall Tuesday night. Soloist: Rudolf Serkin. Program: Concerto in D major for orchestra (Handel), Pianoforte Concerto in G major (Beethoven), Symphony No. 7 (Sibelius), "Essay for Orchestra" (Samuel Barber), Excerpts from "Die Meistersinger" (Wagner).

Constitution Hall was the scene last evening of a hearty welcome to the Philadelphia Orchestra on the occasion of its first local concert of the season. The presence of Rudolf Serkin as soloist, while an indubitably potent factor, was not necessarily the primary cause for the satisfactorily large attendance. There are abundant signs that Eugene Ormandy, who began his conductorship in the shadow of Leopold Stokowski, is now being measured by his own merits and making a steady gain in the esteem of the public. Last season discrepancies in the size of audiences when Stokowski was present or absent began to disappear, and the average level has risen.

Ray C. B. Brown

Mr. Ormandy began his program with the first performance here of his own transcription of Handel's orchestral concerto in D major. His arrangement, which completely omits the optional part for organ and strengthens the instrumental color, is tasteful and does not invalidate in any way the Handelian style. The version simply utilizes means which the composer did not have at hand, and enhances without distortion the effects of the original work. Both in the stateliness and pomp of the introduction and in the brilliance of the lively fugal section the arranger has done his scoring neatly.

Rudolf Serkin, whose artistic stature is increasing as his technical skill becomes better integrated with his interpretative insight, gave a beautiful and moving performance of Beethoven's G major piano concerto. He must have been grateful for Mr. Ormandy's tactful handling of the orchestra which preserved the solo instrument from intrusions and maintained an excellent balance. Mr. Serkin played the work with a particular affection, subordinating technique to poetic expression and shading his phrases with exquisite care.

Beethoven's power of evoking a sense of mystery is at its peak in the G major concerto which has an unearthly quality of beauty in the first two movements. The emotion of the music constantly transcends the medium and transports the listener to the realm of imagination. If, as the program note indicated, Liszt liked to think of the andante as Orpheus taming the wild beasts with his lyre, he was mistaken. The more correct analogy is that of Orpheus beseeching the guardians of Hades for entrance on his errand of Eurydice's redemption.

The inflexible and adamantine unison passages for the orchestra do not suggest the ragings of beasts but the refusal of supernal potencies. As the lovely hushed supplications of the piano voice continue with the patience of an indefatigable desire, the sternness of the denial gradually weakens and gives way to pity for a mortal pain.

Mr. Ormandy's reading of the seventh symphony of Jan Sibelius was eloquent and obviously animated by a consentient understanding of the music. The score is not an easy one to project, for it condenses in one movement the essential structural elements of a four-movement symphony. The slow introductory section is followed by a moderately fast one, then by a section clearly related to a scherzo, and finally by a monumental final. So much for its form; as for its content, it is the sincere utterance of a mind rich in accumulated experience, saddened by the injustices of humanity but not embittered by them.

Samuel Barber's "Essay for Orchestra" presented for the first time locally another work by a very promising young American composer. While it has not quite the strength of his "Adagio for Strings," it is an interesting and skillful composition. Again one must disagree with a program note. This thoughtful music does not in the least resemble "a literary essay with a form that might have been derived from Addison or Steele." Handel wrote in the style of Addison, and Mr. Barber does not.

Mr. Ormandy closed an otherwise rewarding concert with an item which would never have been missed had it been omitted: selections from "Die Meistersinger."

Secretarial Association Hears Mrs. Halsey

District public school secretaries were credited with an important part in formation of the National Association of School Secretaries in 1935 last night by Mrs. Virginia Halsey, president of the association.

She addressed the first fall meeting of the local Secretarial Association of the Public Schools at the University Women's Club, 1634 I Street Northwest. Miss Catherine A. Crawley, president, was toastmistress.

Secretary Morgenthau will open a Red Cross rally for the Treasury Department unit at 8:30 p. m. today in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing auditorium, Fourteenth and C Streets Southwest. Speakers will include Mrs. Morgenthau and Miss Mabel T. Boardman, national secretary of the American Red Cross.

Church Men's Club To Hear Dr. Dostert

Dr. Leon Dostert, of the French Embassy, will address the initial fall meeting of the Men's Club of Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church tonight at 8 o'clock in the parish hall at New Mexico and Nebraska Avenues Northwest, on American University campus.

Police After 'Sniper,' Brown Tells Citizens

Protection Increased In Area of Slayings, Mass Meeting Told

Assurance of the Police Department's unrelenting efforts to capture the "sniper" and of increased protection in the area of three recent unsolved murders was given by Maj. Ernest W. Brown and other officials at a mass meeting of West End colored citizens last night.

A resolution expressing confidence in the Police Depatment was unanimously adopted at the meeting, attended by approximately 700, at Liberty Baptist Church, 817 Twenty-third Street Northwest.

"We're not going to stop until the criminal is apprehended and brought to justice," said Maj. Brown, superintendent of Metropolitan Police.

Recognizing the apprehension which prompted the mass meeting, Maj. Brown assured the gathering: "We are going to afford you every protection."

Some Working 24 Hours Daily

He said that men "are putting in 24 hours a day" on this case, but that he could not divulge details of the investigation, in public.

In a crowd as large as that at the meeting, "the brute responsible for these murders may be present," Maj. Brown said—to the accompaniment of protesting laughter by the crowd.

Maj. Brown said he had received "a great many letters," offering suggestions and advice, and that the department is investigating "every bit of information that might have any bearing" on the case.

He said he regretted the attitude expressed in a letter yesterday, in which the writer intimated that the police force was not exerting as much effort as it would if the victims had been white persons.

"I want to say that is without foundation. It is not a question of color, but a question of a human being," Maj. Brown declared.

Major Brown reiterated the warning expressed by previous speakers on the penalty for carrying firearms without permit.

"It is our duty to furnish you with protection, and I want you to feel free to walk the streets and to have persons come to your home," Major Brown added.

Capt. Storm Heard

Capt. W. T. Storm of the Third Precinct urged that citizens try to help in the solution by notifying police if they see a person fitting the description of the "sniper," acting suspiciously.

"Greater protection has been given this area, and I believe in the near future a solution will be found," Capt. Storm concluded.

Inspector James Beckett also reassured those present.

Maj. Brown pointed out that "up to this time we have found no motive," so it is believed that a maniac is responsible.

Capt. Storm said three shootings in the Third Precinct were all apparently committeed by the same person.

Charles L. Norris, president of the West End Business Men's Association, and W. F. Wasson, president of the West End Citizens' Association, spoke of their interest in the situation and in the welfare of their neighbor organizations. Dr. C. Herbert Marshall, president of Rock Creek Civic Association, and Edward F. Harris, president of Lincoln Civic Association, who were instrumental in calling the mass meeting, explained its purpose.

Gen. Reckord Fears Guard Is 'on the Skids'

period of training, however long, finally is ended, the National Guard will be faced with a fight for its very existence, he predicted.

"I can see," said Reckord, "that unless this association does something about it, we will be face to face with a return of the old Continental Army discarded in 1912. Unless this association does something before it goes home, the National Guard is on greased skids."

He suggested several courses that might be followed.

"If the guard desires to retain its place in the scheme of things, it must work out a way to keep our efficiency, after training, on a higher plane than it is now.

Must Establish Camps

"We must work it out so the flow of junior officers and qualified enlisted men into the guard is steady and plentiful; we must find a way to stop sending recruits into every one of our companies every Monday night.

"After this year we must think of establishing training camps in every corps area where men can be trained for six months before being sent to regular units.

"The draft law should be amended to take them while they are young—at a specified age—19, 20, 21—it doesn't make any difference. Then discontinue all volunteer training in the National Guard."

In a few years, he predicted, the result of training selected men will be formation of new divisions in the Army. But "where will they get their officers?" he asked. Before the guard goes home from training, he said, "I believe we will get authority for junior officers to remain with the drafted divisions," and reserve officers might be used. That, he declared, was the only apparent solution for a system which, as now devised, will train 900,000 men a year and offer them no place to serve—"not in the guard, because we'll be filled and not in the Regular Army except to fill vacancies."

Charts Reorganization

Gen. Reckord said he had charted a complete reorganization of the National Guard to insure its continuance in its present form after the present emergency is ended. Copies of this chart, he said, would be made available to the War Department as the basis of a plan for the future.

"The War Department hasn't thought beyond this year," Reckord declared. "If we give them a solution to our problem already worked out we'll at least have a foot in the door.

"We have got to keep our powder dry. We have got to keep men here who see as we do, who will carry our fight to Congress to see that we keep the guard as it is. We carried our part of the load in the World War and we'll carry it now.

"Congress will always listen to us if the War Department doesn't."

Another disturbing question facing Guardsmen was answered by War Department officials in closed session. The association was told promotions of junior officers in guard units would be made to fill vacancies left by retirement of high-ranking officers for physical or other reasons "when practicable" and "when possible."

Guardsmen have expressed the fear that stringent physical examinations would oust many officers from high positions which would be filled by regular officers and that junior officers would resign when they saw no chance for advancement.

Assails Defense Policy

Representative Snyder (Democrat), Pennsylvania, of the War Department subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, told the association at its morning session that the Government lacks a settled policy in preparing a strong defense. He declared the policy of strengthening the Navy while "permitting weaknesses to continue in the land arm" was "one-sided" and "contrary to sound theory."

Senator Sheppard (Democrat), Texas, chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, and Representative May (Democrat), Kentucky, chairman of the House Military Affairs Committee, did not appear to address the afternoon session as scheduled. Maj. Gen Edward Martin, acting president, of Pennsylvania, said both had reported pressure of business prevented their appearance.

Of three generals commanding divisions already called into service, only one appeared as scheduled to tell of his division's experiences. He was Maj. Gen. George A. White, commanding the Forty-first, who offered to answer questions but was asked only concerning the fate of infantry officers when their units were converted to other branches. He said they were provided for in the new branches "when qualified."

Maj. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, of Minnesota, asked the conference to go on record as opposing the use of any term to describe "home guard" organizations which might be confused with designations of older units. His motion was not voted upon.

Marshall Off-the-Record

In introducing Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, who was an "off-the-record" speaker at the association's banquet in the Washington Hotel last night, Maj. Gen. Edward Martin, acting association president, declared:

"This is the only country in the world where the head of the army would sit down and break bread with the civilian components of the army."

Committees For District Face Shakeup

2 Chairmanships To Be Vacant With Expiration Of 76th Congress

By James D. Secrest
Post Staff Writer

Congressional committees handling District legislation are due for some severe shake-ups regardless of the outcome of the November 5 elections.

Two important chairmanships are to be vacant with the expiration of the Seventy-sixth Congress, and any substantial changes in the majority-minority relationship of the House is bound to change the membership of both the House District Committee and the House subcommittee on District appropriations.

The vacant chairmanships are due to the primary defeat of Senator King (Democrat), of Utah, and the fact that Representative Caldwell (Democrat), of Florida, was not a candidate for renomination. Caldwell was chairman of the subcommittee which handles the District Supply Bill.

3 House Committee Vacancies

At least three vacancies are to be filled on the House District Committee. Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, lost in a primary contest, and Representative Goodwin (Republican), of Iowa, did not run this year. One Democratic vacancy exists now.

Three members of the Senate District Committee and three members of the Senate subcommittee on District appropriations are up for re-election.

The District Committee members are Senator Austin (Republican), of Vermont; Senator Bilbo (Democrat), of Mississippi, and Senator Slattery (Democrat), of Illinois. Austin's re-election is virtually certain, and Bilbo is unopposed.

The appropriations subcommittee members who are candidates are Senators O'Mahoney, of Wyoming; Chavez, of New Mexico, and Maloney, of Connecticut, all Democrats. Senator Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska, another member, was defeated in the primary.

Overton Can Keep Job

Senator Overton (Democrat), of Louisiana, is the only chairman of a District committee assured of holding his job, if he wants it. As the Democrats cannot lose control in 1940, Overton can remain as chairman of the subcommittee on District appropriations.

While Representative Randolph (Democrat), of West Virginia, is confident of reelection, there is a chance that the Republicans might control the House. In such a case Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, would be in line for the job of District "mayor." He doubtless would pass it along, however, to Representative Bates (Republican), of Massachusetts.

Most members, on both sides, appear to have good prospects for reelection, but they likewise hope to get better committee assignments in the event of any major shake-up. Southern members are assured of being returned. Representative Poage (Democrat), of Texas, is unopposed.

Two Democratic members from Pennsylvania, Herman P. Eberharter, who conducted the liquor inquiry, and Joseph A. McArdle, may well follow the national trend of their State, whichever way it goes.

The stops will be established for use between 3 p. m. and midnight at the east side of Third Street Southwest, south of D Street; north side of D Street Southwest, west of Third Street.

The new order is effective next Sunday for 45 days, pending construction of proper railway facilities.

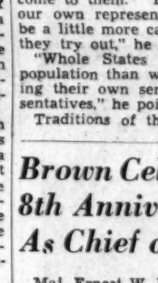
Friendship Citizens Association Is One of District's Oldest

Six Schools and Five Churches Serve Area, Also Known as Tenleytown; It Takes in Old Fort Reno, Now Site of Reservoir

This is the twenty-fourth article in a series about citizens' associations in the District and their efforts to make the community a better place to live.

Six schools and five churches serve the District area covered by the 48-year-old Friendship Citizens Association, one of the oldest citizens' units in the city.



FLICKINGER

Instrumental in obtaining several of the schools for the sector, the association has made all of the ministers and priests in the area honorary members. Schools include Janney Elementary, Alice Deal Junior High, Woodrow Wilson High, Mount Vernon Seminary, St. Ann's Parochial, and Immaculata High and Junior College.

Efforts of the Northwest District organization are directed this fall toward construction of a new branch library at Wisconsin Avenue and Albemarle Street; completion of storm sewers in parts of the Friendship area; and paving of streets in the fast-growing section between Forty-sixth and Wisconsin Avenue.

Section Has Two Names

Other projects being pushed by the association include traffic lights on Wisconsin Avenue, raised safety platforms, more playground facilities, and a new postoffice building—already promised.

Territory served by the Friendship Association was originally known as Friendship, then as Tenleytown in honor of John Tenley, and now as both Friendship and Tenleytown — the name being changed back in the early 1920's, but both terms now being used.

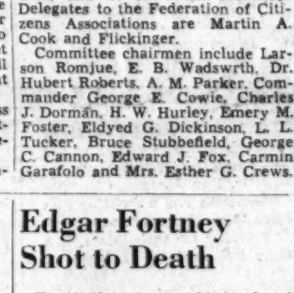
Within the area is old Fort Reno, once one of the Civil War defenses for Washington, and today the site of a reservoir. It is the highest spot in the District, being 420 feet above sea level, according to the association's president, S. J. Flickinger.

Ardent for Suffrage

Flickinger has served eight terms as president and still looks at District suffrage as his primary aim. As he sees it, Congressmen now use the District as a testing ground for almost any idea that happens to come to them. "But when we get our own representatives they will be a little more careful about what they try out," he observed.

"Whole States which have less population than we have are electing their own senators and representatives," he points out.

Traditions of the association include an annual spring banquet where community residents "get to know each other," and an annual contest for best decorated homes and business establishments during the Christmas season, with six prizes awarded.



WORKING for this area of Washington is the Friendship Citizens Association, headed by S. J. Flickinger (inset)

Cooperates for Reforms

It frequently cooperates with other citizens associations in the Northwest area to drive for city-wide projects and reforms. Regular meetings are held at 8 p. m. of the first Wednesday of each month in the Janney School.

Officers, elected annually in June, include Samuel J. Flickinger, president; Martin A. Cook, first vice president; Miss B. I. Pullizi second vice president; John Slattery, treasurer, and J. H. Mills, secretary. Delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations are Martin A. Cook and Flickinger.

Committee chairmen include Larson Romjue, E. B. Wadswrth, Dr. Hubert Roberts, A. M. Parker, Commander George E. Cowie, Charles J. Dorman, H. W. Hurley, Emery M. Foster, Eldyed G. Dickinson, L. L. Tucker, Bruce Stubbefield, George C. Cannon, Edward J. Fox, Carmin Garafolo and Mrs. Esther G. Crews.

Brown Celebrates 8th Anniversary As Chief of Police

Maj. Ernest W. Brown celebrated his eighth anniversary as superintendent of Metropolitan Police yesterday, "too busy even to go to lunch."

Surrounded with flowers from his assistants, he spent the day poring over reports from detectives investigating the mysterious "sniper" slayings. The major ate a sandwich at his desk "to be available if there was a break in the case."

Brown was appointed chief in 1932 and next January will begin his forty-fifth year as a policeman. Now 66, he says he has more work than ever before, pointing out that he is president of the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

The police chief added that he had no thoughts of retiring.

Edgar Fortney Shot to Death

Two bullets through his head and a gun lying beside him, Edgar H. Fortney, 60, a Bureau of Standards clerk, was found dead yesterday in his apartment, 2715 Fourteenth Street Northwest.

Two notes were left by the Government clerk, who had been in ill health for some time, detectives said.

Acquaintances said he had been despondent since he broke several ribs in a fall a year ago.

Foreign Service Alumni To Hear Father Walsh

The Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., vice president of Georgetown University, will discuss "The Present Position of Soviet Russia in World Affairs" at a luncheon meeting of the Foreign Service Alumni at 12:30 p. m. today at O'Donnell's restaurant, 1209 E Street Northwest.

Truck Driver Found Guilty Of Murder

Convicted on Two Counts in First Degree of Slaying Police Officer

Clarence Blocker, 24, colored truck driver, who killed Park Policeman Ivan W. Thompson when resisting arrest last June 14, was convicted on two counts of first degree murder in the District Court last night.

The 12 men jurors gave their verdict to Justice F. Dickinson Letts at 9:14 p. m., after deliberating 4 hours and 20 minutes.

Blocker faces a penalty of death in the electric chair, on either of two counts.

Thompson, who lived with his wife and four children at 2240 Evarts Street Northeast, was off duty, going home after serving in a guard for President Roosevelt on a visit to the Monument Grounds last June 14.

Observing Blocker driving a truck, the policeman forced him to the curb and arrested him on a charge of reckless driving. Blocker seized Thompson's gun and poured five shots into the officer.

Blocker was indicted on a charge of first degree murder and of committing a homicide while perpetrating a felony.

Assistant District Attorneys Charles B. Murray and William Hitz, jr., urged the jury to return a verdict under which the death penalty would be mandatory.

Attorney George E. C. Hayes, who was appointed by the court to defend Blocker, pleaded with the jurors for a verdict no heavier than manslaughter. Hayes argued that his client, an untutored Southern boy, lacked mental capacity to deliberate and form the intention to commit murder.

Hayes contended that the terrified defendant found himself fighting the officer, picked up the gun and fired without thinking.

The shooting occurred in mid-afternoon traffic about 5 p. m. First and I Streets Northeast.

Blocker's trial was delayed last summer by sanity tests of the defendant and finally began October 14.

Liquor Store Loses Appeal for Transfer

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday refused transfer of the Bond Liquor Store from 1416 New York Avenue Northwest to 923 Pennsylvania Avenue Northwest, on the grounds the "area is sufficiently serviced."

Five Congressmen had written letters to the board at the time of the hearing requesting the application for transfer be denied.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

'The Great Dictator' Is Coming to Palace Nov. 7

Contracts Signed for Chaplin's New Hit; Subscription Books Still Open at National; This, That and the Other About the Theater

THE MOST IMPORTANT NEWS of the moment is contained in the telegram from Loew's publicity chief, Oscar Doob, which reached this desk too late Monday night to see the light of day here yesterday. It is, of course, the announcement that Mr. Charles Spencer Chaplin's "The Great Dictator," his latest picture—his first in the last four or five years—will begin its Washington run on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater on Thursday morning, November 7, under the regular Loew policy of continuous performances, with no seats reserved.

BELL

While nothing is said in the wire relative to the price scale to be assessed locally, there will be a slight tilt in admissions. A more or less subterranean tip is that for this engagement the tariffs will range from 75 cents at matinees to $1.10 after 5:30 p. m. Considering the rarity of the Chaplin productions and the glowing notices "The Great Dictator" has received in all of the spots where it has been shown, this seems not to be exorbitant.

It is particularly gratifying that Washington should get this widely acclaimed serio-comic subject among the first cities in the country and so close on the heels of its New York premiere. Line forms to the right.

And then there is that other Loew-Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pronouncement that has been knocking about the desk for days now. This is the one that says that "Gone With the Wind" will be released for general distribution at popular prices early in January—without the deletion of even so much as an inch from its extravagant footage. It will still run three hours and 45 minutes. Our old friend "Bill" Rodgers, sales manager for M-G-M, emphasizes that "GWTW's" potential public has hardly been touched by the advance-price, reserved-seat engagements of the outsize Margaret Mitchell work in its Technicolored film form. His estimate is that no more than 20,000,000 people have seen it out of the 80,000,000-odd weekly average who attend the motion picture theaters in the United States.

What you may not have heard—or maybe you have—is that "The Baker's Wife," current on the screen at the Little Theater, has set up a new house attendance record. Up to the opening of this superlative comedy-drama, starring Raimu, Chevalier of the Legion of Honor and one of the world's great actors, the house record was held by "Ballerina." "The Baker's Wife" matched the "Ballerina" week's attendance at the end of the first four days of its engagement. It should go without saying that the Marcel Pagnol production, with all its humor, pathos and audacity, is being continued a second week—and probably a third, fourth and fifth, to be conservative about it!

Reverting to Charles Laughton's visit to the Capital last week, it is still his professed desire to play Shakespeare's "King Lear" on the stage. "That," said he to this elbow-breakfaster last Friday morning, "is still the bedside book, but I doubt if any actor could withstand the strain of eight performances a week. The first act alone is enough to tear one down. What I shall have to do is get another play to put on maybe six times a week, with 'Lear' sandwiched in twice." Here's hoping.

So one of the speediest, most tuneful and most colorful musicals of the season was previewed by the ladies and gentlemen (sic) of the drama desks yesterday afternoon. That would be "Down Argentine Way," with Carmen Miranda, Betty Grable, Don Ameche, Charlotte Greenwood, Henry Stephenson, J. Carroll Naish and a swirling cast of hundreds. This one—of which more tomorrow morning—opens at the Palace then and, to one who is a sucker for such things, is a honey. Before you see it, a few more lessons from Madame La Zonga wouldn't be a bad idea!

Due to the unprecedented demand for subscription seats for the series of six plays to be presented by the Theater Guild and American Theater Society in the National Theater this season—including the current "Ladies in Retirement," a melodrama of ne plus ultra grade—Local Manager Bess Davis Schreiner has been authorized to keep the books open until tomorrow noon. The subscription this season tops all previous records here. It is promised that "Twelfth Night," with Helen Hayes and Maurice Evans, and Saroyan's "The Time of Your Life" positively will be included among the six subscription plays.

Mr. Melvin D. Hildreth, Washington's walking encyclopedia of the big tops, takes his typewriter on his lap to say that while it may be winter in the Capital—what with its snowstorms and all—it will be spring in Richmond today. The Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey Circus, having completed almost a circle of the United States, will come that close en route to Sarasota, Fla., to close one the longest and most profitable tours in its history on November 15.

Latin Songbird

CORINNA MURA, featured on the new stage bill at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater, with her Spanish guitar and Latin-American songs

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Oct. 22.

GOV. A. HARRY MOORE: When Mayor Frank Hague takes the stand, in the current Senatorial vote probe of Jersey, he'll turn the tables—making accusations of irregularities in Ocean and Cape May Counties, which are Republican. He'll claim there are more people registered than can possibly live there and be eligible to vote . . . Bruce Barton: Senator Mead will confront you with a 1930 quote about Mussolini and the abolition of the United States Senate.

LYONS

QUENTIN REYNOLDS: "Putzi" Hanfstaengel, Hitler's former aide who now is interned in Canada, sent a postcard to you asking you to communicate with him immediately. He hasn't been told that you're in London, ducking the bombs sent by his former boss.

AL JOLSON: Ruby Keeler, who walked out of your show, has been offered a role in an opposition musical, "H'ya, Gentlemen"—but refuses to return to New York . . . District Attorney Buron Fitts: Burton Turkus, who prosecuted the trials of Murder, Inc., and won convictions, will leave for Hollywood shortly. He'll work, unofficially, with your staff in the cases concerning the West Coast branch of the murder syndicate . . . George Gallup: Russell Davenport, the man who started the Willkie boom, is the one who helped set up the original machinery for the Fortune Magazine poll—the poll which shows Roosevelt leading.

LION FEUCHTWANGER: Neither Franz Werfel nor Heinrich Mann, who were announced as speakers at the dinner given you by the League of American Writers last week at the Commodore, attended that function. They suddenly had become "ill" . . . Their escape from France—as well as the escape of all the noted writers now en route here—was effected by another organization called the Emergency Rescue Committee, which planned to welcome these refugee writers at a dinner at the Commodore, on October 31. They were confused by the wireless invitation from the League of American Writers, which they received while aboard ship, and so they accepted. And that's why they became "ill" and, instead, will attend the October 31 dinner.

DARRYL ZANUCK: Elsa Maxwell will make a personal-appearance tour in vaudeville houses, supported by a group of young Hollywood actresses . . . Dan Frohman: Representatives of your Actors Fund approached Al Jolson, regarding a benefit performance of "Hold on to Your Hats." They informed him that every show usually gives one performance for that fund, on Sundays. "A Sunday show would mean $1,500 to our Actors' Fund," Jolson was told. Al replied: "The cast works hard all week, and needs that day of rest. So take my check, instead of our doing an extra show." Jolson's check was for $3,000 . . . Equity: Mae West is leaving Hollywood shortly, for a Broadway play. She's discussing terms with the Shuberts.

EDWARD FLYNN: On the train from Washington Saturday, a man—whose wife wore a Willkie button—saw Jim Farley and asked: "What do you think of the election, Jim?" . . . Farley said: "The election is over," but refused to add any explanation . . . William S. Knudsen: To make the best use of the $30,000,000 appropriated for training youth along industrial defense lines, NYA Administrator Aubrey Williams will enlist experts to handle that job. He's already obtained George Gant, organization director of TVA . . . Publishers Association: Putnam's is all ready to publish Winston Churchill's collected speeches, to be called "Toil, Sweat, Blood and Tears," but you can't get the final word from Britain's Prime Minister, who is occupied with other matters.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Aboard the Chief, Oct. 22 (INS).—Bette Davis, who is as smart about her career as the cagiest businessman, wants to play a young, gay and romantic role—and the particular part she has her heart set on is the secretary in "The Man Who Came to Dinner."

PARSONS

She's particularly anxious to do the Kaufman-Hart comedy now, because it would fall between two heavy dramas for her—"January Heights" and "The Little Foxes," which La Davis will make for Sam Goldwyn.

When Bette was in New York she dined twice with George Kaufman and they talked about building up the girl's role until it was equal in importance to the Monty Woolley (or if you prefer—Alexander Woollcott) starring part. It wouldn't be hard to do, because the secretary had snappy lines and plenty of good situations in the play. John Barrymore has been talked about for the star spot in the movie. What a team Bette and Jawn would spell at the box-office!

The hot Hollywood rumor before I left was that Jeanette MacDonald and M-G-M were on the verge of trouble, because Jeanette was walking out on "I Married an Angel." It was also whispered she was "off salary" and that Nelson Eddy would make his next picture alone. Just barely had time to check the yarn with Jeanette and according to her story there's not a word of truth in any of it.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Four press agents sent me four different wires that Victor Mature was at four different places with four different girls! Who are you kidding, boys, or is Vic doing the kidding? Franchot Tone may be getting his picture taken everywhere with Florence Lundeen—but he still hasn't forgotten Peggy Moran's telephone number; Brod Crawford says he and Kay Griffith will be married around the tenth of November. They'll go to New York for their honeymoon; Aaron Rosenberg, former U. S. C. football hero and now an assistant director, will be calling signals in a nursery next spring.

Sorry to hear that young Margaret Roach is in the Hollywood hospital with a high temperature and bad throat infection; Betty Grable had a bad spill off a horse at Bob Oliver's Sunday, but it won't keep her from fulfilling that Chicago P. A.; the Motion Picture Mothers Incorporated dinner will be held at the Beverly Hills Hotel and profits will go for Christmas baskets; Orson Welles (they say his picture, "Citizen Kane," is swell) leaves Wednesday for Lincoln, Nebr., on the first lap of his lecture tour.

George Raft was on the Warner lot yesterday for the first time in months, for wardrobe fittings on "The Sea Wolf"; Bert Wheeler has been doing the town with Lois Sterner, a dancer, and it looks serious.

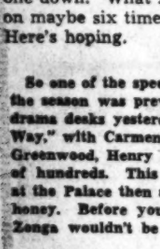
That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Oct. 22.

I'm off again—to another world premiere. This time it's Tacoma, Wash., home stamping grounds of the legendary "Tugboat Annie," played in "Tugboat Annie Sails Again," by our great favorite, Marjorie Rambeau, trouper from 'way back. Also in the party are Alan Hale, Ronald Regan, and Donald Crisp. There's nothing like an old trouper. They sail right in and pitch, and put on a good show for dear old Mr. and Mrs. Public. At this moment, Marjorie is telling fabulous stories about famous play openings from Broadway to San Francisco. Tacoma and the Northwest are as much home to her as Hollywood. She's excited about acting all over again, and has achieved full-fledged stardom.



HOPPER

This "Tugboat Annie Sails Again" premiere in Tacoma is the first of its kind there. The events they've lined up for us will keep everybody in a lather for two days. There's a tugboat parade—over 300 of them escorting us from Seattle to Tacoma. An escort of 50 planes, bands playing, then civic ceremonies with Mayor Harry Cain presiding, and a banquet.

If you don't think that at last actors are doing their share to help sell their pictures after they've made 'em, then you haven't been in one of the cities where they've had a world premiere. In days gone by, tourists who came to Hollywood were lucky to see one or two stars. Now out of town cities feel cheated if they have less than ten come for the opening of pictures.

One of the highlights of our trip up North will be showing the picture to 1,700 underprivileged children. Marjorie tells me the picture was one of the toughest assignments ever given her, but added, "I knew the moment they put those heavy woolens and a sailor's pea jacket on me my worries were over." And if she does a slight slump, it's because the jacket alone weighed 30 pounds.

If you women don't get a giggle out of Albert Dekker, who decks himself out in a corset in "You're the One," you will have forgotten the time when you hired a husky maid with strength enough to lace her mistress into a wasp waist . . .

This time it's Stage Producer George Abbott who's brought wrath down upon his head. When George signed six of his principals and 20 chorus girls for his picture, "Too Many Girls," he also had them sign a touring contract for this season. But after the picture he opened the show—and it's closed, after two weeks, which was too late for the girls to get better jobs in new productions. And you all but missed Eddie Bracken's performance in that picture, because Abbott signed up another player. But RKO wanted Bracken and got him. Then George asked Eddie to take care of the salary of the other guy. No, of course he wouldn't do it—would you?

Metro's Frank Whitbeck has done a swell short entitled "The Eyes of the Navy." It will be released Navy Day, October 27. It was photographed in San Diego and Pensacola.

Arm Injury Sends Frank Filchock to Hospital

Passing Star May Miss Detroit Game

Suffers a Hematoma Above Right Elbow; Turk Edwards Back In Form for Lions

By Al Hailey

The Redskins' high-powered passing attack suffered a severe blow yesterday as Frank Filchock, tailback aerial artist who led the National Football League last season in passing efficiency, was sent to Emergency Hospital with an ailing right arm.

Filchock is suffering from a hematoma above the right elbow as a result of a kick received in the Philadelphia Eagles' game. In lay terms, Frank's injury is a hemorrhage in the soft tissues of his upper arm.

Dr. Robert E. Moran, the Redskins' physician, ordered Filchock to the hospital yesterday in order to give the hemorrhage a chance to absorb. Otherwise, it might prove necessary to operate on the passing star's flinging arm.

Out "Four or Five" Days

Filchock will be in Emergency "four or five" days, Dr. Moran said. He may be able to play in Detroit Sunday, however, when the Redskins take on the powerful Lions, now tied with the Green Bay Packers for second place in the Western Division race.

If Filchock fails to come around in time to make the Lions game, the Redskins' chances of remaining undefeated will take a decided drop. Overshadowed this year by the uncanny aerial wizardry of Baugh, whom he led last season in passing, Filchock has been in command of the second-period backfield, which has understudied Baugh's quartet so successfully so far in the present campaign. Rookie Roy Zimmerman, triple-threat tailback from San Jose State, will step in if Filchock's arm fails to heal in time.

X-rays taken yesterday showed that Rookie Fullback Bob Seymour is suffering a sprained muscle and ligament in his neck, but that the injury is not serious enough to keep him out of action against the Lions Sunday.

Sanford's Knee in Cast

Sandy Sanford, rookie end from the University of Alabama, is wearing his right knee in a cast as a result of torn ligaments and will be missing from Redskin games for at least two weeks. Bill Young, reserve guard and tackle who suffered a bruised muscle in the arch of his foot, will be ready for action Sunday.

Coach Ray Flaherty was cheered yesterday by the return of Capt. Turk Edwards to form. Edwards, suffering from a pulled muscle in his right leg, has been held back for the past two weeks but is expected to be back in his regular left tackle position against the Lions.

The Redskins worked more than two hours yesterday, and Flaherty had the backfield men going through a special "antifumbling" exercise. Fumbling was the Redskins' chief weakness in the Eagle game last Sunday.

Andy Farkas, still limping as a result of his knee operation in Milwaukee, Wis., September 2, will not get to make the trip to his alma mater, Detroit University, Sunday. Farkas hoped to be ready to play when the Skins meet the Lions in the Detroit U. Stadium, but Flaherty said yesterday that Farkas will remain in Washington.

Motion pictures of the Redskin-Eagles game were studied last night at the Fairfax Hotel.

Four Reasons Why Stanford Is Favorite in West Coast Race

Associated Press WIREPHOTOS

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

The main event on Saturday will pit Tommy Harmon against Frank Reagan. It is scheduled for Ann Arbor, where Michigan meets Penn. They'll take the blankets off the boys along about 2 p. m. and it ought to be college football's greatest individual dual of the year. The battle of Harmon, of Michigan, vs. Reagan, of Penn, threatens to eclipse in interest the massed assaults of the two unbeaten teams.

POVICH

Thus far, with both Harmon and Reagan, it has been a case of "how many touchdowns do we need, boys?" and then they've gone out and gotten 'em. Harmon is Michigan's hold-over star of last season. There was some doubt whether he or Niles Kinnick, of Iowa, was the Big Ten's best back of 1939. This year in the conference, Harmon defies comparison. He's the stand-out back.

Reagan is no newcomer to the football headlines. Last year he was one of the outstanding backs in the East. His individual joust with Harmon as Michigan defeated the Quakers, 19-17, in a thriller was considered a standoff. However, in the 1938 Princeton game Reagan was anything but a sensation. His ball-carrying totaled a net loss of 8 yards. Last week-end against Princeton he gained 200 yards, scored five touchdowns.

On the same day last week, Harmon was squaring an old score himself. It was his failure to break away in the Illinois of 1939 that cost Michigan its lone Big Ten defeat and the conference title. The Illini couldn't bottle up Harmon last week. He scored a touchdown, kicked a field goal and added a tenth point. He's been the scourge of Michigan opposition all year.

The Michigan-Penn affair will shed a deal of light on the college football picture. Barring a tie, one team will drop from the ranks of the unbeaten. The Wolverines opened the year with a spectacular 41-0 victory over California, outscored Michigan State, 21-14, and licked Harvard 26-0 before slapping down Illinois, 28-0. But as yet the Wolverines haven't bagged a real tough one. A victory over Penn would bolster Michigan's claims immeasurably.

Penn, similarly, has been bowling over a passel of setups, but there can be no complaint against the scores the Quakers have been piling up. They massacred Maryland, 51—0, handed Yale its first defeat in 62 years of Eli football history, 50-7, and outsprinted Princeton, 46—28. That is the disturbing item about Penn's season thus far—those 28 points scored by Princeton. Great football teams don't give up that many points.

Up at Ithaca, there will be another light-shedding tableau when Ohio State moves in to test the power of Cornell's Big Red machine. Cornell was one of the great football teams of 1939 and word from Ithaca is that Carl Snavely's 1940 edition is even better, but thus far the opposition has not been of the rugged kind. Cornell has rolled up 122 points against Colgate, Army and Syracuse and given up only six, but Colgate, Army and Syracuse are something less than good football teams this season.

But if the Ithacans can slap down Ohio State they will merit serious consideration as the Nation's No. 1 team. This week there is some doubt whether Cornell or Notre Dame belongs in the top spot, but a victory over the Buckeyes—especially a convincing one—would elevate Cornell to undisputed ranking. Ohio State should be in a mood to make it tough for the Ithacans after losing a pair of close ones to Northwestern and Minnesota in its last two starts.

If that is a Stanford bubble that is now on the pedestal of Pacific Coast football it may be burst by Saturday night, because Clark Shaughnessy's Indians will be having it out this week with Southern California. The Trojans have bounced back from a pair of ties with Washington State and Oregon State to lick Illinois and Oregon in their last two starts and may take the field as favorites to beat Stanford. Stanford wasn't supposed to be hot in the first place, but Shaughnessy seems to have done a job with that team.

Georgetown is in a position to do itself at least a small measure of good at New York on Saturday. The Hoyas will be meeting New York U. and there is little pre-game evidence that Georgetown won't win. The Violets are something les than violent this year as four consecutive defeats attest.

The pity is that Georgetown is wasting the fragrance of its 1940 team on a schedule that scarcely does the team justice. This is the year when the Hoyas could cut a terrific swathe in the college football setup but if the team is unbeaten at the finish it can point with pride only to victories over Temple and Boston College. Georgetown's sort of a schedule blights any bid for national attention even before the season starts.

This Georgetown team is a beaut, honest. It has played ragged football at times, but the actual power of Hagerty's men is as yet unplumbed. He has 'em two deep in every position and the pity is that they won't be tested until the Boston College game. Georgetown could beat most of the country's good teams, we think. Thus far it has been a team that has played strictly to its opposition On the day that Coach Hagerty fires up his Irishmen to a really important battle, we'd have a couple of bob riding with 'em and we're barring none.

Abbotts Maid, $20 Shot, Wins at Laurel

Big Event, 1-2 Choice, Fails, Takes Place

Bradley's Entry Runs Miserable Race in Day's Feature Event

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Laurel, Md., Oct. 22.—The green and white colors of Col. E. R. Bradley, often cheered hereabouts, were booed lustily this afternoon. The crowd of 8,000 sent the greenbacks into the tote with a rush and Big Event, the Bradley filly which has been prominent in recent racing, was installed a 1-to-2 favorite. When racing began Big Event performed like a 100-1 shot under Jockey F. A. Smith's handling.

However, backers of Big Event, including your correspondent, took it for granted that the filly would run in the slow, holding track. But from the start it was evident that the condition of the oval was against her. She labored along, failed to rally when Smith asked for a drive and the rider finally allowed her to finish third on her own courage.

H. P. Metcalf's Abbots Maid, the second winner saddled today by Trainer Matt Smart, took down the chief money in the race, the Tuscarora Purse and the feature of the program. The 2-year-old filly came through on the rail to hang a neck defeat on A. C. Bostwick's Steady On. There were five lengths between Steady On and the lumbering Big Event.

Abbots Maid paid a $20 mutuel and was excellently handled by Jockey Bobby Merritt. Her time for the mile and 70 yards was 1:48 4-5.

Steady On set the pace early and drew away from Daring Lady. Abbots Maid saved ground, rallied when asked and came to the inside of the leader to be up inside the sixteenth pole.

Big Event and Swynstan, a dull performer today, are eligible for next Saturday's Selima Stakes, the big test of the meeting for juvenile fillies.

Many were called and few failed to have some kind of a mishap in the running of the steeplechase event. Kenneth N. Gilpin's Fatty was the winner but not until after Jockey C. Brooks had been tossed on his neck and climbed back into the saddle. Snobby Scamp was second, but he made a bad landing at the fourteenth fence. Baffler was third. Some spice was added to the post-race interval when Jockey B. Ansteatt, who piloted Snobby Scamp, made a futile claim of foul against the winner. He told the stewards that Fatty swerved in front of him in the closing half mile. The officials heard but did not agree with him. Port Law and Wrackonite lost their riders in spectacular fashion. However, boys and horses escaped injury. Fatting, in winning his second jumping event of the meeting, paid $9.

The daily double paid $143.40. Matt Smart saddled the Salubria Stable's Charmful in the first race and the Pompey filly romped home ahead of a gang of 2-year-olds. She paid $16.50 in her own right. R. E. P. Hoover's Praetor came along on the rail to win the third race at $20.10 in his first start of the year. This winner also is a son of Pompey.

Payne Trophy Play Gets Under Way Today

The event will continue through Friday.

The Reader Says:

No Build-Up Here

Sports Editor of The Post: The other night's occurence at Griffith Stadium prompts me to suggest that you analyze the policy of the sports department of The Post to see if you are rendering the proper service to football fan readers.

The publicity on the Georgetown-V. P. I. game, as carried in your paper, and in other local papers, led readers to believe there would be some sort of a fairly even contest. So far as I observed, none of the papers carried any information to indicate that a foot race, instead of a football game, was going to be staged. If the persons who write football stories for your paper did not have at least a reasonable idea as to the outcome of Friday night's so-called contest, you should employ some persons who are capable of analyzing the situation. If the present writers do have the necessary ability, they did not live up to their responsibility to the readers of your page by telling them to expect a walkover.

The attendance at George Washington and Redskin games shows that Washington football fans will turn out for a real contest. Experience has taught them that those two clubs usually have opponents who provide a contest. On the other hand, experience has taught many of us that the Georgetown games played in Washington are usually push-overs.

However, once in a while we fall for the persuasive language of the newspapers and spend our time and money as a result of statements which are certainly misleading and, by inference, are close to being absolute falsehoods.

The purpose of this letter is to suggest that you owe a greater duty to your readers than to the universities sponsoring the football teams. ROBERT ASH.

Comment—On the morning preceding Georgetown's 46—4 rout of V. P. I., The Post's story included these paragraphs:

"Although Thanksgiving is still a month away, Georgetown expects its gridiron feast tonight at Griffith Stadium when V. P. I.'s Gobblers will be served up for consumption as the Hoyas' nineteenth straight victims."

"Georgetown will be a top-heavy favorite over the invaders, but possibility of a hard-fought game is not remote."

Notre Dame Squad Sadists?

Sports Editor of The Post: Once more I am disgusted by the "football victory" accorded Notre Dame over a bewildered and chopped up Carnegie Tech. The play given the story by your paper and others is still more disgusting. I've been wondering if you, too, are not sickened by it a bit, and decided to ask you.

Sixty-seven players carried to Pittsburgh, and all sent in with a ringing command from Notre Dame's coach—"See those helpless guys out there with their tongues hanging out? Go out there and win for old Notre Dame." Sixty-seven fresh football specialists pounding away on outclassed, worn-out opponents. That is not football.

You gave close to a column to a game worth less than a stick. You seem to have fallen for the universal adulation of Notre Dame, and to be unable to handle news about it with average newspaper judgment.

Notre Dame deserved credit for its previous Saturday's game. They had worthy opponents. But why, when Carnegie's ability was proved after a few plays, did not a second, third, fourth or fifth string Notre Dame team go in and give the spectators a contest? Were they all sadists to enjoy such a carnival? And is there no trace of good sportsmanship among the Fighting Irish? Do they enjoy such fiascos?

I'm not telling you how to write sports, but I'd say the following would have been a better account of the game:

"Notre Dame, using six teams, defeated a Carnegie Tech team,

Drive at Wire By Bobs Boy Wins at Downs

By the Associated Press

Churchill Downs Race Track, Louisville, Ky., Oct. 22.—Closing with a burst of speed, Mrs. W. E. Haughton's Bob's Boys, the favorite, got up in the final stride to account for the Kentucky Hotel Purse, featured offering on the card ushering in the 11-day fall meeting at Churchill Downs today. Maurice Berger was up on the winner.

So close was Bob's Boys margin over W. W. Stone's Bino, one of the early pacemakers, at the finish of the mile dash a photograph was necessary to decide the winner. Miss Quiz, one of the outsiders and an early trailer, came fast through the stretch to save third money, a length behind the leaders.

Although a native of Louisville, Berger, by the victory, scored his first success at Churchill Downs. The youngster until this year has confined his riding activity to Eastern tracks.

Some 8,000 opening-day fans saw Bob's Boys step the mile in the excellent time of 1:38. He rewarded his backers at $5.60 for $2 in the mutuels.

Clark Continues Shake-up of Rams

Cleveland, Oct. 22 (AP).—Earl (Dutch) Clark, Cleveland Rams' coach, continued to shake up his National Professional Football League squad by releasing three players who had seen little action this season.

Clark released Ken Heineman, 171-pound halfback, who once played with Texas Mines; Earl Crowder, 195-pound quarterback from Oklahoma U., and Harvey Murphy, 194-pound end formerly with Mississippi U.

The Rams last night added to their roster Connie Mack Berry, former North Carolina State end, obtained from the New York Americans of the American pro football loop.

Challedon Is Out Of $15,000 Added Washington 'Cap

By the Associated Press

Baltimore, Oct. 22.—Challedon, a candidate for the Pimlico Special and "horse of the year" title, has been declared out of the $15,000-added Washington Handicap to be run at Laurel Saturday.

Owner W. L. Brann told the Evening Sun by telephone from New York that he and Trainer Don Cameron had decided to withdraw Challedon from the Washington because they felt the top weight of 132 pounds assigned to him was excessive.

Brann said Challedon was being sent to Pimlico to begin preparing for the Special.

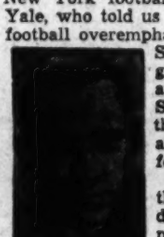
On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Oct. 22.—Last week the principal speaker at the New York football writers luncheon was Ogden Miller, of Yale, who told us of the Blue's cold horror at the thought of football overemphasis. This week the main talker was Mose Simms, coach of St. Mary's of Texas. Geographically the gentlemen are 2,000 miles apart; realistically they are farther apart than Shamokin, Pa., and Arcturus. And if it's all the same to you, you may have Mr. Miller and his school's sudden abhorence of good football, provided you give us Mr. Simms.



CONSIDINE

Mr. Simms is a delightful voice crying in the wilderness of football hypocrisy. He doesn't call a spade a spade; he knows too much about its past—when it was a rake, without webbing. He has a fine team, Mose has, as his Rattlers will demonstrate with enthusiasm against Long Island U. next Sunday in Ebbets Field, Brooklyn.

We wish Mose had a team like Cornell, Penn, Michigan, or Notre Dame. If he had one like that he'd be the outstanding individual in college football, and his words and actions would do much to clear away a lot of the bogus sanctimoniousness of an otherwise fine sport.

"The greatest coach in the country is Carl Snavely, of Cornell," Mose was telling us at the luncheon. "You know why? He's got 17 cash customers on his squad. Cash customers . . . you know. Kids who are paying their own way to the school. I've got one on my club. When you make a good club out of kids who just happened to come to your school, then you're terrific. I've got to go out and get mine, and, boy, it is tough—down in my part of the country. S. M. U. stole a sweet halfback from me not long ago. I had him hid away on a ranch. But those fellows found him. Had to climb four fences to reach him . . .

"Football is a show . . . It's entertainment . . . It's no solemn rite. My kids play it because they like it, and like the things it brings them. They get in an argument about blocking strength of tackling merit, in their dormitory, and get right into those clownish suits we wear and go outside and have it out. You sportswriters like to kid us about not studying. Our boys get around to it, and when they're not studying they're getting a liberal education, traveling around the country in that bus of ours—playing blackjack and pinochle on the bus floor . . .

"I got that bus in a funny way. We were out on the coast and I was having a few drinks with a fellow. So we drink nine more and I'm finally giving him some tickets to our game the next day, and he's so grateful he tells me that he's in the bus business.

"Anyway . . . we're such good friends when we leave each other that the next morning I'm down at his place, getting a $38,000 bus for $1,500. But even that will be outmoded in a few years. We're going to fly to our games, as soon as we get enough money. All teams will be flying in a few years . . .

"We'll cover about 7,000 miles on this trip we're on, but we took a longer one in 1937. We went up to McGill for a game. I coached their rugby players for a few days, and refereed the game. Penalized my own team 295 yards and theirs only 5. We . . . I mean McGill . . . scored on my boys first. You see, I was tipping off the McGill boys as to where St. Mary's would carry the ball—by putting my arms on my hips, clapping my hands, or other signals like that. We had a lot of fun. Football could learn a lot from rugby. The game's too stodgy. We've got nine different defense formations, including two men on the line of scrimmage . . .

"I was in the oil business when St. Mary's hired me. Gave me a 15-year contract, to handle all sports, but I'd like to hire a good, colorful coach. I played football, sure . . . at Washington State, Baylor, Centenary, Hardin-Simmons and the Olympic Club.

"I know the game, but I haven't any illusions about my coaching

Cornell, Nation's No. 1 Eleven, Has No Outstanding Scorer

Teamwork Keeps Red In Top Spot

No Snavely Player Has Scored Any More Than 3 Touchdowns; End Smuck Is Leader

By the Associated Press

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 22.—The college football team the Nation's experts consider "tops" is without a single high scoring back.

Teamwork rather than individual scoring such as that of Michigan's Tom Harmon and Penn's Frank Reagan is keeping Cornell at the top of the 1940 gridiron standings.

Coach Carl Snavely presents a well-balanced offensive. Almost any player on the team sports editors of the Associated Press papers consider the current "best" is a likely touchdown threat.

Jim Schmuck, an end, is the big Red's high scorer to date with 19 of 112 points amassed in victories over Colgate (34-0, Army (45-0), and Syracuse (33-6).

Schmuck Leads

Schmuck, whose three touchdowns have come on the receiving end of passes, kicked one point after touchdown to give him a 1-point edge over Mort Landsberg, 17-pound fullback, and Lou Bufalino, substitute halfback.

Other point scorers have been Walt Scholl, substitute halfback, 12; Bill Murphy, back, 12; Kasimer Hipolit, end, 6; Pete Wolfe, guard, 6; Nick Drahos, tackle, 9; Mike Ruddy, back, 6, and Alva Kelley, end, 6. That gives the linesmen a total of 46 of the team's 112 points to date.

Thus far, Cornell has scored mostly through forward passes. Against Colgate, the Big Red completed 12 of 17 tosses for 239 yards and four touchdowns; against Army 13 of 19 for 201 yards and three touchdowns and against Syracuse last Saturday 15 of 24 for 310 yards and four touchdowns. That makes a total of 40 of 60 passes completed in three games for 750 yards, or one of the best averages ever recorded.

Ace Linemen

Exceptional, too, is the fact the leading candidates of the Nation's No. 1 team for possible All-American honors are linemen—and a back who hasn't scored and whose name has yet to make the headlines. They are Nick Drahos, an All-American tackle last year; Howie Dunbar, a guard; Schmuck and Walt Matuszczak, the quarterback.

Matuszczak is one of the brainiest of the Nation's signal callers and one of the best blocking backs. Without him to clear the way for the ball carriers and to name the play, the Big Red might be just another ball team. It was his timely spotting of a flaw in the Ohio State defense last year that gave Cornell its 21-to-14 victory, and an unbeaten season.

Bill Boyd Arrives Here Tomorrow

Bill Boyd, the bald-headed protege of Jack Dempsey, will arrive in Washington tomorrow to start a series of public workouts in the Huron gymnasium, 511 Eleventh Street Northwest.

The former sailor, who knocked out Irish Danny Hassett in his last appearance here in the summer, will work out at 1 p. m. and is issuing a personal invitation to one and all to come up and spar with him at $2 a round, Goldie Ahearn and Ray Alvis announced yesterday.

Boyd's three appearances here have resulted in three knockouts—Billy Nichy, Buck Everett and Hassett—and he is working toward continuing this streak when he starts throwing punches at Buddy Moore, up and coming young colored heavyweight, Monday night in Riverside Stadium's inaugural winter card.

The advance ticket sale will begin at Riverside this morning when 2,000 tickets will be put on sale at 44 cents each to any man in uniform or anyone who can show a selective service registration card. Top price is $2.40 for immediate ringside, and reservations can be made through REpublic 2950.

D. C. Women Golfers End Greatest Season

The District Women's Golf Association brought its most successful season in history to a competitive end yesterday at Indian Spring and Argyle in the annual fall field day for the team members.

The occasion was the formal presentation of the team trophies won in the spring, while preceding the luncheon and prizes the first team members played an 18-hole medal play handicap event at Indian Spring and the second and third teams played at the nearby Argyle course.

Mrs. Betty Meckley continued her domination of the low handicapped players one-day tournaments by winning both gross and net prizes over the Four Corners course. The Kenwood player's 83 was good for gross honors by a five-strke margin but she preferred the low net prize with her 83, 2—81 total. Mrs. Walter R. Stokes, the Maryland State champion, thus won gross honors with a 43—45—88.

Ties Mark Play

Ties marked the second team competition at Argyle with Mrs. Richard Thornburg, one of Kenwood's most improved linkswomen, winning low net with a 102, 23—79, in a draw over Mrs. L. F. Haugen (Army and Navy), 96, 17—79, and Mrs. W. M. Baker (Manor), 97, 18—79.

Mrs. Haugen's 50—46—96 was tied by Mrs. A. A. Morrill, of Kenwood, for low gross and Mrs. Haugen won in the draw, dropping Mrs. Morrill's 96, 16—80 into fourth low gross.

Mrs. Meckley's 81 net in the first team play was two strokes better than the 92, 9—83 by Mrs. M. K. Barroll (Army and Navy). Mrs. H. J. Cooper (Kenwood), accounted for third low net with 92, 8—84, while other prize winners, in order, were Mrs. J. C. Dale (Kenwood), 96, 10—86; Mrs. Theodore Peyser (Woodmont), 100, 14—86; Mrs. A. A. McEntee (Kenwood), 97, 11—86; Mrs. W. E. Hall (Columbia), 100, 13—87; Mrs. Florence Godfrey (Congressional), 94, 7—87, and Mrs. M. J. Torlinski (Army and Navy), 99, 12—87.

Additional net prize winners in the second and third team play were Mrs. J. H. Farrar, Washington, 111—29—82; Mrs. F. R. Keefer, Chevy Chase, 94—12—82; Mrs. H. A. Neff, Manor, 98—15—83; Mrs. D. S. Platt, Manor, 104—21—83; Mrs. J. J. Darby, Columbia, 104—20—84—Mrs. J. W. Cramer, Manor, 98—14—84; Mrs. J. H. Bullock, Kenwood, 99—15—84; Mrs. L. F. Hurley, Columbia, 109—24—85; Mrs. H. J. Klossner, Congressional, 103—18—85; Mrs. G. H. Chadwick, A. and N., 103—17—86; Mrs. J. P. Harper, Columbia, 106—80—86, and Mrs. A. Y. P. Garnett, jr., Chevy Chase, 103—17—86.

Mrs. F. Dickinson Letts, captain of the winning Chevy Chase team in the spring match play competition, received the huge trophy from Mrs. Robert A. Lacey, president of the women's golf body. Mrs. W. J. Flather, jr., accepted the second team cup, also won by Chevy Chase, while Mrs. D. S. Platt, of Manor, received the third team trophy.

The annual meeting the first week in December will officially bring to an end the 1940 season, that was marked by a new high in entries, tournaments and general activity of the association. Speculation as to the new officers, committee meetings and nomination board meetings will keep the linkswomen busy until that time.

Mrs. A. A. McEntee is accepting entries for the Invitation 18-hole medal competition of the Kenwood Women's Golf Committee next Tuesday.

Special Dispatch to The Post

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 22.—Two soccer games booked for tomorrow will start the Midshipmen on a busy program of athletic competition. The football game with Yale at New Haven on Saturday is the outstanding attraction.

The varsity soccer team meets Lafayette, of Easton, Pa., while the plebes will entertain Baltimore City College. On Friday the Navy junior varsity gridders will be hosts to the jayvee team of the University of Pittsburgh, and the plebes will engage in a cross-country run with the freshmen of Georgetown University.

The only event on the home grounds Saturday will be a football game between the Navy plebes and Bullis School of Silver Spring, Md.

Uncle Sam May Have Best Ball Club, Baker Says

By the Associated Press

Portland, Oreg., Oct. 22.—Del Baker, the Sherwood, Oreg., boy who made good as manager of the Detroit Tigers, predicted today that "Uncle Same may come up with the best ball club of all next year."

He admitted the draft had unsettled baseball conditions and that he would have to forego his usual winter of fishing to be at Tiger headquarters. He said Detroit "rebuilding plans were in the air because of conscription."

Baker will spend about a month in and about his Oregon farm home.

Tucker Vs. Maury

Maury A. C. will travel to Ballston, Va., to open Tucker A. C.'s home football season Thursday night. The game will start at 8 o'clock.

Big Rush Is On to Win Free Trips To Redskin-Dodger Game Nov. 10

The number of entries to date in the Junior Board of Commerce's football selecting contest—with two all-expense paid trips to the Washington Redskins-Brooklyn Dodgers game at Ebbets Field on November 10 going to the winners—indicate the affair will be one of the most successful held here.

"Win" Weitzel, Junior Board member in charge of the contest, announced last night that an unusually large number of fans had entered already, with the number increasing every day.

All fans are asked to do is fill out the slip below with the scores they think will decide the four National Professional League games of November 3. A brief statement as to why each entry thinks the Redskins will win the Eastern Division title must be included, to be referred to in case of ties. The two entries guessing the correct scores will immediately be sent transportation, tickets, etc., to the Redskin-Dodger clash.

All slips must be in the Junior Board of Commerce Office, 204 Star Building, by midnight November 2.

No Rain Tomorrow In Columbia; S. C. Is Playing Clemson

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 22.—The odds are 37 to 1 that fans won't have to bring umbrellas or raincoats to the annual University of South Carolina-Clemson College football game Thursday at the State Fair here.

Believe it or not, rain hasn't fallen on a South Carolina-Clemson game since the series started in 1896, discounting the 1903-1908 period when relations were severed between the two schools.

If Coach Rex Enright, of the South Carolina Gamecocks, could have his say-so about the elements, he'd order cool weather for his small-sized squad, one of the smallest in the Southern Conference.

His Gamecocks will taper off with a dress rehearsal this afternoon before meeting Clemson, the 1939 Cotton Bowl champs, and again contenders for the bowl game.

Moore's Get Off Takes Hannibal Handicap at Empire City

Victor Pays $6.40; No Sir Takes Place

Foxbrough Is Third In Feature; Moore Also Triumphs With Speed to Spare

By the Associated Press

Empire City Race Track, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Moore, the Sheridan, Wyo., owners of Circle M Ranch, batted 1.000 per cent here this afternoon. They started two horses and both entered the winners' circle. Speed to Spare clicked in the second dash, then, in the featured Hannibal Handicap, Get Off drove to a length and a half triumph. Both winners were favorites.

Get Off, which has been campaigning in high-class company, led Joseph Pepp's No Sir over the line, while the latter beat William Woodward's Foxbrough by two lengths for the place. The victor paid $6.40 and stepped the mile and a sixteenth in 1:44 4-5.

A crowd of 8,770 viewed the various events, most of which contained small fields.

Napper Tandy and Foxborough quickly drew away from the others in the headliner, the pair battling head and head for the lead. It looked like three separate races along the backstretch, for several lengths behind the front pair, Get Off and Mythical king were disputing third position and, still another few lengths away, No Sir and Inscoelda contested the Caboose position.

The stretch run saw Get Off and No Sir displacing the tired early pacemakers. Get Off finally wore down the Pepp representative and pulled away under George Wolf's strong urging.

Stairs, twice second at Jamaica, became the fourth winning choice of the day when she drove first home in the sixth event. Saddled by Hirsch Jacobs, who has lacked his usual effectiveness for some weeks, Stairs wore down Affirmation and Registered B three quarters of a length to pay $4.40. Affirmation held on to the place, finishing two lengths better than Kurdistan.

CHARMFUL, within striking distance on outside from start, responded gamely when put to drive and drew clear gradually in final stages. LONG LANE, off alertly, was rated to stretch and closed with good energy. CHERRIKO, first away, was hard used while racing with LAST BET and weakened. LAST BET set early pace under handling tactics and weakened. PARI SUCRE went evenly. DOLLY was well placed early.

FATTY, under mild restraint while closest to early pace of SCURRY ALONG, went to front boldly after eighth fence, drew out, made bad landing at tenth and almost lost rider, regained stride and finished under drive. SNOBBY SCAMP, allowed to race on own courage for mile, moved up menacingly, but made unsteady landing at fourteenth fence and tired to end. Jockey B. Anatasti's claim of foul against Winner was not allowed. BAFFLER was not hurried for mile, fenced well and closed gamely. DUNDRILLIN was within striking distance early, but failed to recover after bad landing at fourth. SCURRY ALONG set early pace and stopped. WRACKONITE and PORT LAW lost riders at tenth and eleventh.

PRAETOR, lacking early speed, gained steadily along inside rail, responded to pressure and came to inside of KLEIG LIGHT to be opening gap at end. KLEIG LIGHT was under drive to dispose of ANNIE ALONE and tired in final 70 yards. FLAMING HIGH improved position on outside to midstretch and hung thereafter. WHY WAR'S equipment broke and she ran away before start. She was not hard ridden.

Selections at Laurel.

DEAR AL:

Speaking of gluttons for punishment, there was $46 bet on the filly Why War after she ran away yesterday. Three-way "nothing" parlay yesterday was Big Event, Abbasside and Suicide. At least, that's the way the press box half-wit put it. Word was received from Trainer Tommy Taylor that Myron Selznick's Can't Wait would be in from New York either Thursday or Friday and that he would go in the Washington. Can't Wait defeated Hash, one of the Pimlico Special invitees, in a recent New York stake and there was much comment that Can't Wait might have been included in the list invited to the Pimlico event. Trainer Carl Utz notified Racing Secretary John P. Turner, sr., that he was shipping Yankee Flirt here for the Selima Stakes on Saturday. Yankee Flirt races for the Glen Riddle Farm Trainer A. G. Robertson, who shipped Ringie in to run third in the Maryland Handicap last Saturday, returned to Empire City with that one, Rumba Gus and Toyfoot. M. B. Goss, of Winchester, Va., purchased Lafitoff from Walter Carroll in a private transaction and Moe Simon bought Chainwick from Hymie Neusteter in a similar deal. Maj. E. H. Desassure will be at Laurel today to inspect any stallions which may be offered to the United States Army Remount Service. Trainer Guy Bedwell had the filly Nasca on the track for a mile work, around the dogs, and hopes to have her ready for the Selima. He probably will start Sister Union as her running mate. Trainer Karl D. Jolseth reported that Sun Victor has been gelded and fired. Jockey Al Shelhamer is taking a three-day vacation but will be on hand to ride Saturday. Trainer Vincent Mara reports that he is shipping five 2-year-olds belonging to R. Sterling Clark to the La Broit farm. See you on the rail.

BILL.

First race—Blue Linnet was making her first start in several months when asked to meet Light of Morn and Big Event recently. She needed that conditioner and is more suitably placed with these maidens. Unknown Land has shown speed and should go well. Beaming Gal was good in New England.

Second race—The Schley-Mayer entry of Delly's Love and Ossabaw were odds-on favorites to whip this field but couldn't make it. With a sizable weight shift in their favor, a better performance is expected today. Good Chance beat the top pair last start and might be hard to down. Onechee raced well in New York.

Third race—Flower Parade was only two lengths back of Blinking Owl when the latter beat Miss Discovery last week. Dropping down into a claiming event today, she appears hard to beat. Haste Back has the speed to become dangerous and might place at a price. Memorist can better her last race.

Fourth race—King's Blue and O'Play shape up as the principal contenders in this sprint affair with the former holding the edge on the merits of his recent victory over O'Play. O'Play has won in fast time since his defeat by the top horse. Donna Leona receives a good figure.

Fifth race—Birch Rod beat Honey Cloud under similar conditions last outing running within 3-5 of a second of the track record. He figures to repeat. Rex Flag was third to Masked General and Sickle T. at Saratoga which makes him a keen factor. Moscow II, may be a bit stale.

Sixth race—Tedbriar ran good races in New York and New England in the handicap division and though displaying a tendency to bear out in recent races, has the class to win in this company. Tony Steel is in fine fettle and rates next in line. Oversight, a recent winner moves up.

Seventh race—Clingendaal was barely headed by Memory Book when racing in a higher caliber field on Saturday. Back in with platers of the $2,500 variety, he rates a slight edge. Walter Light was only a length behind Dr. Bones last start and figures next in line. Pollenator to beat the others.

Eighth race—Miss Ponne closed well behind Royal Teddy and Pollenator in her recent effort and is another which is dropping down. Heel Dust turned in a good effort to earn second position behind Jolly Flag last week and may prove tough to beat. Howard could threaten if sound.

Best bet—Flower Parade.

Laurel-Owned Dog Captures Derby Stake

D. C. Bernard's Judy Wins Over Field of 68; Jim Ray Is Second

By the Associated Press

Suffolk, Va., Oct. 22.—Judy, owned by D. E. Edward Clark, of Laurel, Md., took first place in the running of the Derby Stake today at the opening of the twentieth annual field trials of the Virginia Fox Hunters Association. The event will be completed tomorrow.

Second place was held by Jim Ray, owned by C. D. Andrews, of Suffolk, with 115 points behind Judy's 120. Nick, owned by W. B. F. Johnson, of Midlothian, took third place with 95 points, and Little Rose, owned by R. E. Bagley, of South Hill, was fourth with 90.

Eighty derbies were entered in the case, and 18 hounds were scratched. About 50 riders accompanied the chase, including 10 judges, and approximately 200 more persons afoot and in cars followed the hunt.

The pack was split in several packs after the starting of the cast of E. W. Coles, of Toana, master of hounds. Drewry Deford, of Richmond, secretary, said that the young puppies ran "steady."

Tonight members of the association were entertained at a barbecue at the kennels on the Smithfield Highway.

Completion of the Derby Stake and the posting of winners will take place tomorrow. At 2:30 p. m. the entering and marking of all age hounds will be staged. The annual bench show will be held at the kennels tomorrow night.

Navy May Lose Busik for Yale Game Saturday

Meantime Joe Hunt's Leg Improves; Net Ace to Play Again

By the Associated Press

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 22.—Both good and bad news emanated from Navy's football camp today.

The good news: Joe Hunt, the academy's ace tennis player and 1939 member of the United States Davis Cup team, has fully recovered from his leg injury and will be permitted to continue to play football for the junior varsity.

The bad news: Bill Busik, Navy's varsity triple-threat back, may be unavailable for the Yale game Saturday because of an injured knee.

At first it was thought that Hunt would have to hang up his moleskins for the season because of sprained ligaments. The academy medical department, however, said it was O. K. for Hunt to play.

Busik hurt his knee in the Drake game Saturday, but continued to play. His knee has gotten worse and may force him to the sidelines for all of this week.

Swede Larson, Middie headcoach, said either Wes Gebert or Tommy Blount would replace Busik at left halfback. He said he did not want to disrupt the second-team combination by elevating Howard Clark Busik's understudy, to the first eleven.

Larson also said Capt. Dick Foster, out since the early part of the season with an ankle injury, would start at left end against Yale in place of Bob Zoeller.

Willis Maxson's place at right end will be taken by Lars Wanggaard, substitute wingman, Larson said. Maxson is recuperating from an injured ankle.

Experiment Should Prove Successful

Kokoski Is A. W. O. L. From Colonial Camp; G. U. Regains Wixted For N. Y. U. Game

By Jack Munhall

Wily William Reinhart, the George Washington football coach, who takes great delight in transforming star ends into crack backs, and vice versa, yesterday was infected with the germ of an idea that may prove his greatest experimental success.

The rotund, rosy-cheeked boss of the Colonials, who took Bob Nowaskey from the backfield and watched him develop into the finest end in G. W. history, now is toying with the thought of shifting Mike Monchlovich from center to tackle Monchlovich probably will be at his accustomed station when the Colonials meet West Virginia here Friday night, but that may be his last game in the middle of the line.

Impelling reasons for this contemplated change are many, most important of which follow:

(1) The long casualty list of tackles in the G. W. camp; (2) the improved play of Don Siebert, 18-year-old sophomore center, and (3), Monchlovich's continued failure to develop into an accurate passing center.

Should Be Star Tackler

A savage blocker and even better on defense, the 195-pound junior has all the prerequisites of a star tackle.

Already the prepared shift of Monchlovich has had repercussions among the George Washington players. Of a sudden Tony Barauskas, erstwhile top-flight tackle who lately has been lazy, showed marked improvement in yesterday's drill as he and Monchlovich became rivals for a regular tackle position.

Meantime the Colonials were bolstered for the West Virginia game by the return to practice of Don Synder, place-kicking tackle, who was released from the hospital. Synder had been under observation for a possible brain concussion and internal injuries received against Kentucky. No word has been heard from John Kokoski, who reurned to his home in Ambridge, Pa., last week to attend the funeral of his father.

Bill Kern, "Coach of the Year" at Carnegia Tech in 1938, will be leading the strongest West Virginia eleven in four or five years when they invade Griffith Stadium for the Friday night clash with the Buff and Blue.

The Mountaineers, with probably the heaviest outside squad to appear here this season, will display outstanding backs in Johnny Carliss, a pulverizing line plunger, and Charley Seabright, an exceptional kicker and passer.

West Virginia's line will be manned almost exclusively by seniors, featuring Ends Bob Mellace and John Shonk, both of whom starred last year despite West Virginia's 13-0 loss to the Colonials.

Terps to Pass

Reports emanating from College Park yesterday indicated that Maryland's Terrapins will fill the air with passes Friday night at Baltimore as they attempt to make Western Maryland their first football victim of the season.

The coaching board, after peering over statistics of Saturday's Maryland-Florida game, concluded that the Terps threw far too few passes as they lost, 19-0.

So this week Quarterback Joe Murphy, who also is one of Maryland's two good passers, has instructions to dig deeply into his bag of aerial tricks. Sharing with Murphy the passing assignment will be Mearle Duvall, junior halfback. Ends Dick Shaffer and Leo Mueller are scheduled to do plenty of receiving.

40,000 to See Hoyas Play

A crowd of 40,000 fans is expected to file into Yankee Stadium Saturday to watch Georgetown and New York University elevens meet in the eleventh renewal of their colorful rivalry.

The Violets and Hoyas will take the field with the series deadlocked, each having won four games and tied two. Victories in the rivalry have traveled in cycles. Georgetown captured the two opening games, 7-2, in 1928, and 14-0, in 1929. N. Y. U. then won or tied the next six games. Now the cycle has swung in G. U.'s favor and Saturday the Hoyas will be seeking their third straight over the Violets.

G. U. Coach Jack Hagerty returned to the Hilltop yesterday after a week-end in New York to find welcome news awaiting him in the announcement from Trainer Harry Crowley that Bill Wixted, senior end, will be ready Saturday. Wixted missed last week's V. P. I. game with injuries sustained against Waynesburg.

Cards Are Warned

Out at Catholic University Coach Dutch Bergman, pointing out West Virginia Wesleyan's notorious record as a "spoiler," warned his Cardinals not to expect too much of a set-up Saturday when the Bobcats visit Brookland.

Fresh in the mind of some of the C. U. players is their last year's 60-0 rout of West Virginia Wesleyan, and also the Bobcats' 32-0 licking by West Virginia last week. This, Bergman tried to temper, if not dispel entirely by recalling a pair of famous Bobcat upset victories in 1936.

The first was accomplished at Duquense's expense, 2-0, one week after the Dukes beat Pitt, and the second was scored over C. U., 24-19, after the Cards led 19-17 with only three minutes left to play.

Lafayette's Unbeaten Team Engages Army

Saturday Contest Is First Meeting In 47-Year Period

Special Dispatch to The Post

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 22.—Lafayette College, conquerors of N. Y. U., Muhlenberg, Ursinus and Gettysburg, sends an undefeated and untied eleven to Michie Stadium this Saturday afternoon (October 28) to meet Army on the gridiron for the first time in 47 years.

Statistically, the Leopards from Easton, Pa., are one of the Nation's top-ranking offensive teams. Not including last week-end's contest, Lafayette's average is 389 yards gained each game. Only Cornell has a better record.

The Leopards' main gain-makers, Walt Zirinsky and Jim Farrell, are ranked second and sixth in the country in the matter of individual rushing efforts. Only Michigan's Tommy Harmon outclasses Zirinsky in total yards gained. The Lafayette flash, before the Gettysburg game, piled up 342 yards in 39 rushes for an average gain of 8.77. Farrell has a higher average—9.59 per play—but registered only 278 yards in 29 rushes.

Army and Lafayette football teams have met only once before. That was in 1893, the sport's fourth season at West Point, when Army won by a 36-0 score. Lafayette fans promise a different result this Saturday, since the Easton boys will invade West Point at least 2-1 favorites.

Nat Draftee Coast's 'Most Valuable'

1st Baseman Archie Wins Recognition

Seattle Star Honored By Sporting News Poll; Lou Novikoff Runs Close Second

Special Dispatch to The Post

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 22.—After several years of rapping at the door of fame in baseball's major leagues, George Archie, first baseman drafted by Washington's Nats from the Seattle Rainiers, today was named the most valuable player in the Pacific Coast League.

The big fellow was selected by a committee of seven Coast sports writers for the Sporting News, national baseball weekly published here, over Lou Novikoff, Los Angeles' hard-hitting outfielder, who is to be given a trial by the Chicago Cubs this spring.

Archie seemed set to go to Washington, via the draft, last fall, but the selection of his teammate, Alan Strange, by the St. Louis Browns, who had first choice in the selection, shattered that hope. There were numerous talks about his possible sale, but none of the deals materialized. Washington, however, was in a position to get George in the draw this fall and he was fortunate to get the Washington bid, for the Senators can use a high-class first baseman and Coast league followers claim he is all of that and more.

The first baseman, however, did not win the most valuable player award without a battle, as Novikoff, the slugging "Mad Russian," who maintained his reputation for hitting in all leagues, made the outcome uncertain until the last member of the committee had voted. The final result was 49 points for Archie and 44 for the Los Angeles outfielder, with Steve Mesner, of San Diego, third. The first baseman was eighth among 24 candidates in 1939.

The Sporting News points out that Archie was the choice of all seven members of the committee, three placing him first, two second, one third and one fourth. Six selected Novikoff, of which three gave him first place, two second and one third. The other first place was given to Mesner, who also was named for second twice, third and fifth once each.

The Seattle first baseman is considered an ideal player. He hits consistently over .300 for many extra bases, is an adept base runner with many steals to his credit, an agile fielder, and carries an even temperament onto the field, running to the reticent side. Sturdily built, he has tremendous leg power, which is a big asset at bat, in the field and on the bases. Born in Nashville, Tenn., April 27, 1914, Archie stands an even 6 feet and weighs 170 pounds.

With Seattle in 1939, Archie hit .330, including 34 doubles, 16 triples and 7 home runs, and stole 27 bases. Unofficial averages for 1940 give him a batting average of .324, with 46 doubles, 9 triples and 7 home runs, and 25 stolen bases.

Pennock Considering Roanoke, Other Cities For New Team Site

By the Associated Press

Roanoke, Va., Oct. 22.—Herb Pennock, director of the Boston Red Sock farm system, who recently said the Rocky Mount club in the Piedmont Baseball League was not paying its way, was here today "looking around."

With him was Ralph Daughton, of Norfolk, president of the league, whose directors voted Sunday in Richmond to permit the Cincinnati Reds to leave Durham and the Red Sox to leave Rocky Mount.

Pennock and Daughton came here last night after visiting Lynchburg yesterday.

The former said the Hill City as well as Newport News and Raleigh and Greensboro, N. C., appear "very much interested in baseball," but said consideration would be given Roanoke if "satisfactory" arrangements could be made, particularly in view of a proposed new athletic field here.

Daughton said Roanoke is regarded as a good baseball town, but explained the decision was up to the club directors.

The Red Sox decision as to relocation is expected at a meeting in Atlanta December 3.

Bench-Warmer Leads Big Ten in Scoring

Chicago, Oct. 22 (INS).—Despite the fact he rode the bench for more than half the game against Indiana last Saturday, Iowa's Bill Green leads the Big Ten in individual scoring, statistics released by the Western Conference Service Bureau revealed today.

In two conference games Green has scored three touchdowns for a total of 18 points. Four are tied for second place with 12 points each, while Tom Harmon, of Michigan, one of the Nation's leading scorers, is next with 10 points scored in the Wolverines' one conference game.

Ackerman On Hunting

Nearly 2,500 Americans have been granted permission to import and carry sporting arms in the Province of Ontario, which is good proof that there isn't much trouble in obtaining the permits. Although it requires about two weeks time, the procedure is as simple as it ever was. To cross the border an automobile operator's license or similar identification is all that is needed.

ACKERMAN

In nearby Maryland this year there is no dearth of squirrels, but there is a shortage reported in many sections of Virginia. Many hunters bagged only a few in these areas, while in other parts of the State there were at least as many, if not more, than in previous years.

Just why squirrels move away from their usual haunts and congregate in other areas is not known. Very probably the greatest contributing factor is the food supply.

Studies are now being made at the Wildlife Research Unit at Virginia Polytechnic Institute to determine more about the habits and migrations of squirrels. Perhaps in a few more years it may be possible to control somewhat better their numbers in a given locality, or at least to predict or explain unusual variations in numbers such as have occurred this year.

Strange to say, and in spite of the fact that the squirrel is one of the smallest of our game animals, they attract as much attention as any game.

The Silver Spring-Takoma Park Chapter of Waltonians held their first turkey shoot of the season on Sunday at Brook Grubbs golf range out on Georgia Avenue extended. Every Sunday now, from 10 a. m. until 5 p. m. and probably until the first of the year, these shoots will be held.

This is the time of the year when bird-lovers, hunters and landowners should start thinking about and making preparations for feeding game birds, particularly quail, during the tough winter days of mid-winter ahead.

With a marked increase in Bobwhite reported from many sections, it is more necessary than ever before to leave food standing for these birds. A few grains dropped here and there, or better still, a few rows of grain left standing at the field edges, close to natural cover, is the best possible insurance for carrying over the game and insectivorous birds into next year.

November 1 and 2 are the dates for the fall trials of the National Capital Field Trial Club. The event this year will be run on the Mount Pleasant Farm in Rockville.

W.B.C. Athletes Get Awards At Banquet

71 Central Branch Youngsters Receive W's; Justice Shines

Interrupting a terrific onslaught on Schneider's food supply, Central Branch of the Washington Boys' Club athletes were given their awards for the 1939 season last night at the organization's annual banquet.

Seventy-one youngsters were on hand to receive "W's" for outstanding work in the branch's numerous departments, but star of the evening was young Jimmy Justice, winner of the J. Povich Pro-East?

Sports Editor of The Post:

I am a rabid sports fan and have always admired the Povich columns for many years in The Post. I've always considered them entertaining, to the point, and usually fearless and unbiased. I was threefore somewhat shocked to observe that his column this morning (Monday, October 21) seemed to exhibit a definite pro-East bias in the matter of college football. In discussing the current Notre Dame outfit, he says: "Only Navy and Northwestern for an unbeaten year." What are in line to give the Irish a heavy argument in their search about Southern California, which he fails to mention? After all, they've beaten Notre Dame the last two years and were Rose Bowl champs. Remember two years ago when the Irish had an unbeaten record ruined by the Trojans in Los Angeles. Notre Dame may take them this year, but do you really rate Navy as a stronger team than U. S. C.? Why, Mr. Povich! I really think It's unjust to imply that U. S. C. isn't even "in line to give the Irish a heavy argument," don't you?

Then, later on in his column he states that Stanford is "the only unlicked team on the Coast." I beg to remind you that Southern California, though twice tied, is still "unlicked" also. No doubt it was an oversight on your part, which you'll please excuse my calling to your attention.

Are you really pro-East, or anti-Southern California, or what is the explanation for this unusual attitude?

Yours in fair play,

E. B. DAWSON.

Terrors Work For Md. Game

Westminster, Md., Oct. 22 (AP).—Western Maryland's football squad covered the whole range of attack and defense in a two-hour session today pointing toward Friday night's game at Baltimore with the University of Maryland.

Coach Charlie Havens reported that with the return of Smith, backfield man injured in the Mount St. Mary's game, all 32 of his squad members would be available for action.

Although Western Maryland's 1940 record surpassed Maryland's, the College Parkers have a 17-to-12 edge in the 29 games the two have played since 1889.

ability. All I do, really, is pump up the ball and keep order. Particularly on that bus. We've got transportation down fine, now. My regular tackle drives the bus, and he's great. He should be . . . I got him off a truck in Des Moines.

"We stopped off at Harvard last Saturday to see the cadets march. That's what my boys wanted to see. Bill Bingham and I talked before the game. He ordered us to take the bus out of his stadium and put it down in the parking lot. He said 'Football is not a business here, Mr. Simms.' I said 'uh-huh,' while I looked up at the 30,000 people in the stands. So I said, 'well, that's fine Mr. Bingham, I guess in that case it will be okay to bring my 33 players in free.' But he charged me a buck sixty-five a head. The next day we came down to New York and the Giants, who are admittedly in the football business, let us in free.

"We've got color. We throw that ball around. Got a brace of twins in the line, the Coleman boys. Look so much alike I can't tell the difference. And it doesn't help much when you consider that their names are Harry and Hal. One's got false teeth, thats the only difference. We've got the biggest player in football, too, 295-pound Tusco Martin. We've got the prettiest little stadium in the country, too. The PWA put it up for us, and who says Roosevelt isn't a great guy? If we could only get a field house out of him . . ."

Taxpayers' Chief And Miss Howry Talk for Willkie

District Willkie adherents made two thrusts against the New Deal yesterday.

Rufus B. Lusk, president of the District Taxpayers' Association, declared that President Roosevelt's personal feelings "may have little to do with it," but that added power, in the end, "means dictatorship."

Miss Elizabeth Butler Howry, former corresponding secretary of the National Woman's Democratic Club, in a radio address, broadcast over WOL, said she favored Willkie for three reasons: His character and attainments; abuse against both freedom and opportunity by the present Administration; the third-term issue.

Headquarters of the Willkie Washington Committee, 727 Fifteenth Street Northwest, will have open house today for the following broadcasts: Senator Taft, 8:30 p. m.; Representative Martin, 9 p. m.; former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, 10 p. m.; Willkie, 10:30 p. m.; Senator and Vice President Candidate McNary, 3 p. m.

Latin Americans Need U. S. Money, Legionnaires Told

United States money must "immediately, continuously, and increasingly" raise the standard of living in Latin America, if democracy is to be preserved throughout this Hemisphere, American Legionnaires were told here last night by Dr. Ernesto Galarza, of the Pan American Union.

"As long as there are men—as there are—anywhere in America who must work every day at hard labor for less than $50 cash a year, democracy will have something to worry about," the union's chief of labor and social information said in an address before National Cathedral Post, No. 10, at the Alice Deal Junior High School, Thirty-eighth Place and Davenport Street Northwest.

William C. Buell, commander, and other newly elected officers of the post were installed by Commander William H. Hargrave, of the District of Columbia Department, American Legion.

Oregon Union Control Law Ruled Invalid

Salem, Oreg., Oct. 22 (AP).—The State Supreme Court today declared the Oregon Union Control Law unconstitutional.

A majority of four held that the court had no alternative in view of a United States Supreme Court decision last spring voiding Alabama and California picketing laws.

Chief Justice John L. Rand dissented and Justice George Rossman wrote a separate concurring opinion.

The decision, reversing a three-judge circuit court, culminated a successful attack on the measure by the A. F. of L., the C. I. O., and the Railroad Brotherhoods.

The law prohibited picketing or boycotting of an employer unless more than half his employes were involved in a dispute involving wages, hours or working conditions.

Taft Declares Roosevelt Failed To Plan Defense

Richmond, Ind., Oct. 22 (AP).—United States Senator Robert A. Taft (Republican), of Ohio, declared in a speech prepared for delivery here tonight that President Roosevelt "failed to propose, or even to plan a defense program," despite his "protestations that he knew all about what was going to happen and predicted it."

"The President and his friends have boasted that he saw the present situation coming when others said it would never come," the Senator said. "If, through his special sources of information, he knew what was coming, why did he fail to prepare this country for defense? . . .

"The truth is that the New Deal has been a good deal more interested in its own pet projects and the votes to keep it in office than it has been in national defense."

Urging a change in administrations, Taft said "we could not find a man more competent to meet the present situation than Wendell L. Willkie."

Third-Term Issue Vital, Lawyers' Group Declares

In a statement outlining the history of the two-term tradition, the Washington Democratic Lawyers' Committee Against the Third Term declared yesterday that the third term is "the paramount issue" facing the American people today.

The statement was signed by Ralph A. Cusick, Marshall Diggs, Charles D. Drayton, Rozier Dulaney, jr., Charles E. Ford, Henry E. Gilligan, David A. Hart, George P. Hoover, Col. Julius I. Peyser, William E. Richardson, Maj. R. Kemp Slaughter, Frederick Stohlman, Edmund M. Toland and John W. Townsend.

"We hold to the belief that a violation of the third-term principle is destructive of our democratic form of government," the declaration said. "This question lies wholly outside of any partisan consideration. It is a question which affects the very foundations of our democracy."

Austin, Tex., Oct. 22 (AP).—J. E. McDonald, a Democrat serving his fifth term as Texas commissioner of agriculture, asserted today he would vote for Wendell Willkie and Senator McNary.

Long a critic of Agricultural Adjustment Administration policies, McDonald said:

". . . In my opinion American agriculture cannot survive four more years of the New Deal without being reduced to serfdom and peonage."

Arlington Bar Ends Hearings In Jones Case

Committee to Report Findings Later; Judge Pleads His Own Case

Commonwealth's Attorney Lawrence W. Douglas revealed yesterday that he had advised Arlington County Police Chief H. L. Woodyard not to obtain search warrants in numbers cases from Assistant Trial Justice Albert M. Jones because Jones had represented several alleged numbers operators as attorney.

Douglas said he did not believe that Jones would reveal the existence of such warrants to the suspects involved, but he added that Jones' connection as counsel for so-called members of the numbers ring made such a policy advisable for the good of all concerned.

Douglas testified before the grievance committee of the Arlington County Bar Association at the county courthouse. The committee last night concluded hearings on charges of unethical conduct made against Judge Jones by a member of the county board, Edmund D. Campbell.

Before the committee adjourned Judge Jones appeared to testify in his own behalf and deny Campbell's interpretation of the facts.

Hedrick Included, Too

Douglas told the committee that he had advised the Police Chief to follow the same policy in regard to Judge B. M. Hedrick, since Jones was Hedrick's appointee. The only other source of search warrants, it was brought out, was Circuit Court Justice Walter B. McCarthy.

Woodyard testified that following the policy suggested by Douglas handicapped police work, since it was not always possible to reach Judge McCarthy when warrants were needed. For this reason five warrants were obatined from Hedrick.

Campbell told the committee the records revealed that three of the five search warrants issued by Judge Hedrick were never served, and in the other two cases no evidence was obtained in the police raid. He emphasized, however, that he implied no wrong-doing, but merely was presenting the facts.

Of the nine warrants issued by Judge McCarthy, Campbell said, seven produced evidence.

Committee Report Friday

The three-member grievance committee, which will report to the Bar Association Friday, consisted of Allan C. Adams, chairman; Miss Ann Hedrick, a sister of Judge Hedrick, and James Simmonds, who was appointed by Thomas W. Phillips, president of the Bar Association, to replace Judge Jones as the third member of the committee. Jones resigned from the committee when the hearing was scheduled.

An alalysis of court sentences in numbers cases in 1938, 1939 and 1940 was presented to the committee by Campbell. The report revealed that Jones was counsel for five violators from March 20 to September 28, 1940, and each received a 30-day sentence from Judge Hedrick. Every numbers operator sentenced before March 20, when Jones took his first numbers case, received 60 days to 1 year in jail, according to the report.

After September 28, when Campbell first charged Jones with unethical conduct before the county board, two numbers operators were sentenced to 60 and 90 days for violations, it indicated.

Campbell also quoted from the court record in the case of Theodore Knott, accused as a numbers law violator, to prove that Jones defended Knott as counsel before Judge H. Hedrick, then substituting for Hedrick, imposed sentence on Knott in the same case.

Campbell charged that it was unethical for Jones to practice law in Hedrick's court under rule 31 of the Rules for Integration of the State Bar adopted by the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals in 1938.

Jones Pleads Own Case

Appearing in his own defense, Jones told the committee that he did not believe rule 31 was meant to apply to substitute justices receiving a salary of $50 a month.

"If I can't practice in the County Court," he declared, "I would rather go out and drive a cab."

Supported by Judge Hedrick, who also testified last night, Jones said that in the Knott case he had merely imposed the sentence Hedrick instructed him to impose.

The assistant justice denied that it was necessary for the police chief to go only to Judge McCarthy in seeking search warrants. "I have never refused to issue a warrant, even against a client of mine," he said.

He denied that there was any significance in the lighter sentences imposed on the numbers operators he represented before Judge Hedrick. He said that every numbers operator he represented was sent to jail.

The Rural Electrification Administration reported yesterday that requests for loans to develop rural power projects were double the amount of money available.

Steel Production To Reach Record Level This Week

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—The steel industry will step up production to 94.9 per cent of capacity this week, highest since the American Iron & Steel Institute started records in 1933, the institute said today.

This represented an increase of .5 of 1 point over last week. A month ago output was at 92.5 per cent of capacity and a year ago 90.2. Previous high was 94.4 per cent in November last year.

The figures indicated more tons of steel would be produced this week than at any time in the history of the industry. In 1929 steel mills worked at 100 per cent of capacity for a time but since then new facilities have been installed increasing capacity.

Stocks Rally Fractionally on Mild Revival Of Political Optimism; Bond List Loafs

New York, Oct. 22.—Steels and industrial specialties whisked the stock market into a selective recovery push today that added gains of fractions to more than a point for favorites.

The list ran into minor difficulties at the start but did beter as bids began to come in for the metals. Prices were at or near their tops at the close, with volume picking up appreciably in the final hour.

Although the trend generally was higher, many leaders failed to follow through and finished in a narrow range or behind minus signs.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up .1 of a point at 44.5 after having registered losses in the two preceding sessions. Transfers amounted to 535,730 shares against 373,020 the day before.

The modest comeback was attributed by brokers partly to a mild revival of political optimism, continuance of business betterment and the constructive technical interpretation placed on the dwindling turnover in yesterday's slight setback.

Many traders, however, apparently held to a conservative position on the idea the war news was far from conclusive and that climbing corporation earnings might have to contend with higher and higher taxes. Even those bullish on the election outlook—from Wall Street's standpoint—were not making many big bets on the outcome.

Steels reflected forecasts of near-capacity mill operations for months to come. Amusement company issues were relatively lively, with small advances following word five moving picture producers had agreed to a consent settlement of the Government's antitrust suit against them.

Savage Arms jumped a point at 33 when directors voted a dividend of $1.50 on the common. Previous payments of 25 and 50 cents, respectively, had been made in February and May.

Prominent on the upside were U. S. Steel, Bethelehem, duPont, Dow Chemical, Westinghouse, Phelps Dodge, Penn-Dixie Cement preferred, Douglas Aircraft, Chrysler, Sears-Roebuck, Union Carbide, Pathe, Paramount, Loew's and Pennsylvania.

Glenn Martin dropped 1¼ and lesser declines were recorded for Montgomery Ward, American Telephone, Eastman Kodak, American Can, Lockheed, Great Northern and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Among gainers in the Curb were Electric Band & Share, Humble Oil, Gulf Oil, American Gas, Jones & Laughlin, Lake Shore, New Jersey Zinc, and Northern States Power "A." Dealings here approximated 87,000 shares versus 78,000 yesterday.

The bond market had numerous firm spots but the main list loafed most of the session and emerged with only negligible net changes.

Best showing occurred in some of the low-priced rail issues involved in reorganization proceedings, including St. Poul 4½s and 5s, Erie 5s and Wisconsin Consolidated 4s. Others ahead moderately included Nickel Plate 4"s at 59⅛ and New York Central 5s at 65.

Loans of companies whose prospects have been linked with the expanding rearmament program moved ahead. These included International Mercantile Marine 6s at 67½, Walworth 4s at 78 and Otis Steel 4½ at 82.

Standing still or slipping back slightly were, among others, Western Union 5s, Montana Power 3¾s, American & Foreign Power 5s and International Hydro Electric 6s.

Foreign dollar bonds provided wide changes. Dominican second 5½s dropped 6¾ points to 57¼ and Belgium 6s lost 4, both on small sales. Gainers of 1 to 2 or more included Australia 5s, Berlin 6½s, and Czecho-Slovakia 8s. Silesia Land Association 6s jumped 11¾ to 25.

United States Governments closed 3-32 of a point lower to up 6-32.

Hides at New York were up as much as ¼ cent a pound against a background of recent large purchases of spot hides for civilian and Army use.

Wheat at Chicago rose ¾ to 1⅜ cents a bushel on good demand from mills and cash houses. May and July wheat set new tops for the season. Corn rose ⅞ to 1 cent, with the May option at the season's peak.

Trade and mill interests were the chief props to a slowly rising cotton market at New York. Final prices were 5 to 20 cents a a bale higher.

Silk and wool tops moved against the trend, while hubber was irregular.

Reopened Belgian Stock Mart Stages Advance Despite War

Brussels (Correspondence of The Associated Press).—In the midst of war, the Belgian Stock Exchange has staged an advance.

When, on August 8, the exchange reopened with a limited number of debentures admitted for transactions, it became evident much money was seeking employment.

State debentures improved on September 3, some industrial shares were admitted.

This was the signal for a rise which moved the authorities, as from September 11, to admit all debentures and shares that used to be negotiated before May 10, except foreign and colonial shares or shares of Belgian concerns seated abroad.

The rise went on despite announcement that colonial shares and debentures had to be presented for registration and deposited by September 25.

Reasons for this measure were not disclosed but competent financial quarters believed unregistered stocks would be banned as punishment for Belgians who stay outside the country.

It has been announced that new taxes to yield approximately $33,000,000 would be levied to finance pauperism and unemployment.

Besides, a 3,000,000 franc loan ($100,000,000) is to be launched to consolidate the expenses of supporting the occupying German armies.

Refining activity slowed slightly, however. Reporting refineries operated at 81.5 per cent of potentiol capacity compared with 82.2 per cent the previous week.

Gasoline production declined during the week, totaling 11,696,000 barrels compared with 11,914,000 the previous week.

By the Associated Press

The Government yesterday sold an additional 97,500 kilowatts of Columbia River Hydro Electric Power to the Aluminum Co., of America for national defense purposes.

Secretary Ickes announced the sale. The power will be generated by the Bonneville (Oreg.), Power Administration and delivered to the company's plant near Vancouver, Wash. Officials said it would be used to manufacture aluminum for military airplanes in three new plant units to be built immediately.

$135,500 Fees Allowed In Railway Revamping

Philadelphia, Oct. 22 (AP).—Fees totaling $135,500 were allowed by a three-judge Federal District Court today to five law firms and two banking institutions for services to the Lehigh Valley Railroad Co. in its recent successful refinancing program.

The awards represent a slash of $46,682.71 from the $182,182.71 asked by eight law firms, two banks, a railroad economist and a woman bondholder who "free-lanced" her objections by acting as her own counsel.

Cotton Futures

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—A last-minute flurry of trade buying today lifted cotton futures final 1 to 4 points.

Trade and mill interests were the market's chief supports, although brokers with Bombay connections supported the list early.

Offerings represented hedging by spot interests and the South. Memphis had cotton for sale on every point advance.

Traders displayed interest in reports that Russia might buy 500,000 bales of United States cotton. Observers estimated the Soviets had purchased about 70,000 bales.

Specialty weaves were features in Worth Street textile markets. Business in staple lines was about in line with current output and full asking prices were said.

Exports Monday 16,083 bales; season so far 260,696; port receipts, 23,205; port stocks, 2,967,975.

God Is Majority Stockholder Of This $13,000,000 Firm

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Oct. 22.—An industrialist who says his board chairman and majority stockholder is God related today how he rose from bankruptcy to a millionaire's rating in 12 years.

"I am convinced that man can make his best living as well as his best life in partnership with God," R. G. LeTourneau told an emergency conference of Christian business and professional men.

LeTourneau, who flew to Chicago in his own airplane, heads factories in Peoria, Georgia and California, employing 2,000 men in construction of road-building machinery.

"I had a little foundry back in the boom period that was doing a modest business," he recalled. "Then the depression flattened me out. I was bankrupt and several thousands in debt. In my extremity I turned to the Lord for guidance. I promised a part of my income for missions.

"I started going again on faith, not knowing how I would meet the pay roll. It seemed I couldn't make both the pay roll and the pledge for missions, but each time prayer opened the way.

"The LeTourneau Foundation now owns 67.5 per cent of the 450,000 shares in the company and uses the income for missionary and evangelistic purposes. Last year, with the Lord as chairman of our board, we made $1,816,470 but that money didn't go for private profit. Nine-tenths of it was used in spreading the teachings of the chairman of our board."

He said the foundation was rated at $13,000,000 and the company's sales last year amounted to $7,731,325.

U. S. Supplies Of Manganese And Tin Grow

'Real Progress' Made To Fill War Chest, Says Defense Aide

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Oct. 22.—A National Defense consultant declared tonight the United States' stock pile of strategic metals now included "enough manganese for two years' consumption and enough tin for one year."

"We wish we had started earlier, but we consider that we have made very real progress," the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers was told at the National Metal Congress by R. C. Allen, Cleveland consultant for the National Defense Advisory Commission's industrial materials division.

Allen said "our reserves of antimony, chrome ore, tungsten and quartz crystals, among the metals, are beginning to accumulate."

He said defense experts also "are working on salvage and reclamation programs, hoping we may never have to take them out of the desk drawers, but conscious that they may play an important part if it comes to a serious pinch."

HampshireHeights Citizens to Dine

Plans for the second annual banquet were discussed last night at the meeting of the Hampshire Heights Citizens Association, held at Barnard School, Fourth and Decatur Streets Northwest. The banquet will be December 2 in the Hotel Hamilton.

Francis Taylor was elected delegate to the Federation of Citizens' Associations to succeed Lawton Mellichampe, who resigned. James Duhamel, speaker of the evening, described Washington "as it used to be."

Two Die as Result Of Accidents In Montgomery

Two more fatalities were added yesterday to the growing list of persons killed in accidents in Montgomery County this year.

Henry Waunk, 64-year-old carpenter, of 7015 Blair Road Northwest, died yesterday at Washington Sanitarium and Hospital, Takoma Park, as the result of injuries suffered Monday night. Montgomery County Police said that Waunk, stepping back to avoid a swerving bus in the 8000 block Georgia Avenue, Silver Spring, moved into the path of a car operated by Walter Duke, 52, Navy Yard printer, who lives at 200 Jones Bridge Road, North Chevy Chase, Md.

Seth Thomas Jones, 30, colored, of Rockville, Md., died yesterday at Montgomery County General Hospital. Sandy Spring, Md., as the result of a crash Monday at the intersection of Germantown Road and Route 28. Julia Driver, colored, of Seneca, was killed almost instantly. Montgomery County Police at Rockville said Jones had failed to make the turn and his car had crashed against a bank.

Students Beaten In Nazi Prison, Fugitive Reports

Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Oct. 22.—A 23-year-old student, still bearing scars and wounds inflicted in a German Sudetenland prison, escaped across Austria into Yugoslavia and gave an account today of tortures suffered by more than 800 young Czechs who are still prisoners there.

The fugitive is already on his way to Greece, en route to the Near East to join the British forces there. His name cannot be used until he is safe from possible extradition.

"I was wounded by a machine-gun during a student demonstration in Prague November 18 last year," he said, "when the Germans killed 26 and wounded 120. I was taken to Valles Prison, where I was hung by my wrists for six days and beaten with sandbags until I confessed details of our organization.

"There are more than 800 students still in that prison who are beaten regularly. I escaped after knocking out my guard and taking his uniform."

Contract Bridge

Baron Waldemar von Zedtwitz displayed his extraordinary adaptability to bridge partners when he teamed with that exotic bidder, S. Garton Churchill, at a recent tournament. On the hand shown in today's box the pair won a "top" when a bluff bid by "Church" confused the adversaries and sent them into a poor contract, and skillful defensive play by the baron defeated the bid two tricks.

But before the enemy stumbled into their unprofitable declaration the baron tiptoed out on thin ice with a two-heart take-out of his partner's psychic.

Had West let his partner's double stand, the baron might have held the set to three with good management and good luck, which would have been a successful "save" against the opponents' no-trump game, but a set of four, which looks more likely, would put him down 700 points for a very bad score.

But East and West went on to three spades, and this is the way it was played:

"Church" led his fourth-best club; low was played from the dummy; the queen came from the baron and East won with the king. He led a low spade to dummy's jack, and North took with the king, returning the diamond nine. The ace won, and declarer next played the ace and queen of spades, learning of the bad break on the third round.

He cashed his king of diamonds, went over to dummy's queen and then led the fourth round, offering it to the baron to ruff. But he wisely refused, waiting for declarer to take the ace of clubs, which would establish a trick for South.

East discarded a heart on the diamond and, immediately obliged; the baron ruffed the club ace, played his ten of spades, drawing East's last trump, the nine, and led the heart queen. Declarer covered with his king; "Church" won his ace, cashed his jack of clubs and played a heart back to the baron.

East was set two tricks, losing three spades, a club and two hearts. Had Declarer tossed a club on the fourth diamond lead instead of a heart, he could have won his spade nine and saved a trick.

Housemaid Admits Slaying Mistress Who 'Nagged' Her

New York, Oct. 22 (AP).—The brutal slaying of her mistress because of "constant nagging" about her services was admitted tonight by a 19-year-old housemaid, Chief Assistant District Attorney Sylvester Ryan of the Bronx announced.

Ryan said the maid, Betty Klempa, confessed to bludgeoning to death Mrs. Leah Rubin, 38-year-old mother of two children, in her Bronx apartment last Tuesday during a heated argument.

The body of the victim—wife of Dr. Eli H. Rubin, a tubercular specialist—was so mutilated about the face that she was all but unrecognizable. A baseball bat was the weapon, police believed.

The maid, who was questioned the day of the murder and released, later was held in $20,000 bail as a material witness. The reported confession came after several days of questioning.

Listen!

with Glynn

The welkin will ring tonight—we've always enjoyed the sound of the welkin ringing—with as nice a group of compaign addresses as you'll find on many a night, up to November 5 at any rate.

Both President Roosevelt and his opponent, Wendell Willkie, are to be heard within a half hour of each other. The President speaks for three-quarters of an hour from Convention Hall in Philadelphia between 9:15 and 10 p. m. It is the first of his series of five campaign addresses, presented under the auspices of the Democratic National Committee, and it's titled "America Looks to the Future."

Mr. Willkie is to present his views on American defense in an address at the Tenth Annual New York Herald-Tribune Forum on Current Problems, being held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York. The forum topic is "America's Second Fight for Freedom." Mr. Willkie speaks from 10:30 to 11 p. m.

Immediately preceding President Roosevelt's talk, from 9 to 9:15 p. m., Attorney General Robert H. Jackson is to make a campaign speech for the Administration on the topic, "Manpower and Industrial Conscription. And from 3 to 3:3 p. m. Senator McNary, Republican Vice Presidential nominee, is heard speaking from Bloomington, Ill., and from 8:30 to 9 p. m. Senator Robert Taft says a few other good words for the Republicans, from Marion, Ind. A full political day, what!

O, yes! They all can be heard over Station WJSV.

Clerk Indicted For Threats To President

Blount Also Accused Of Shooting Youth A Year Ago

Edward DeRoulhac Blount, 30, Government clerk, was indicted here yesterday on charges of twice threatening to kill Roosevelt.

Blount pleaded guilty at his preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage, but his attorney, James F. Reilly, said he would plead not guilty to the indictment when he is arraigned in District Court Friday.

The District grand jury also accused Blount of shooting Louis Apostolakos, 18, of 109 E Street Northwest, the night of August 10, 1939.

Threats against the President were made punishable by a law enacted in the World War. Should he be convicted, Blount would be liable to $2,000 fine or ten years imprisonment, or both, for the threats, and to another ten years for the shooting.

Went to Western High

Blount finished at Western High School and attended Johns Hopkins University one year. He has worked for the Census Bureau about five years. He makes his home on the $69,000 yacht Sunshine, owned by his father, Walter Eames Blount, retired lawyer and manufacturer, who is commander of a flotilla of the Coast Guard Reserve here.

Secret Service Agents Mandeville C. Frost and John A. White some weeks ago were assigned to investigate reports that Blount abused and threatened the President and praised Hitler.

From the cruiser Habana, owned by the younger Blount, the agents took a quantity of German periodicals, including copies of a speech by Hitler. All were in the German language. The agents took custody of a number of firearms to which the younger Blount had access.

Jury Probed Shooting Year Ago

Blount was quoted as saying that he twice cabled birthday messages to the German Fuehrer and that once the German Embassy acknowledged the greeting.

The shooting of the Apostolakos boy was investigated by the grand jury a year ago. The investigation was revived after Blount's arrest for the threats, on October 9. The youth was shot in a row between Blount and some friends of his and a group of young people who parked near the waterfront after attending a dance at the Y. W. C. A.

Attonery Reilly said Blount told him he did not remember making any threats against the President, but that if he said anything of the kind, he was not in earnest. Blount is free on $5,000 bond until his arraignment.

The indictments were among 32 presented yesterday before Justice F. Dickinson Letts.

Those indicted were:

Traffic Light Control Plan

By Howard F. Wentworth

Post Staff Writer

Provision for a special room to house a "central control" system for timing traffic lights through the downtown area has been made in the new Municipal Center building on Indiana Aveue, it was learned last night.

In December, 1939, following a series of stories in The Post on traffice control methods in the congested section, the Commissioners' traffic advisory council recommended "installation at as early a date as possible of further improvements in timing devices, including the central control system."

Traffic Directon William A. Van Duzer revealed yesterday that his headquarters in the new building will include room for the modern signal-control feature. He added, however, that engineers as yet have been unable to produce a system which would be practical for Washington.

Three manufacturers, he said, are now working on plans for a master-control device patterned to the District's needs. Van Duzer estimated installation costs at $2,000 an intersection.

Earlier this year, immediately following The Post stories, Van Duzer visited Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Chicago, where the central control plan is in operation. He reported that none of the systems could be adopted here, and submitted to the Commissioners a set of specifications on the only program he believes will work with Washington's maze of streets and avenues.

When the new system is installed —and Van Duzer declined to predict when that would be—the city's entire downtown signal light layout will be controlled from a central point to meet varying traffic flow demands. Signal cycles will fluctuate in accordance with the volume of vehicles, and will be changed to meet adverse weather conditions—rain, slippery streets, etc.

Van Duzer said he would recommend immediate installation of the plan as soon as a practical design is received.

The traffic chief said he contemplated connecting only a few signals with the central control unit when it was first installed. Until his engineers have an opportunity to determine the system's most efficient method of operation, Constitution and Pennsylvania Avenues will be used as "experimental grounds," Van Duzer declared.

More Catholic Aid for Chest to Be Urged

Archbishop Curley's Letter to Suggest Increased Giving

Catholics will be urged to double their contributions to the Community Chest this year.

Increased giving will be urged on an early Sunday in November by Archbishop Michael J. Curley, of Baltimore and Washington, in a letter to be read in every Catholic church here, the Rev. Ignatius Smith, O. P., of Catholic University, announced yesterday.

Speaking at the Willard Hotel luncheon of the Chest's advance gifts unit, Father Smith said "the Chest's work thwarts the spirit of restlessness in which the seeds of revolution flourish and places the community here at the head of the Nation in this great work."

Reluctance to give because of feared insecurity can be overcome, he continued, "by zeal, devotion and fearless courage of Chest workers."

Maj. Chauncey G. Parker, jr., chairman of the Chest drive to be held November 13 to 26, asked that the "pressure be kept on to get the pledges in."

Charged with gathering contributions from the more well-to-do residents of Washington, the unit is divided into 11 sections of volunteers, all leaders in business and social life here.

Others at the speakers table were A. G. Neal, Paul Sleeper, Coleman Jennings, Bruce R. Allen and Advance Gifts Chairman J. Clifford Folger, who presided.

Team chairmen reporting were Richard H. Wilmer, Mrs. Reginald S. Huidekoper, Mrs. Charles A. P. McLachlen, John L. Proctor, Andrew Saul, and Mrs. Donald R. Richberg.
